TUNNEL CAVE-IN.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Boston, June 20.—A section of the East Boston tunnel near the foot of Station street, weakened by the act on of compressed air used in connection with the excavating, caved in during the night and one man, a Polish laborer, was killed and another injured.

The cave-in was about 25 feet long by six feet wide and will not seriously impede work on the tunnel.

THE MEXICAN LIBERAL PARTY

The National Convention Gives Evidence of Being Progressive.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Mexico City, June 20.—The National Liberal convention tonight elected General Geronimo Treveno of Monterey permanent president. This is regarded as of political significance, he being in sympathy with the progressive wing of the party and a noted leader in northeastern Mexico. His first wife was Miss Ord, daughter of General Ord of the United States army. The convention is a great representative assembly and much enthusiasm is shown by delegates coming from all sections of the republic.

The nomination for president is expected to be on Monday and General Diaz is certain to carry the convention overwhelmingly.

DEATH OF CARDINAL VAUGHN ARCHBISHOP OF WESTMINSTER

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

London, June 20.—Very Rev. Herbert Vaughn, cardinal and archbishop of Westminster, died early this morning. The cardinal, who had been sinking for some weeks from heart disease and dropsy, died peacefully. His death was not expected so soon. Yesterday he was wheeled in a bath chair about the corridors of St. Joseph's college, which he founded with money which he collected in America and elsewhere. On the previous days he appeared in the college chapel in full cardinal robes and made a farewell address to his bishops and priests. His remains will lie in state in the cathedral at Westminster and will be buried at St. Joseph's college.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Rome, June 20.—By order of Dr. Lapponi, all persons having access to the pope withheld the news of the death of Cardinal Vaughn, the doctor fearing its effect on the venerable prelate, owing to the latter's special affection for the dead cardinal, and it was not until this evening that the pontiff learned that Cardinal Vaughn was dead. He was extremely grieved at the news and insisted upon kneeling for a long time before retiring, praying for the repose of the soul of the cardinal.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Paris, June 20.—A dispatch to the Temps from Madrid says the approaching visit of King Alphonso to Carthage will be the occasion for notable naval maneuvers from the combined Mediterranean squadrons of Greece, Russia, Great Britain and Portugal. The French squadron was ordered today to proceed to Carthagena.

DEATH BLOW TO PRIZE FIGHTING IN KENTUCKY

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Frankfort, Ky., June 20.—The court of appeals in an opinion delivered in a case of the commonwealth against Terry McGovern and others rules that a court of equity can grant an injunction against the owners and managers of a building to restrain the holders of a prize fight therein. The decision is a death blow to pugilistic contests in the state of Kentucky.

REORGANIZATION OF THE RURAL FREE DELIVERY

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Washington, June 20.—The postoffice investigation has resulted in some important changes in the organization of the rural free delivery service. Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow has ordered the transfer of the headquarters of the middle division from Indianapolis to Chicago, where J. P. Walker, now in charge at Omaha, will be in charge. S. B. Rathbone, now in charge at Indianapolis, has been appointed in charge at Omaha. The headquarters of the Ohio division has been transferred from Marietta to Cincinnati, Wm. Gaiptree remaining in charge of the division. The state of Indiana has been transferred from the middle division to the Ohio division.

TO PUBLISH REPORT OF POSTOFFICE INVESTIGATION

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Washington, June 20.—When the investigation of the affairs of the postoffice department shall have been completed, a full report of it will be made to President Roosevelt by the postmaster general. It is understood to be the present intention of the president to make the report public, accompanying it with a statement of his own.

TO TEST SUNDAY LAW.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Spokane, Wash., June 20.—The new state law regarding barber shops to close all day Sunday is to be tested in the courts. A. H. Lyon, manager of the Hotel Spokane barber shop, was arrested today on complaint of ex-President Otis of the Barbers union, for keeping his shop open on Sunday. The claim is made that the shop is a part of the hotel business and that the statute allowing hotels to keep open justifies his course.

PLAGUE OF GRASSHOPPERS.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Livingston, Mont., June 20.—Consternation prevails among ranchers of the Bridger Creek country over a threatened grasshopper plague. At the present rate these pests are multiplying it bids fair to be without precedent in Montana. Unless the efforts of scientists of the State Agricultural college in their war of extermination are successful a large area of range country will be stripped bare of all vegetation.

NEW RAILWAY TO DEVELOP THE INTERIOR OF ALASKA

An Important Project Backed by Prominent Men of the Pacific Coast—Northern Terminus of the Road Is in the Midst of the Famous Tanana Gold Fields.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Chicago, June 20.—The gold output of Alaska, now $40,000,000 per year, will be greatly increased by the early building of a new railroad from the southern coast of Resurrection bay northward to the Tanana river, definite announcement of which was made here today.

The Reward Construction company of Chicago has secured the contract of the building and equipping of 418 miles of the Alaska Central railway from Resurrection bay north through the Cook Inlet country and up the Sussitna valley to the Tanana river, 150 miles above its junction with the Yukon. The construction company is made up of Illinois, Michigan and Ohio capitalists. Its general manager is John Dowdle, of the contracting firm of Nash & Dowdle. The president is George A. Skinner, a Michigan banker, and the treasurer, George H. Ford, national bank examiner of Cleveland.

The company has placed an order for 70-pound steel rails which will be shipped via Seattle and Vancouver. Locomotives and cars also have been secured and will be forwarded with the rails. Construction must start before July 15 and be pushed with all possible speed. The new railroad is projected by prominent men of the Pacific coast. The headquarters are at Seattle and the financial office is in Chicago. The president is George W. Dickinson, former general manager of the Northern Pacific.

F. Augustus Heinz is also heavily interested in the railway company, and is one of the directors. John E. Ballaine of Seattle, chairman of the finance committee, has been in charge of the financial arrangements, which are now definitely concluded. The Central Trust company of Illinois is trustee for the bondholders. The chief engineer of construction is A. W. Swanitz, of Chicago, representing directly some of the financial interests behind the enterprise. He has been in charge of large railroad construction in New York, New Orleans and Chicago, having recently completed the terminal clearing yards of Chicago.

The southern harbor of the Alaska Central is open every day of the year. Owing to the influence of the Japan current, the weather there never falls to zero in winter weather. The route of the railway, which was surveyed last summer, is through a valley heavily timbered, and opens a vast country rich in gold and copper. The northern terminus is in the midst of the new Tanana gold fields, many times more extensive than the Klondike. The road will make interior Alaska accessible every day in the year and save three weeks of travel now necessary to interior points by the circuitous routes up the Yukon river. The projectors say that the building of the Alaska Central will increase the annual gold production of Alaska from the present output of $40,000,000 to $200,000,000 and attract increased immigration of scores of thousands.

The agricultural department of the United States government has carried on experiments for the last five years in southern and central Alaska and has demonstrated that any vegetation can be grown successfully there which can be grown in the northern states of the union. The climatic conditions are about the same as in England and southern Norway. These countries are tempered by the gulf stream similarly as southern and central Alaska are tempered by the Japan current.

In addition to the resources of gold, coal and timber, the new railroad will penetrate a copper belt, which has been pronounced by government and private mineralogists to contain the most extensive and highest grade copper deposits known in the world.

Mr. Dowdle will leave Chicago with his construction equipment next Wednesday via Seattle en route to Seward, the southern terminus of the Alaska Central. Mr. Ballaine left for Seattle today.

POLITICAL INTRIGUES AND THE BREATHITT COUNTY FEUD

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Frankfort, Ky., June 20.—Governor Beckham today received a telegram from Postmaster Jurst, Mrs. J. C. Marcum and other residents of Jackson, asking for the continuance of the provost guard established by the militia. In response he assured them that he would do all in his power to protect the people of Breathitt county. No order recalling the troops has been issued. They will be held pending the calling of another special session of court to investigate the burning of Ewen's hotel.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Lexington, Ky., June 20.—The Breathitt county feud has been the occasion of conferences of prominent politicians and others here today and the past two nights.

County Judge James Hargis, who accompanied Jett and White here yesterday, was with friends until last midnight and today and tonight. He remained in Lexington as the guest of John S. Kain, proprietor of the Leland hotel and a prominent politician. Hargis is a member of the Democratic state central committee which recently reorganized the local organization. This action was afterward defeated by the county judge here, redistricting the city. The members of the deposed local organization have been very attentive to Judge Hargis and have been in the different conferences. This has caused reports about alliances. Some of the conferees were trying to get in communication today with people at Cynthiana while these conferences were in progress. Joseph Bruner, a detective for the Lexington & Eastern railroad, which runs to Jackson, was proceeding to arrest several visitors from Jackson as accessory before the fact and was prevented by B. J. Ewen, who declined to swear out the warrants. Ewen is still a prisoner in the Martin house and does not venture out of the house day or night, as there are many persons in Lexington now who have recently arrived from Jackson. Word also comes from Jackson of an agitation there for the arrest of prominent people for trial on charges of venue. Much talk of what is known as the city hall faction who are arrayed against the "insurgents" or court house faction, which is now in power, gave Judge James Hargis a supper at the Leland hotel.

City officials were among the guests, also Henry Boatwright, recently nominated for treasurer.

Among the others present were John S. Kain, president of the board of county, Alderman R. Allen and J. Hurtley, J. A. Livingston city solicitor, G. W. Miller, magistrate, John Payne city jailer, John Musner, superintendent of public works, J. McRoss and J. T. Watkins. There is no doubt that the request of Judge Osborne and the Hargis county officials that no troops be sent to Cynthiana while Jett and White are placed on trial will be observed unless enough feudists from Breathitt county should be there to add to the situation threatening. Judge Osborne will call a special term of court for early next month to try Jett and White.

REPORTED MURDER MAY BECOME AN INTERNATIONAL INCIDENT

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Los Angeles, June 20.—The reported murder of Anthony Swensen by Newton Brown at Atil, Mexico, state of Sonora, may result in an international incident.

John H. Foley, the attorney acting in behalf of Mrs. Swensen, will tomorrow make a formal request to Senor Andrade, Mexican consul at Los Angeles for an official investigation by the Mexican government of the alleged killing of her husband. If this request does not result in the producing of definite information within a reasonable time, it is proposed to make a formal demand on Secretary of State Hay for action by the United States government.

Swensen and Brown were business partners in a valuable copper mine at Atil, 80 miles in the interior of Sonora state. Seven weeks ago Brown was lost track of and early in the month Swensen left for Atil to investigate. Soon after Swensen's arrival at Nogales word was telegraphed to Los Angeles that he had been murdered by Brown. It is believed here, however, that Brown himself was murdered weeks ago, that his murderer then impersonated Brown and killed Swensen upon the latter's arrival in Sonora.

Tonight Attorney Foley received a telegram from Atil, Sonora, stating that ... was there that Brown killed Swensen. The telegram stated that Brown is being held for the crime and that, some time ago Brown had sold the copper mine in question.

A LARGE FORCE OF MILITIA HAS BEEN SENT TO DUBUQUE

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Dubuque, Ia., June 20.—Militia companies from Independence, Waterloo and Maquoketa arrived today and are now guarding the property of the street car company. Operations of cars will be resumed tomorrow. People thronged the streets tonight, but there was no demonstration.

The strike was instituted May 7, since which time all efforts to operate street cars in Dubuque have precipitated rioting. Early this week a determined effort to resume operations caused the most serious outbreak, resulting in the destruction of much property and serious injury to a number of persons. Since then repeated urgent appeals have been made to the governor to send additional troops, the sheriff and mayor declaring that the local police and sheriff's force even when supplemented by the local company of militia were helpless in the face of mob strike sympathizers.

The governor offered to do no more than hold the first battalion in readiness to rush to Dubuque upon demands of a fresh outbreak. Today, however, alarming advices concerning a secretly planned outbreak tonight impelled him to act. He telegraphed the Dubuque authorities that troops are not there for the purpose of assisting the fight against the strikers in any way other than to preserve peace at all hazards.

DEWEYS CLAIM SELF DEFENSE

Petition Before Supreme Court Gives Their Side of the Case Against the Berry Family.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Topeka, June 20.—The habeas corpus hearing in behalf of Charles Dewey and his associates, charged with the murder of the Berry family will be held before the supreme court probably Thursday morning. If it is refused, the prisoners will probably be kept in the jail here.

The petition of the Deweys, filed with the supreme court, contains an interesting statement of their side of the case. The Berrys are charged with doing everything in their power to annoy the Deweys, and on the day of the murder, said to have attacked the Deweys first. Self-defense is therefore alleged as the reason for the killing.

LIGHTNING STRUCK HOUSE CONTAINING DYNAMITE

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Cambridge, Ohio, June 20.—Lightning struck a house in which was stored 30,000 pounds of dynamite at the new mines now being opened near Senecaville, 12 miles from here today, during a storm, and killed six men and injured scores of others besides ruining the mine shaft and breaking nearly all the windows in Senecaville, a mining town of 300 people, half a mile from the mine. The men killed and injured were carpenters employed in opening the mines and building the shafts. When the storm came up, the men took refuge in John Saltzerberger's barn a short distance from the mine and suddenly a blinding flash came and in an instant the barn was demolished and the men scattered within a radius of 100 feet over a scene bleeding from injuries sustained from heavy rocks torn from the earth and from the timbers from the blacksmith shops. The dead are:

Wm. Mahoney.
Samuel Harlan.
Russell Harlan.
Hiram Wilson.
Jayes Harrison.
Robert Wilson.

Among the list of injured are Richard Davis, Burton Burton, John Green, Wm. Nelson, James Lowery, John Shear, Chas. Roth, two sons of Richard Bassford.

FIVE MEN KILLED BY EXPLOSION IN COAL MINE

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Raton, N. M., June 20.—Five men were killed by an explosion which completely wrecked mine No. 3 of the Raton Coal & Coke company at Blossburg, N. M. The dead are:

JOE PRESNIC.
TONY NATHIN.
JACK STOLY.
TOM POLSEI.
ALFONSO DUME.

Joe Bell, fire boss, was badly burned and Harry Missel had several ribs broken. The explosion is believed to have been caused by a windy shot. The mine was inspected less than two weeks ago.

STILL FINDING BODIES OF HEPPNER FLOOD VICTIMS

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Heppner, Ore., June 20.—The O. R. & N. company has resumed regular service to Heppner, the track laying been repaired today after an interruption of six days.

Eight bodies were received at the morgue today, making a total of 187 recovered. Some were found below Douglas, a distance of about 20 miles. The situation at the morgue is becoming very trying as the bodies are in a bad stage of decomposition, but notwithstanding this fact they are being properly cared for and prepared for decent burial. Money and supplies are being sent in from all over the state and from neighboring states. Up to this time $23,280 has been received.

JACKSON IS STILL HELD UNDER MARTIAL LAW

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Jackson, Ky., June 20.—Since the removal of Jett and White to Lexington, and the prospect of another trial in another county beyond the scope of the feud influence, there is considerable talk here of prosecutions for perjury and bribery. It is stated that a move is on foot to swear out warrants at once for the arrest of men in high places for bribery, perjury, and as accessory to the Marcum murder before the fact. One of the warrants is expected to be served tonight. The statement by Judge Redwine that he will call a special term of court when he finishes his work in Irvine and Lee counties is taken as a conclusive step in this direction.

The situation is still one of apprehension. The foreman of the grand jury that indicted Jett and White has been threatened and the soldiers were stationed around his house last night as well as around that of Hadd x who testified to seeing Crawford and Tharpe, teamsters for Hargis Brothers, coming from the Ewen hotel just after the fire was discovered. Anxiety is felt for other witnesses and jurors and the provost marshal will continue holding Jackson under martial law.

SUICIDE IN PARIS.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Paris, June 20.—The perfect of police has notified Consul General Gowdy that Samuel Jameson, an American, committed suicide June 16, and was buried in the potter's field. An investigation showed that Jameson was born at Lebanon, Ohio, and that later he lived in St. Louis. He lived there for a number of years with his wife, receiving a regular income through a firm of attorneys of New York.

He was 66 years of age and his wife is 64. Recently Mrs. Jameson became deranged and failed to recognize her husband. This preyed on Jameson and he cut his throat. Mrs. Jameson's mental condition is considered to be hopeless. She is confined in the police infirmary.

ENCOUNTERS BETWEEN CATHOLICS AND SOCIALISTS

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

St. Etienne, France, June 20.—The appearance of the Capuchins in the police court here today was the occasion of serious rioting and sharp fighting occurred between the Catholics and Socialists in which several persons were badly hurt. Fines were imposed on the Capuchins who, on leaving court, went to the office of their counsel. A party of anti-Clericals broke into the office and seriously injured two sympathizers of the friars. During the evening the anti-Clericals sacked the Capuchin convent on Ste Barbe hill and broke the windows of the Christian Brothers school.

LEE DID NOT APPEAR BEFORE THE GRAND JURY

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

St. Louis, June 20.—Former Lieutenant Governor John A. Lee did not appear before the grand jury today as expected. Circuit Attorney Folk received a telegraphic message from Robert Lee, brother of the former lieutenant governor, stating that he had gone to Chicago on business.

The report that John Carroll, the well-known railroad lobbyist, who is wanted before the grand jury as a witness in the boodling investigation, was also in Chicago, gave rise to much speculation around the Four Courts.

HEADQUARTERS FOR CHINESE COMMISSION AT THE FAIR

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

St. Louis, June 20.—The Chinese government leased a 14-room house in which the higher officials of the Chinese commission will be accommodated during their stay in St. Louis while preparing the building and exhibit for China at the exposition. The lease extends to the end of the fair.

The California World's fair commission left here today for home after completing all arrangements for the erection of a state building on a thoroughly satisfactory site.

ITALY'S EXHIBIT.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Rome, June 20.—Ambassador Meyer had a long interview today with Foreign Minister Morey regarding Italy's participation in the St. Louis fair. The minister urged Mr. Meyer to request the assistance of the American authorities in making a success of Italian section. He said the space required by Italy had been definitely settled at 53,625 square feet covered and 8,750 uncovered.

The former would be divided as follows:

Industries, 13,000; liberal arts, 5,500; instruction and education, 5,500; fine arts, 11,375; social economy, 1,625; agriculture, 9,750; mines and electricity, 1,875.

LEDYARD'S DENIAL.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Detroit, Mich., June 20.—President Ledyard of the Michigan Central road, today denied the story sent out from Cleveland to the effect that he was to retire as president of the Michigan Central on August 1 and that the road was to lose its identity and become part of a consolidation of the Vanderbilt lines west of Buffalo.

GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE RELATIVE TO WAR VESSELS

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Washington, June 20.—Attorney General Knox had prepared today a stipulation in the nature of a bond which, on Monday, will be filed with Judge Grinnan of the chancery court of Richmond, practically covering the government's interests in the gunboat Galveston. This stipulation or bond, it is asserted, will more than cover the claims of the creditors against the Trigg company for work done and material used on the ship. After the stipulation is filed it is believed that Judge Grinnan will immediately release the ship to the government.

It was learned at the navy department today that far greater interests are involved in the decision of the question of the possession of the cruisers Galveston and Chattanooga than are represented by the actual cash value of these boats. It is regarded as absolutely essential at this stage to establish a sound precedent and determine the question of title in war vessels under construction in order to protect the government's interests in the ownership of at least a dozen ships, including battleships worth nearly $5,000,000 each.

Similar action will be taken in the case of the Chattanooga, building at Elizabethport, and it is therefore probable that no further delays will be encountered in the completion of the Galveston and the Chattanooga while any show of force or duress on the part of the national government will be avoided. It is fully expected that similar action to that about to be taken in the case of these two gunboats will be necessary in the case of some much larger warships now on the stocks.

NO HURRY TO RECOGNIZE THE NEW GOVERNMENT OF SERVIA

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Washington, June 20.—The United States government has adopted an attitude similar to that of England toward the new Servian dynasty. It will be in no haste to recognize the new government. Therefore, Mr. Jackson who, besides being minister to Greece, is also United States minister to Servia, will not present his credentials to the government of King Peter at present. In fact, these credentials have not been prepared.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Belgrade, June 20.—Great Britain has practically broken off diplomatic relations with Servia. The British minister, Sir G. F. Bonham, will leave here Monday for England. The consul of Great Britain, W. G. Thesiger, will take charge of British interests.

Unless King Peter is prepared to altogether ignore the foreign demands for the punishment of the assassins, his only means of satisfying any requirements appears to be to persuade the criminals to absent themselves until quiet is restored when they will be permitted to resume their places in the army. The provisional government holds office solely at the will of the army and should King Peter promise to punish the officers implicated it is as likely as not that the army will force the withdrawal of the occupant of the throne. It is suggested in official quarters that Russia may possibly advise the officers concerned to go absent themselves.

Colonel Mischitch, who took a prominent part in the assassination at the palace, has been gazetted commandant of the military district of Belgrade.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

The Hague, June 20.—The Dutch representative at Belgrade has been instructed to assume the same attitude as Great Britain toward the provisional government of Servia.

IMPORTANT POINT INVOLVED IN A DAMAGE SUIT

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Los Angeles, Calif., June 20.—A case involving an important point in law and one which especially concerns railroads will come up in the United States circuit court in this city on June 30. On the face of it the case is a damage suit for $50,000 filed by T. Holmes, a former engineer on the Santa Fe for personal injuries sustained in a wreck at Franconia station, Arizona, nearly two years ago. The company will set up as a defense the "fellow servant" doctrine which makes an employe, instead of the employer, responsible for injuries sustained by a fellow worker, where the cause can be laid to the carelessness or negligence of one engaged in contributory labor. The last legislature amended the law on this point which was held as favorable to the employer. Holmes' suit was brought under the provisions of the old law and both sides will fight the case, the plaintiff's attorneys desiring to establish a precedent for similar cases now pending.

About 18 months ago the Santa Fe limited, going east, collided with the corresponding train west bound at Franconia station, Ariz. Several lives were lost and many of the passengers and members of the crews of both trains were injured, more or less seriously. Among the latter was Holmes, an engineer, now residing in Texas.

The Dixons: In the World But Not of It

A Chronicle of the Life and Sayings of an Aged Philosopher and His Wife.

By J. EMERSON SMITH

Wrested and Drew the Secrets Forty Years Ago; Now Lays His Heart Bare to the Songs of Birds.

FATHER DIXON STOOD AT THE GATE AND SMILED A WELCOME.

WILLIAM DIXON, in shirt sleeves and bareheaded, the soft light of the clouded June afternoon resting upon his tangled white hair, leaned on his gate and smiled a welcome to the Photographer and me.

The Photographer, who is not a sentimental person, set down his bundle of yellow sticks that, shaken apart, formed the tripod of his camera, placed beside it the leather case of plates and other portions that go to make up the marvelous mechanical eye, which not only sees pictures but preserves them; and, imperatively waved his hand.

"There," he said, "just as you are. Don't move."

The aged man at the gate continued to smile and then laughed.

"This," he remarked whimsically, "is the picture we can label five thousand and one."

"It is THE picture," said the Photographer, busy with the tripod and the black box.

"An artist," I said in explanation, "to whom the beautiful always appeals."

I bowed. William Dixon laughed, this time a laugh that echoed back from Cheyenne mountain and stopped the songs of what seemed a multitude of birds.

"You must be very thirsty," he said, finally, regaining obligingly his former position. I was on the point of telling him that my remark referred to the picture as a whole, that the appreciation of the pastoral scene had charmed the Photographer to the extent of forgetfulness of all else save securing a prized negative, when that gentleman observed, apologetically:

"He means the background furnished by the orchard there, the way this light, the very best for portraits, strikes you, and the picture made by yourself, harmonizing so completely with the whole."

I drew to one side of the lane and lifted my cap, but the Photographer was not to be disturbed. He threw the cloth over his head, emerged from his inspection with a brisk, businesslike air and pressed the bulb.

That was our introduction to William F. Dixon and "Dixon's Place."

In the world and yet out of it dwells an aged couple at the foot of Cheyenne mountain, where the canon with its red-pillared entrance debouches into Stratton park, a triangular bit of vivid green at the foot of a splendid vista of ascending mountains, one ridge higher than the other until the snow succeeds the purple and sharply marks the sky line. Sheltered from wind and cold by the great wall to the west, and a thick greenwood of deciduous trees, is the ranch of the Dixons. From the park a climb of something under half a mile is made through upland fields of wild roses and scrub-oak until the red-soil lane is reached.

A herd of burros near-by heralds your approach—the shaggy little creatures in pure wantonness of spirit, accompanying you along the pasture, loudly commenting on your presence, and you are forced to suspect from the laughing eyes they turn on you that they are shamelessly making fun. Where the old toll road—"the Cripple Creek trail"—cuts with a sweep to the north across the Dixon lane, you are arrested by the picture that bursts upon you. Bursts is the only word suitable, for the hills sink away suddenly and the afternoon sunlight, still strong, bathes the vast stretch of prairie unchecked by shadow. Colorado Springs looks like a toy village built from the picture of some ancient city of southern Europe. The dimly seen, red-capped towers of the Antlers have a Moorish suggestion; the tower of the court house gleaming white and fairy-like in the clear afternoon might be a portion of the Alhambra. And like a boundless sea with a great wave of green, brown, pink, light blues and purples—the prairie stretches to the eastern horizon.

* * * *

"That was quick," said Father Dixon, approvingly. "If the sun hadn't been behind the clouds for a moment I couldn't have faced you, though. Come in."

The gate swung open. Of the thousands who visit Stratton's park annually, hundreds climb the lane and call on the Dixons. Hospitality is a part of his creed. Years ago he yielded to a popular request and kept refreshments for the thirsty. That explains the sign, "Closed on Sunday." In his ice house he keeps beer—the strongest drink one may procure at Dixon's place.

To one side of the lane, abutting on the toll road, is a cottage-like structure. This is the wayside inn. Should Father Dixon not be in sight you pull a wire which is attached to a cow-bell across the roadway and near the kitchen door of the residence.

"All kinds of people," is the way he describes his callers of the past 30 years. "He has entertained and given the cooling beverage to men, bearing names distinguished in almost every walk of life. Many of them have remembered the cheerful philosopher of the ranch in the foothills and have sent him remembrances.

This is a veracious chronicle of the Dixons, but I lack the power to convey to you the sense of rest of content that contact with these two pioneers gives the man or woman wearied of things—and we all are, more or less. Father Dixon is as was Horace living his life on his farm, he surely is of kin to those philosophers who, with kindly eye, saw life through rose-colored spectacles. The very contrast of his quiet, well-ordered existence to the universal struggle around us is, in itself, quieting and helpful.

Perhaps it should be explained that born Mr. and Mrs. Dixon are English. Sixty-eight years ago he was born in County Durham; sixty-four years ago she first saw the light in London. And in this connection the question might be raised: would it be possible for an American to put into practice those unusual principles that make Father Dixon so eminently a physician of the heart? Sturdy and vigorous, his laugh is clear, his hand steady and his sympathy ever forthcoming. And it is nothing for him to chop a cord of firewood or to cheerfully, hospitably, graciously wait on what is known as "the holiday crowd," crowds that completely fill the wayside inn.

* * * *

"I came to the United States in 1856," he said, as the Photographer and myself followed him into the deep and fragrant shade of the orchard. "A year ago last September I returned, but I didn't like it enough to remain. To me this is a very satisfying home and it is the country of my choice.

"I drove a team across the plains in 1860, and then became a driver for the Wells-Fargo Express company, starting from Leavenworth, Kansas. When I reached Denver I fancied I would settle here, and following the drift to Pike's Peak, I picked upon this valley to winter in. This was in 1862. The summer and winter before I had been engaged in prospecting in the mountains. Two summers after that were spent in Idaho or in mines in this territory. In 1868 I took up 160 acres here and began the construction of that little log house you see by the scrub-oaks yonder.

"No," he replied, in answer to my question, "I never had trouble with the Indians. They would come down the mountain passes in great numbers and I had many friends. They would camp here and I've had good times—very good times, for an Indian isn't very much different from you or I. I would fool with them, wrestle with them, and we would put what we had in the way of food together and have good eating. In those days I could

THE MONUMENT IN THE GARDEN.

This may be styled a Vade Mecum of Cheerful Philosophy—the sayings and beliefs of William F. Dixon, pioneer. They are given without embellishment, and as they dropped from him, sitting on a lichen-draped log under the branches of his apple tree—the "McIntosh red" variety, it was the small green first-fruit showing dots of weak red as the breeze patted the young leaves.

There is no use in a man saying he's old—people will tell him fast enough, and it sounds more cheerful coming from them.

Most money's too bright to look at. I guess that's the reason they blindfold Justice.

III.

Many persons come out here and say: "Dixon, how's your fruit; got a large yield this year?"

I say: "I don't know; the Lord will take care of that."

"But," they say, "don't you expect a large yield?"

"Why should I worry?" I reply. "If it's not much I won't have much work in picking it; if it is a large crop I'll get more pay for my picking."

IV.

Indians are just like other folks. As long as you play with them friendly, they're in for the fun of the thing. Scalping comes from mistakes.

I didn't go to Cripple Creek with Stratton, Burns and the rest for I was afraid of taking mountain fever or some other disease of the mountains.

throw the Utes easily; they didn't seem to have much strength. As long as you played with them they were friendly.

"In 68, however," continued Father Dixon, reminiscently, "we got a dose of 'em. It was the time they killed the Robbins boys. John Wolfe was my companion then, and we were hauling grain from the flat lands near the creek—Cheyenne creek—down yonder. It was in the fall of the year. Somebody rode by and told us the Indians were on the warpath. Never in your life have you seen a heavy grain wagon unloaded with more rapidity. We whipped up and came rushing for the house here, but they never came on Cheyenne creek. They were not the Utes, but Arapahoes and Cheyennes. I could never be made to believe the Utes had had a hand in the killings. I helped put the two Robbins boys, who were shot down without warning, into the wagon."

Those early days comprise the only excitement that has come into the life of William Dixon. He cut and hewed the pine and spruce logs for his house and the building of it occupied him during the winter of 1866-7. The 160 acres include what is now known as Stratton park and his own place. The street car company purchased what was the nucleus of the park and then when W. S. Stratton became so heavily interested in the company he purchased other parcels of land from the Dixons. In this way the Fortune that long ago the pioneer gave up endeavoring to seek came to him and, as he expresses it, happiness kept it company.

In 1875 he was married to Miss C. West, whose brother built the first structure now occupied by Homeaway's grocery stands on South Tejon street. Dixon took the comely young woman from London to his comfortable log cottage and to his constantly increasing thankfulness found he had won a kindred spirit, a woman to whom the ripening fruit, the sunlight, the simple cares of their farm life, the beauty of nature spread around them, was sufficient to fill her cup of happiness. If her husband was a philosopher she had a healthy strain of poetry mixing with another sharply defined strain—that of domesticity and a native executive ability.

There is a peculiarity about the Dixon place, exclusive of the personality of Father Dixon, that seems to twine about everything inanimate or growing. Once the weather-stained gate swings open Colorado becomes lost to New England. Trees, a perfect forest in miniature, encompass you, the sunlight flecks the thick sward in spaces the size of a dollar. The green branches of tall trees interlock overhead, and in leafy habitation scores of birds hold camp meeting.

In the orchard where peach, plum and apple trees have attained that dignified maturity that gives the tender early leaves the appearance of being out of proportion, so small are they in comparison to the gnarled, twisted trunks, the mountains are lost to sight. Fugitive lines such as "the forest primeval," and half-forgotten phrases from Evangeline keep ringing through the mind—for, through the tracery of tree trunks, the gray log house the pioneer built during the winter thirty-seven years ago, looms bathed in shadow in the twilight of the orchard.

It is kept in much the same condition as when William Dixon drew the latch string and ushered in his bride. The square-hewn logs are good for many years yet to come, there is no rusty creaking as the door swings back into the dim interior.

THE LOG HOUSE ERECTED IN THE WINTER OF 1866; AS IT APPEARS TODAY

The windows, small and set deep in the walls, are shaded by muslin curtains. The Photographer looked toward the corner near the fireplace as if he expected to see the long-barreled, old-fashioned rifle. The cabin was an excellent place of defense.

Across the path, bordered by luxuriantly untrimmed grass is the ice house, screened by a grove of scrub oak. These trees, stunted bushes on the mountain sides, have climbed through the years straight and graceful to a height of from twenty to thirty feet. The proximity of the ice and its constant melting has furnished the moisture and the rich, dark soil the nutriment.

It is the trees that lend the enchantment. Across the driveway is a modern, well-built frame cottage, approaching the Queen Anne in its style of architecture. It is the home of the Dixons, and for more than ten years the cabin has been deserted for the comforts the larger house affords. But surrounded with green, enclosed, embraced in green, the angles and cornices of the carpenter do not offend; the cottage is apart of the scene and the absence of the pruning knife and mower make you desire its presence. It is the touch of the picturesque touches yet it fills its place.

Where the branches sweep low, guarded by giant cottonwood, and in plain view of the wide windows of the house, stands a shaft of sculptured stone.

It is in the form of a broken tree trunk and the carving is startlingly like the handiwork of Nature. The wrinkled bark is there and the ivy vine twines around the scarred sides. A dove, attracted by the delicate leaf, holds the ivy in eager bill, and underneath is cut deep on a smoothed tablet:

MAY,
Daughter of W. F. and C. Dixon,
Born
April 24, 1878,
Died
Nov. 8, 1886,
Aged 10 yrs. and 6 mos.

Not lost to memory nor to love,
But gone to our Father's home above.

The small mound lies a brilliant patch in the wilderness of green. Scarlet geraniums grow in perfect form and length; the ground is hidden by the mass of bloom, and the grass within the inclosure is neatly clipped.

It is the grave of two of the children, the daughter and an infant boy. A third, that died at its birth, is buried elsewhere on the grounds. It was buried in the dead of winter, and the storms that heaped the white blankets above the sleeping child served to remove, when spring came at last, all trace of the infants bed. The father has searched in vain over the garden.

* * * *

Sunshine and storm-clouds and the blackness of night. How serene and well poised the spirit that retains enough of the sunshine to sing in the storm!

As the old man sat on the lichen-spotted log he gave utterance to some of his philosophy. He has not read the ancients; he has not read deeply, if at all, in the modern school. His philosophy is his own.

"I place the geraniums on the bed of our little ones the day before Decoration day," he said. "Many persons have asked me why I have my graveyard in my garden, and I have tried to tell them of my conviction that nearness, even of the dead, imparts comfort. Half of the horror of death comes from the knowledge that the loved one is taken from you forever. I am happy in caring for my children, and I haven't a doubt they know of what I do."

And William Dixon, who has been, unconsciously perhaps, a student of nature, to whom no book of the mountains has been sealed, who has smiled when the shaggy brown bear has sniffed, upon awakening, the spring air, and has lurched forth staggering in the sunlight like a drunken man, and patiently turned up his collar when the blizzard swept down from the Peak, opened the treasury of his mind a little way to the Photographer and me and made some observations that will bear repeating. The Photographer calls it a Vade Mecum of Cheerful Philosophy.

I sat and watched him, the strong arms, the well-knit body, the alert head. The birds long ago had resumed their chorus. High above us at the point they call truly, Sublime, a railway train was crawling along the mountain side, heading like a creeping thing of night into the bank of angry clouds beginning to gather and blot out the snow fields.

The quiet happiness of this philosopher made me reflect upon the empty things that we hail as pleasure. He had told me he had watched the city grow from afar, but had taken no hand in its building, for he could see no reason why, content with what he had, he should break his rest seeking for more. Mrs. Dixon hasn't been to Colorado Springs for ten years, the music from Broadmoor, gay with its dances and concerts, comes to them in the evening, for the casino grounds come close to "Dixon's place," but at candle-lighting they see that the poultry is well-housed and the gate closed, and retire. Neither has ever been to Broadmoor.

The Photographer was getting to his feet.

"I should like to see it," he said, and I followed.

* * * *

It was only the trail to the gold camp.

"Yes," laughed Father Dixon, laughing comes easy to him, "I kept the gate and part of the toll, too, for it was Fortune coming my way, you see. I cannot understand the man who is impractical enough to refuse to meet Fortune when she is seeking him, but I have made it a rule since the days of my youth to wait for her; she is too scary a maid to seek most times.

"Many men helped to build this road to Cripple Creek. Senator Wolcott and some lawyers owned it and threw it up, for some cause I never heard, I took it."

He took us through the orchard, pointing out the trees bearing his pride, the Duchess of Oldenburg apple. He lingered lovingly by the tree bearing the McIntosh red variety and recounted a triumph.

"One day I took some of the McIntosh red down to Canon City which, as you know, is a great fruit center. I showed one that had been polished by contact with the cloth of my coat until it was streaked with light. The fruit-grower exclaimed at once: 'Why, that's the Queen apple!' 'No,' I said, 'it's the McIntosh red.' We compared apples, and finally he admitted that some one beside himself in Colorado had his pet apple, although under a different name."

He laughed again.

"He didn't like to do it, but he said at last that my McIntosh red was better tasting than his Queen."

* * * *

The Photographer on the way to the city sat by the open window of the electric car. He isn't a sentimentalist, and shouldn't be called one—but, nevertheless, he talked of forest fires and "billowy black clouds" of smoke that he had tried to photograph while they were reflecting the hungry, leaping, destroying flames; of moonlight nights and dry plates, and the awe that filled him when one night in the mountains, near forgotten Westcliffe, he saw the fall of a meteor and was almost blinded by its radiant course.

THE ELECTION FRAUDS AT CRIPPLE CREEK.

THE ELECTION contest just concluded at Cripple Creek has disclosed a condition of affairs which should be the subject of a searching and diligent inquiry by officers of the law.

In issuing the peremptory writ to the mayor and city council, directing them to seat the Democratic contestants, Judge Theron Stevens took occasion to express in vigorous language his opinion of political conditions as they exist in the city and to condemn the barefaced frauds by which an attempt had been made to seat the two Republican contestants.

Touching the bold debauchery of the ballot, the judge said, "There ought to be some way under the sun to stop those proceedings, and, therefore, a temporary writ will issue at once."

Afterwards, discussing the matter, he said: "In my opinion there is no question but that the ballot box of precinct 17 in the Second ward had been tampered with and opened. While this was not material in the case unless it was shown that the ballots had been tampered with and that the poll books had been changed, yet the testimony showed that there was a discrepancy between the count of votes as made in the court and as reported by the judges. The odium of the crime must fall upon the parties profiting thereby, and I cannot see in this case how the Democrats could be accused of putting up a job on themselves."

It is quite apparent, therefore, from all the evidence in the case, that the members of the Republican party in Cripple Creek have been repeating the crimes of their fellow partisans in Colorado Springs, who, a few years ago, manipulated the ballots in such a shameless manner as to call down a severe and just rebuke from the supreme court of this state.

In Cripple Creek the ballot boxes themselves were evidences of the commission of a crime. When they were turned over by Clerk Weyand to his successor, the seals and locks were in good condition, and just as they had come from the election judges. When they were exhibited in court last week, the seals and locks were all broken.

Such a state of affairs is a disgrace and a dishonor to any party in any community. It strikes at the honesty and sanctity of the ballot, subverts the will of the people, and makes an election little more than a farce.

While in this particular instance the criminals will not profit by their crimes, the outrageous character of the proceedings is not lessened in any degree.

While it is very difficult to apprehend and bring to justice such conspirators against decency and law, the people of Cripple Creek owe it to themselves to see that nothing is left undone to secure the punishment of the perpetrators of this crime.

NEEDED REFORMS BY BUILDING INSPECTOR.

BUILDING INSPECTOR YOUNG starts out by announcing a couple of much-needed reforms. The first of these is that a building permit must be taken out for every piece of building or rebuilding that is to be done, as required by the ordinance. The second is that these permits must be taken before the building is begun in order to give the inspector a chance to examine the plans and see if the construction of the building conforms to the ordinance.

These two important matters have been almost wholly neglected in the past, and permits were taken out at any time during the construction of the building, and, frequently, the matter was evaded altogether. The chief duty of the building inspector, to our mind, is not so much to get a fee for the city, as it is to see that all work is done safely.

The inspector expresses the intention also of visiting various buildings and seeing that the work is being done according to the ordinances bearing upon the subject. It is a good start, and it is to be hoped that it will be continued while he is in office.

A SALUTARY LESSON IN CHICAGO.

A SALUTARY lesson was administered by Judge Carter in the Cook county court of Illinois a day or two ago in certain election cases.

Three judges of election who presided in one of the precincts of the Eighteenth ward were found guilty and sentenced to three months' imprisonment. The specific charge was that they permitted 12 names to be voted twice at the election of judges of the courts. Under the Illinois law the clerks and election judges are made officers of the court at judicial elections, and the sentence was administered for contempt of court in permitting illegal balloting.

While this is a somewhat unusual procedure, it is apparently the quickest way by which proceedings could be had against the recalcitrant election officials. It is too often the case that judges of election enter into a conspiracy to defraud voters of their rights and to corrupt the ballot. Very rarely are such officials brought to an accountability for their acts. If punishment were certain and speedy, there would be very little of the corruption which now exists, especially in the large cities, at polling places on election day.

The failure to convict the Kentucky assassins is greatly to be regretted both for the good name of Kentucky and for the salutary effect which such a verdict would have upon other feudists in the Kentucky mountains. However, the report that the jury stood 11 to 1 for conviction indicates a change of sentiment in the mountains which is quite hopeful. The chances are that the cases will be retried under change of venue at some point where witnesses, jury and attorneys will be safe from the attacks of the feudists.

President Faunce of Brown university had the temerity to score the wealthy leisure class the other day. Of course, this didn't hit John D., who is very wealthy but not leisurely.

THE PRESIDENT'S UNWISE SPEECHMAKING.

WHETHER President Roosevelt realizes it or not, it is distinctly detrimental to his own wellbeing and that of his country that he should be forever emphasizing the fighting spirit.

Upon any and all occasions—the latest being at an educational gathering at the University of Virginia—he is ready to talk glibly upon the need of large armies and great navies, and by the use of militant phrases to convey the impression that the United States has no greater destiny before it than to prepare for war.

To be sure, he uses a phrase or two at the outset to the effect that "We pray this war may not come," and then launches into a 15-minute or half-hour talk upon a great army or navy and the necessity of being a world power, and so on. The logical deduction is that in order to keep ourselves peaceful, we should have an unlimited naval program, giving us an equal or greater number of warships than all other nations on earth, for the greater the navy the greater the peace.

There may be some who differ with President Roosevelt on this proposition, and who are of the belief that a great amount of warlike preparation brings, in the course of time, a desire for war. And we are very sure that there are many members of his own party who disapprove the militant tone which the president is forever injecting into his speeches. It is bound inevitably to teach the youth of the land that the arts of war are more important than the business of peace; that the thing to be is not so much a great commercial nation as a great military power, ready to strut and say, "Knock this chip off if you dare."

The country as a whole favors a small army and a fair-sized navy. Every president has acquiesced in this down to the present time, but the difference is that while McKinley and Cleveland and the others made it an incident of commercial expansion, Roosevelt makes it the chief duty before the citizens and the nation, and continues to harp upon it at every opportunity.

It is to be hoped in time that some of the president's friends will be able to turn his thoughts into a less strenuous and more peaceful channel.

Mr. Cleveland has, apparently, had an unfair advantage taken of him by a newspaper man. In a friendly way he talked, perhaps more freely than he otherwise would, concerning his own and the party's political future. While not committing himself to any program and especially to any proposal to nominate him for president, nevertheless, he may well have objected to having his private utterances printed. While Mr. Cleveland ought to know that newspaper men almost invariably seek him for "copy," he should have been given the right to see the interview before it was printed. To smuggle an interview under guise of friendship is a very contemptible thing to do.

The British government has decided to administer a rebuke to the Servian assassins and the beneficiaries thereof by withdrawing its minister from Belgrade. It is a very proper and commendable action. Decent nations of the earth should find some way of expressing their abhorrence of the crime, and refuse to acquiesce in it. The best way to do so is to terminate diplomatic relations with such a people.

It is to be hoped that the militant administration at Washington will not find it necessary to order out the troops to take away a half-finished gunboat from the Virginia sheriff who is holding it for a sub-contractor's debt.

Chicago university has conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia. He can hardly reciprocate because Doctor Harper has two or three LL. D.'s to spare now.

The notion that the sultan would abdicate is of course "a malicious invention." Abdul would be in a bad way if he should become detached from the Turkish pay roll.

The boodling committee of the Missouri legislature first demanded $40,000 for insurance legislation but finally came down to $25,000. It pays to be reasonable.

About one billion dollars in water has been squeezed out of various trusts in the last six months. No wonder the country is being flooded.

The federal grand jury in Brooklyn is now going to ring up a little trouble over the purchase of cash registers for United States postoffices.

The Canadian papers need not be so greatly agitated over the proposal to rebuild Fort Ontario. It is to be used only for training purposes.

Late Press Comment

HIS OWN CAMPAIGN MANAGER.

Neither Hanna nor Quay nor Platt will direct the Republican national committee next year. Mr. Roosevelt will, according to the New York Sun, which comments on the fact that a year and a half ago the president was supposed to be so unsophisticated in politics that he needed Mr. Payne as a guardian, and now he is directing Mr. Payne, and next year will conduct his own campaign. The Sun does not like Mr. Roosevelt, and does not do him justice. Mr. Payne's weakness is that he is a political manager. Mr. Roosevelt's strength is that he is no political manager at all, but has made himself very popular by appealing directly to the people.—(Philadelphia Record (Ind. Dem.)

FOLK AS SOUND AS CLEVELAND.

The suggestion of District Attorney Folk of St. Louis as an available candidate for the Democratic nomination for president next year is commended by the Louisville Courier Journal. Mr. Folk has shown himself a resolute and able man in his office. He had an opportunity to prosecute and convict a large number of the most brazen boodlers the country has produced since Tweed's time, and he did the work well. But we doubt if he is a man to excite popular enthusiasm. Being the sort of man he is, he is probably as sound on essential questions of public policy as Grover Cleveland himself.—(Hartford Times (Dem.)

CONJURING WITH A NEW NAME.

During his recent visit to St. Louis, ex-President Cleveland sent Mr. Folk several highly complimentary messages. In the east Mr. Cleveland has been quoted as speaking favorably of Mr. Folk, commending his work and urging him forward as a man worthy of wide public esteem. In the eastern press, including that element which is supposed to represent more nearly the Cleveland view-point, Folk's name has been and is being repeatedly mentioned in connection with the presidential nomination.

Some months ago Bryan visited St. Louis and spent five hours in conference with Folk, and, although there was no intimation as to the subject of the conference, there was at the same time some quasi public discussion of Folk as a candidate acceptable to the Bryan following.

Bryan's statement, therefore, does not come wholly as a surprise. Says he: "Mr. Folk has shattered the stronghold of corruption, and has laid bare more official bribery than was ever before disclosed in the history of the world. It is certain that outside the ranks of 'practical' politicians, among the great mass of honest citizens, Republicans as well as Democrats, no name in Missouri is more honored than that of Joseph W. Folk." And Mr. Bryan adds that in his opinion Folk is eligible as a Democratic presidential nominee.

The attitude, not only of Bryan and Cleveland, but of the public mind as reflected in the press at large, is not without significance at this time. No man can foretell the condition six or nine or 12 months hence. Certain it is, however, that today, in view of the great disturbances at Washington and the absorbing municipal and local questions which are agitating the public mind generally throughout the country, Folk's name is one with which to conjure, a name to consider and to ponder.—(St. Louis Republic (Dem.)

AMERICAN CITY GOVERNMENT.

"We are in danger," said Bishop Mackay-Smith of Pennsylvania in his baccalaureate sermon at Lehigh university, "of becoming the pharisees of the world. Instead of seeming to hold that we are quite fit to govern other people we ought to realize that there is no nation where more awful differences exist between promise and performance. With the exception of Washington, there does not exist in this country a single well-governed city in the European sense."

The attempt to make the misgovernment of our cities an argument against efforts to extend American institutions to our new possessions, and the attempt to set up European cities as standards by which American cities should be judged, stamps Bishop Mackay-Smith as ignorant of the American spirit, and as one of those reformers who never accomplish anything, because they do nothing but ignore facts and rail.

So far from being a proof of the absence of self-government, the misgovernment of our cities is proof of its presence. These municipal governments, without exception, are the product of a majority of their people. They are the kind of governments that the majority of their people show by their acts that they like. Whether they ought to like them is a different question. That they do like them is proved by the fact that they continue to have them.

In the face of this demonstrated fact it is the depth of fatuity for civic reformers and moralists to hold up European city government as a standard for American imitation. American city dwellers could have that kind of government any time they wanted it. They do not have it, because they do not want it.

They do not want it because they parted company more than 100 years ago with the traditions on which European city government is based. These are, in substance, that there exists in every community a ruling class whose right and duty it is to look after all other classes. The American people have formally renounced the ruling-class idea. They will have none of it.

The American people are trying to work out government on the principle that there is no ruling class, because all men are equal before the law. In national affairs, quite completely, and in state affairs quite largely, they have succeeded in obtaining honest and efficient government. If they have not yet succeeded in city affairs it is because the democratic city is really a very new thing, a thing which did not exist before the middle of the nineteenth century, and which now exists in the United States alone.

European cities offer no precedents of the slightest value on which to form, dictate, administrate [illegible] American cities. European cities are governed by and for a ruling class, often extremely benevolent, but still a ruling class. American cities are attempting to govern themselves in the democratic spirit. They give not yet succeeded so well as many of us would like. But they are succeeding. In spite of all the railing of civic reformers our city governments are on the whole growing more honest and efficient.

Movements toward civic reform which require us to abandon democracy and put our cities on a class basis are absolutely hopeless. With all its weaknesses and failures the American people prefer democracy. They show by their acts in continuing them that they like the city governments produced by democracy. They feel that democratic city government, with all its failures, is better than oligarchic city government, with all its successes. At present they are getting the kind of government that they like, and since they are plainly growing to like and demand better, reformers, but expose their folly when they despair of the future.—(Chicago Inter Ocean.

A VEIN OF HUMOR

The Advance in Drama.

Mrs. Langtry announces that she will have a drama written which is to have as its central theme the marconigraph. So now they'll dramatize the dim, ethereal marconigraph.

No doubt they'll have a curtain raiser of a cheap phonograph.

Perhaps the heroine who tells her grief, instead of moaning it,

Will drop a nickel in the slot and go to telephoning it.

And when the villain in the play grows glum and cigaretteal

They'll put him in a X-ray tube and make his fate hermetical.

Oh, what a wondrous chance our dramatists (have missed all thoughtlessly!

Their comic operas and play have all been running plotlessly—

But what if while the dramatists were slinging ink so tirelessly,

The[y] had awakened to the worth of turning them out wirelessly?

Ah, then, we might have seen as play wherein the star some box-eyed lass

Also a gay soubrette or two whose hair was all peroxideless.

Ah yes, we've seen the ballet girls, who seemed put up so girlishly,

Also the great comedians, who sprang their gags so mirthlessly,

But now we are to have a play advanced with all the science,

Will not be crossed with something else that we may see it tirelessly.

LESSONS OF THE WESTERN FLOODS

The tremendous flood losses in the valleys of the Kaw, Des Moines, and lower Missouri rivers ought to awaken the people of the west to the magnitude of the problem confronting them. The destruction of property running into tens of millions, together with the hundreds of fatalities accompanying the mad rush of waters, teaches a lesson that should not be forgotten. Though the floods wrought desolation throughout a wide territory, extending as they did from central Kansas to the Mississippi far below St. Louis, they had but one origin. Like conditions prevailed over all their different sources, widely separated though they were.

The normal rainfall over central Kansas, eastern Nebraska, and western Iowa is from 35 to 48 inches annually. During the latter days of May, one-fifth to one-fourth of this amount fell in 48 hours on a soil already saturated by spring rains. There was a heavy downpour over all the upper portions of the long two-hundred-mile slope which ends at Kansas City and the Missouri river. The result was a raging, destroying torrent when the gathered waters reached the confluence of the tributaries and rushed along the Kaw and the Des Moines. These in turn swelled the Missouri. The extent of the resulting destruction has filled the dispatches the past two weeks.

It is estimated that fully $30,000,000 will be needed to replace the ruined structures—the railway bridges, the manufactories, and dwellings—not to mention the crops destroyed or badly damaged. The west does not often have such a flood as this, but it does have floods nearly every year; these overflows alternating, apparently, with periods of drought that are far more destructive in property value, though of course not attended by the element of personal danger. Now much less than the amount of this one season's loss, spent in the conservation of the natural rainfall in the prairie region, would prevent floods. The configuration of the sharply sloping plains, while it lends itself to the rapid accumulation of a vast tide of flood water, is also favorable to its impounding. The tilling of the soil has undoubtedly done much to prevent sudden freshets, but in a country that has practically no forest area, and where yet are large expanses of original prairie sod, there must be much more perfect cultivation before the whole of the irregular precipitation can be so controlled.

A more immediate remedy is available. Beginning with the country at the foothills of the mountains, and extending through the entire arid and semi-arid belt on the eastern slope of the Rockies, the waters could be caught in reservoirs and canals in such a way that even the deluge of the past fortnight could be held, and its force distributed through many days or weeks. Furthermore, the impounded waters might be used for irrigation, thus adding to the wealth of the localities where it is most needed. This question of the control and utilization of the natural waters is now upon the country. The national irrigation bill is a promising beginning. The west is counting on much good from the experiment, particularly in the education of individual workers. It is evident that we have much to learn from India and Egypt. Indeed, the whole civilized world is now giving more attention than ever before to the problems of water storage and flood control. It is a question almost as pressing for New England, New York, and the Appalachian region as it is for the west.

In the plains the problem is less simple, because the surface is less broken than in a mountainous section. Still, the method is clear. At the head of every tributary of the Kaw, the Missouri, the Des Moines, and the other streams which cause so much of the trouble, are minor branches, reaching into "draws," or "sloughs," all contributing to the general effect. If a part of the money now devoted to the improvement of the great rivers near their mouths were to be expended near their sources, it would check the variations which prove so costly to the western towns. The work cannot be done in a day or a year. Probably the states benefited will, as they should, take the lead in the work. It means much personal effort, and the creation of a local sentiment that will make every dweller along the prairie slopes a laborer in the work of improvement. The forest-planting experiments in which the government is now engaged, and which have been begun this spring in Nebraska and will soon be started in western Kansas, should have a beneficial effect. That, however, is not enough. The west must be roused to a fuller comprehension of its needs and possibilities. The flood lesson has been costly, but, if it is taken to heart, the dear school of experience will not have been attended in vain.—(New York Evening Post.

ON FINDING A PUBLISHER

The plaintive appeal made by a young American writer, whose soul had been wrenched by his own and his friend's trials in finding publishers for their manuscripts, is still reverberating in England, as we note from the last number of the Academy, even after he confessed the bald swindle. The sensation which he meant to create by writing out the diseased imaginings of a young tragic poet, about to commit suicide because he could find no one to publish his work, has fallen flat abroad as in this country, and the revelations by the author of the fraud, despite his eloquent protestation of a good purpose, do not heighten the effect of his somewhat unique performance.

The old question of finding a publisher becomes with the publisher a question of finding an author. Bringing these two poles together and completing a circuit that will galvanize the reading public is the practical literary problem, and there may be failure on both sides. The public, too, may be unresponsive to the presence of literature. The democratic movement may have succeeded so far that the mean level to which appeal must be made for the readers of books is too low for publishers to go half way to meet the author who keeps serious standards before him. But this proposition is doubtful when we consider the appreciation not by a few critics only, who are the conservators of our literary traditions, but by the people at large for Mrs. Humphrey Ward. Smaller circles of readers eagerly await the work of authors who are as earnest as Mr. Howells and Mr. Henry James, and we should not despair, in spite of some rather ugly phenomena which make their appearance from time to time in the publishing trade.

It is true that the publisher is much guided by a consideration of what the public wants. No business-like publisher will undertake to sell what from experience he knows cannot be sold. He is not a philanthropist, even if some authors conceive that they have a great benevolent mission on earth. It is the author's function, therefore, if he desire to be an author, unless he should plan always to pay for his own plates, to find out what the public wants, which will also be in most cases what the publisher wants. To be sure, all this, as everyone of experience knows, is less simple than it seems. The public is an elastic body and also fickle. It wants different things at different seasons and at different periods, and the publisher is not always an infallible reader of the signs. New authors may expect to send their manuscripts to many publishers before they shall find one who is ready to indulge youthful ambitions. While this is because youthful ambition and genius are very often dissociated, it is not rarely because the publisher has erred in gauging popular taste. The instances of rejected books becoming very successful are too numerous for the publisher to plume himself on his unfailing judgment. Each season yields its crop, the last of the series being "Wee MacGregor," the young Scotchman whose behavior remains a puzzle to almost everyone. This particular failure to appreciate the worth of a manuscript, it is satisfying to note, is a joke upon the Englishmen, for it was not peddled about at the doors of our literary advisers.

After all, however, allowing for deterioration of public taste, the weakness of the flesh in publishers' offices, where no mistakes should ever be possible, and the great abundance of poor authors, we are of opinion with the Bookman, that under existing literary conditions no really good novel will long fail to find a publisher." It is true that "young literary genius may have to knock at many doors, but he will eventually be let in."—(Philadelphia Ledger.

OUR UNHAPPY NATIONAL DAY

America has several legal holidays which are universally commemorated, and with one exception, are a source of lasting benefit and actual enjoyment to all classes.

The Fourth of July, however, which has the distinction of being called our "National" day, might properly be termed our unhappy National day from the train of disaster which follows its observance.

It was a custom in former years for our sporty men to imbibe freely on New Year day, and it was considered the proper thing by ladies, when entertaining, to serve wine and liquors on that day. All this is changed. Common sense created a popular sentiment against this evil, and the foolish custom has been abolished, or nearly so.

Washington's birthday, Memorial day, Thanksgiving, Christmas and other holidays are each celebrated in a fitting manner.

Why then should we cling to a barbarous and unreasonable practice of so-called celebrating with frightful noises, what is chiefly to the annoyance of millions of people, and brings disaster and suffering to hundreds of families? Result of one day's questionable enjoyment in 1902 was 51 killed and 2,649 injured.

What a carnage! Many bloody battles of our civil war did not show as large a list of casualties, and in addition, a loss of property of $600,000. The havoc this year has started in early, an explosion in a torpedo factory near Cleveland, Ohio, having occurred May 17, in which 20 lives were reported lost and some 75 injured. The storekeepers who handle Fourth of July goods can alter this state of affairs if they but will, simply by not purchasing dangerous goods, such as blank cartridges and giant crackers (under their various names), viz: giants, rippers, Santiago bombs, up-to-dates, cockers, whistling bombs, etc., for these are the articles that create the most damage, and the consumers in hundreds of instances, buy in ignorance of their deadly effect.

The fireworks manufacturers sell but few goods direct to the retail trade, but supply the jobbing firms, who in turn sell to the small stores, and nearly all the wholesale grocers, confectioners, toy, notion and commission houses, distribute these dangerous explosives, so that every village and hamlet is supplied with sufficient material to burn up the town.

From early spring to July, fireworks price lists and catalogues printed in glowing colors in all the tints of the rainbow, are scattered broadcast all over the land, under the plea of patriotism, and desolation in many families is the result.

It is far from the intention of this article to criticise the time honored custom of celebrating the anniversary of our independence, but to suggest that it be done in a rational manner with music, processions, oratory and fireworks displays in the evening.

Let every person of all classes enjoy this day to such an extent that they may look forward to it with real pleasure.

Why not wipe out the objectionable features, and have it as it used to be?

The few articles mentioned are inventions of only a few years past, and are of no benefit only to the pockets of a few manufacturers.

Would not a reasonable amount of agitation diminish this destructive and obnoxious evil?—(Geo. E. Ives.

SOME POINTS FROM CALIFORNIA

Coronado Beach, San Diego, Cal., June 18.—They do business on business principles here in California, not only in the way of entertaining the Presbyterian assembly, but in every way.

So much has been written of our elegant reception and entertainment as Presbyterians, that I will simply add my amen to that, and proceed to call your attention to the practical side of California life, which I am sure will interest many of my old friends among Gazette readers.

While I enjoy the balmy air of southern California—for the climate is perfect—and admire the grand scenery—for I am a lover of nature—what most attracted my attention was the high degree of perfection to which their business methods have been brought. While labor unions are not as powerful here as in the east, we find the country districts bound together by a web of association that is simply wonderful. The orange, lemon, peach, pear, grape, olive, almond, walnut, honey and even to egg producers each have a separate association, controlled by their best men, and by thus combining, they are enabled to get much better prices for their products.

This was strikingly demonstrated to me by an association that handles eggs, the community in which it operates sell no fresh eggs, but preserve them all during the period of low prices, and do not sell any until they bring at least 30 cents a dozen; eggs in California never bring less than 12 cents a dozen, and generally go up to 35 to 40 cents during the winter. I asked the secretary if it was not difficult to get so many farmers to bring their eggs in regularly for preserving. He said most of the people preserved their eggs at home, the association furnishing the preserver, and telling them when to bring the eggs for shipment. He said: "We have intelligent people out here; they will not sell their eggs for 12 cents a dozen, when they preserve them for a cent a dozen, and by holding them four or five months get 35 cents a dozen for them. It would be as foolish for the farmer to sell his wheat for 30 cents a bushel, when he knew that by holding it four or five months he could get 75 cents."

I asked him if people could not make money in the east preserving eggs, as I would like to try it. He said they could; that he started preserving eggs in Indiana, with $10, and in seven years made $15,000; that there was no locality where people could not make 150 per cent, preserving eggs, as eggs got low in summer and high in winter everywhere, and that a person starting with even $5, would soon be rich by reinvesting the proceeds each year. I then asked him if he would sell me the formula and at what price. He said that he did not sell formulas, but that he would gladly give me one, as they always send the formula free to anyone that wrote for one, or gave them to those that called, so if any of my friends in the east want to try preserving eggs, you can get the formula with complete directions free, by addressing the Egg Producers association, Oceanside, California. The eggs keep perfectly for a year and you cannot tell them from fresh eggs, and it only costs a cent a dozen to preserve them. If you write for a formula you should inclose three or four two-cent stamps as it takes money to pay postage and printing. I am going to preserve some eggs as soon as I go home, for this is something that a minister can do without conflicting with his duties in the least. I am going to start with $10 and reinvest the proceeds for ten years and then I can buy a California home, too.

Another thing that greatly interested me was the beautiful preserved fruits of all kinds that you see here. They put it up without heating or sealing and it tastes like fruit freshly picked, it does not shrink up or get soft, as canned fruit does, and you can keep it in this fresh state for years, for a cost of about a cent a quart. Anyone can also get this formula for keeping fruit without heating or sealing, free, by addressing the California Fruit association, Carlsbad, California. (Of course inclose stamps for postage, etc.) Many of you have, no doubt, seen fruit kept in this way, at the expositions where California fruits are exhibited. It is simply grand and then so little trouble, and I cannot conceive why people in the east do not put up fruit this way. If they had to pay a big price for the formula, it would, perhaps, be more generally used, as we in the east like things that come high; but I for one never expect to have any more canned fruit about my home, when with less trouble and less cost, we can put it up cold and thus always have fresh fruit on our table.

The dairy business is a particularly good business here. Milk and butter always command a high price, while cows are not higher than in the east; butter is now retailing at 30 cents a pound, and people of moderate means, that will keep a few chickens and cows, can live nicely here in southern California.

Of course orange groves are beautiful, but it requires an artesian pocket-book, that flows a large stream, to maintain an orange grove; in fact I think irrigation of the pocketbook, fully as essential as irrigation of the orange grove.

When I return home I will write you more of California business methods, as they can teach us old land marks in the east many things we know not of.

By Right of Inheritance.

Joaquin Miller, who has recently had the pleasure of reading his own obituary, was one of the first investors in Texas oil wells. Passing the question of financial profit, these wells furnished him with at least one good story. The poet visited the Lone Star state to inspect his property, and there met a man who answered to the title "Colonel." One day, when this man and the poet were together, the talk turned to the war of secession. Miller thought his companion had taken part in that struggle, but the colonel said he had been a noncombatant. Then Miller made a bold guess aloud that the title was derived from a militia commission, but not so, nor was it a result of an appointment on the governor's staff. Neither did it come from service during the Spanish-American trouble, and it was not earned by foreign military experience.

"Ah," said Miller at last, thinking he had the mystery solved, "you commanded the Texas Rangers at one time. They were brave men, and it was an honor to lead them."

"No," said the colonel, "I never had anything to do with the Rangers."

"Well, tell me," persisted Miller, "is the title merely assumed? Have you no right to it?"

"Certainly I have a right to it, the best kind of right," replied the colonel, in an offended tone. "If you must know how I got it, I'll tell you. I inherited it."

"Inherited it!" ejaculated Miller. "From whom—your father?"

"No, sir. From Colonel James Smith, who died two years ago. I married his widow."—(New York Times.

Some New Books

"The Spoilsman"

"The Spoilsman," by Elliott Flower; L. C. Page & Co., publishers.

The author of "The Spoilsman" is so well-known through his "Policeman Flynn" that it is hardly necessary to say much in praise of this new book from the same pen. The same clear style is found here and the same large fund of humor which is always cropping out and starting a laugh.

In this book Mr. Flower takes for his theme the local politics of a large city. One can see that he has a firm grip and keen understanding of his subject and handles it without reserve.

His leading character is the conscientiously honest man who accepts the nomination for alderman because he expects the salary of the office to assist him in doing more for his children than his modest living will allow him to do. His reverses, financial and otherwise, all growing out of his election are pathetic.

The rich young man of one of the leading families who runs chiefly because "the girl he loves best" wishes him to show what an honest alderman can accomplish, fares somewhat better personally, although what good he accomplishes is minimum and his father feels the result of his son's unswerving conduct when his tax lists appear.

The up-to-date newspaper man is well done and whenever he appears on the scene the reader expects something interesting.

The saloon keeper, in whose resort "the gang" hold their conferences, has a clear but homely philosophy which evolves opinions that may not always be flattering to his guests, but they have the stamp of truth.

Mr. Flower has truly given us a very readable book and especially attractive to those interested in local politics. That is the keynote of the story.

Feathered Game.

Among the Scribners' publications for June is a unique book for sportsmen by Dwight W. Huntington, entitled "Our Feathered Game." The author's object is to describe all the game birds of the United States and to tell where and how they may be shot. With the aid of the descriptions and of the photographs, an amateur will be able to identify any bird. Chapters on Guns and Dogs and Game Clubs and Preserves emphasize the thoroughness with which the subject is discussed.

The author has shot nearly everyone of the birds about which he writes and is a recognized authority in field sports. He draws upon his personal recollections for many interesting anecdotes and instructive incidents. His book consists of 47 chapters and treats fully and entertainingly of every variety of feathered game.

"Round Anvil Rock."

In weaving a romance round a real rock and through actual events, the new story by Nancy Huston Banks has taken no great liberty with fact. "Round Anvil Rock," published by the MacMillan company, has, indeed, claimed the freedom of fiction only in drawing certain localities and incidents somewhat closer together than they were in reality. And it has done this notably in but three instances: by allowing the Wilderness road to appear nearer the Ohio river than it really was; by anticipating the establishment of the Sisters of Charity; and by disregarding the tradition that Philip Alston had gone from the region of Cedar house before the time of the story, and that he died elsewhere. These deviations are all rather slight; yet they are nevertheless essential to any faithful description of the country, the time and the people which this tale tries to describe. The Wilderness road—everywhere—came so close to the life of the whole country that no true story of the time can ever be told apart from it. The Sisters of Charity were established so early and did so much in the making of Kentucky, that a few months earlier in coming to one locality, or a few years later in reaching another, cannot make their noble work any less vitally a part of every tale of the wilderness. The influence of Philip Alston over the country in which he lived lasted so much longer than his life, and the time and manner of his death are so uncertain, that his romantic career must always remain inseparably interwoven with all the romance of southern Kentucky. For these reasons this story of nearly a hundred years ago has claimed a few of fiction's many privileges.

Mary Catherine Crowley.

"Love Thrives in War," is the third romance which Mary Catherine Crowley has written and the popularity of her stories is attested by the fact that "A Daughter of New France" went through several editions, and "The Heroine of the Strait," published a year ago, is in its ninth thousand. Miss Crowley has been actively engaged in literary work for about 12 years. She is a native of Boston, and had the good fortune to be born of scholarly stock, her father, John C. Crowley, is an alumnus of Harvard university and her mother a finely educated and accomplished woman. Miss Crowley is a graduate of the Sacred Heart convent at Manhattanville, N. Y. She has visited the principal cities of the old world, and has traveled extensively in the United States and Canada. For the last 10 years she has lived in Detroit and has made herself familiar with the early history of that region. "Love Thrives in War" has the war of 1812 for its historical background, and it is said to be the best romance this talented author has yet produced. Little, Brown & Co., Boston, are Miss Crowley's publishers.

"Discourses on War."

By William Ellery Channing. Price, 50 cents net; mailing price, 60 cents.

Channing's "Discourses on War" is the third volume in the International library, published for the International union by Messrs. Ginn & company, the earlier volumes being Bloch's "Future of War" and Charles Sumner's "Addresses on War." Channing's services in the cause of peace and better international relations were conspicuous. He was one of the founders of the Massachusetts Peace society, which was the first influential peace society in the world, and an earnest worker for the cause during his whole life. Among all men in the American pulpit, perhaps none ever waged such strenuous war against war and the military spirit among nations. He felt this spirit to be opposed to the fundamental principles of Christianity and upon this high religious ground his various discourses upon this subject were written. Six of these noble discourses, touching various and distinct aspects of the broad subject, are included in the present volume; and as in the two earlier volumes of this series, there is a careful introduction by Edwin D. Mead. The present volume is one which commands especially the attention of Christian ministers and churches having to confront the military spirit of the time and its temptations. It will have a specially warm welcome from all lovers of peace within and without the church. The volumes in this International library are furnished at a nominal cost, as part of an important campaign of education in this important field. (Ginn & company, publishers.)

"Brewster's Millions."

The success of "Brewster's Millions" has been one of the extraordinary things of the spring season. Out of many reviews only two have been unfavorable, and in the others there is a zest which shows that the critic has found something novel and refreshing. The story is written for entertainment and perhaps the fact that it is not handicapped with a theory or a problem has made it popular. It has a way, too, of making the reader wonder whether he could have improved upon Brewster's method of spending a million. To each of us it seems a much easier thing than Brewster found it.

"A Daughter of the Pit."

"A Daughter of the Pit," by Margaret Doyle Jackson, is published in England by Cassell & Co. The story is going around among Mrs. Jackson's friends that when she had finished this novel and was at work on its revision, she became so discouraged that she very nearly tore up the whole manuscript, and at last in disgust sold it to her husband for 50 cents cash. After a few days, however, she recovered from her depression and was anxious to get the story back at any price. Her husband was very considerate and returned the manuscript at an advance of only a quarter of a dollar—the same being for salvage charges, as he expressed it. After this, Mrs. Jackson soon had the story ready for the publishers.

"German Ambitions."

The Putnams announce for immediate publication in their "Question of the Day" series the authorized American edition of an anonymous English work entitled "German Ambitions as They Affect Britain and the United States of America." The author signs himself Vigilans sed Aequus.

The chapters of this book originally appeared as letters in the London Spectator, of which the editor, Mr. J. St. Loe Strachey, has contributed an introduction to the work now published in book form.

"Civil War Romance."

Professor Albert Bushnell Hart devotes the fourth and final volume of his Source Readers of American History to the "Romance of the Civil War." He has undertaken to show the conditions and experiences of the civil war period, with the idea of giving his young readers a suitable and entertaining picture of the brighter side of war, while making clear the loss, sacrifice and suffering which war always entails. Most of the book deals with army life and the part played by the people at home; but there are also contemporary accounts of slave life and the underground railroad, passages about soldiers and sailors, and many good poems and songs from both sides. The volume is profusely illustrated. Its publication is an interesting and important event in educational literature, but its readers, like those of the former volumes, will by no means be confined to the schools. The MAGAZINES

Women to Purify Politics.

Harper's Weekly for June 6 contains the third of a series of articles on "Ideals of American Womanhood," now appearing in that journal. It is a suggestive study of woman's proper place in politics, and is contributed by Miss Mary Garrett Hay, organizer of the National Women's Suffrage association. Miss Hay makes a strong plea for the recognition of the rights of her sex to take equal part with the men in the political life of the country. Women, she thinks, are destined to purify American politics, because "when the American woman in her political endeavors strives to establish ideals of citizenship she does so without the purpose of gratifying personal ambition." Moreover, she says, "so long as women are ruled out of the body politic, morality will never be fully represented."

To the Graduate.

It is a trite saying that advice is cheap, but oftentimes a helpful suggestion may aid one to a happier decision than might otherwise be obtained, so we venture to make a suggestion to the graduates of the year who will have their way to make in the world. You may probably think,

"The world's mine oyster,
Which I with sword will open."

But unless you've had lessons in fencing you may get hurt and most likely not get at the oyster.

As the tendency of the times is to specialize, so the young man or woman who has studied and trained for a specific business is better equipped for life than those who have no definite way except to make a living. There are innumerable occupations in which the ambitious boy or girl can make a living, but with only an elementary schooling it is seldom that one is successful in the so-called higher pursuits. Therefore, if you have only a grammar school certificate, do not engage in a line of work where you will have to compete with those who have had better or special education.

Generally speaking, girls with only a grammar school education succeed best in lines where trained mental faculties are not the first requirements, as in dressmaking, millinery, clerking or housekeeping. The achievement of success in these lines is almost invariably due to the head of the department, by whose experience and business sagacity the sayings profits, and while there are good and well-paid bookkeepers and stenographers, these vocations are becoming so overcrowded that salaries are necessarily being lowered.

Manual training is such a boon to the youth of today we wish it might be added to the curriculum of every school in the land, for a trained hand guided by a trained mind will win its owner a place of honor in the world.

Greatly begin; though thou have time
But for a line, be that sublime—
Not failure, but low aim, is crime.
—"The Pilgrim" for June.

A Good Word For Newspapers.

"I never knew a man who was hurt by newspaper publications except men who should have been hurt," was the just comment made by Chief Judge Fitzsimmons of the New York city court in an interview with reference to the absurd libel law recently put upon the statute books of Pennsylvania. "I believe," added Judge Fitzsimmons, "that one reason why our nation has risen is that our public men have been subject to criticism. Such watchful criticism tends to make public servants careful, and where they do their duty thoroughly they should acquit themselves satisfactorily." In the judge's opinion, all questions of libel and slander may be safely left to the ordinary juries and courts of nation under the general law applying to such offenses, no special and extraordinary statute, such as that enacted in Pennsylvania, being needed. This is undoubtedly the common-sense view of the situation. It is altogether too late in the day for attempts to muzzle the freedom of the press, and laws framed for that purpose are dead as soon as born. In Russia and Turkey they can do such things, but not in America.—(Leslie's Weekly.

Living by the Watch.

In an article in the current Harper's Weekly entitled "Where Minutes Count," Mr. Franklin Matthews writes of the modern man of affairs and his continual effort to crowd as much activity as possible into the least time. Mr. Matthews tells of a physician for whom the rush of modern life proved fatal: "He had every minute of the day scheduled beforehand for his work. He was especially strong in consultations. Every patient who called to see him had the time fixed in advance, with just so many minutes set apart for looking him over. The physician calculated to the second how long it took to get people into his office and how long it took to get them out. He had his secretary calculate how long it would take his carriage to reach a certain place, how long he would stay there, and the exact minute he would reach the next place, and so on. He did his reading—for he was always making addresses and writing papers, being a high official of the university the e—in his carriage. He dictated his papers to his secretary as he drove from place to place, and he even went so far as to have his meals served sometimes in his carriage. He died comparatively young, he burned out, because he never took any time for play, never seemed to have any leisure, and never did have any. That's where he made his mistake. He took advantage of every labor-saving device in those days, but he did it only to do all the more work."

The Danger of Stage Life.

Miss Annie Russell, in an article on "The Actress," in the current Harper's Weekly, utters a warning to the members of her profession. The real danger to character in the life of the actor or actress, she says, lies in the desire for emotional experiences as a supposed help in their art. "If we are not content," she says, "to wait until they come into our lives, as they inevitably will, we risk falling into a habit of emotional exaggeration, affection, and insincerity, that comes up like rank weeds, choking out the true growth of our natures, and making us creatures of temperament without mind." This is the fourth in the series of articles now appearing in Harper's Weekly on "Ideals of American Womanhood."

Farming in the City.

Eight hundred Philadelphia families are now earning a portion of their livelihood—in some cases all of it—by the cultivation of vacant city lots, says a writer in the current Harper's Weekly. At the close of last season nearly 200 acres, divided into small lots, were being cultivated, the number of beneficiaries being 3,775. The product, valued at $50,000, was grown at a cost of less than $6,000 to the association which instituted the scheme. The enterprise demonstrates that permission to cultivate land in the neighborhood of great cities can be made a source of income to thousands who, though willing to work, are unable, by reason of physical infirmities or advanced age, to compete with those who are younger and stronger.

Goldwin Smith's Paper.

Goldwin Smith, the dean of living historical writers, contributes to the June number of the Atlantic Monthly an important paper on "The Cult of Napoleon." After surveying the recent flood of Napoleonic literature and the growing disposition of many to consider that "Man of Fate" as perhaps the greatest genius of the world, Mr. Smith assumes the role of devil's advocate, and makes a vigorous arraignment of Napoleon's ability, as well as of his morality. Mr. Smith's examination of what he calls Napoleon's limitations affords much suggestive reading. As he says:

"Napoleon's sanguine temperament, sustained by his marvelous physique, led him to dare immense risks. So long as the resistance was feeble and spiritless the results of his adventures were immense and splendid, an Austerlitz or a Jena. But when the spirit of nations had been roused by insufferable oppression and insult, the results were no longer the same."

Marian Warner Wildman, whose "Not His the Sinner" will be one of the verse features of the July Century, won the Century's 1898 prize of $250 for the best metrical writing submitted that year by any college graduate of 1897. Miss Wildman is an alumna of Western Reserve university, and her present residence is Norwalk, Ohio.

The July Century will have for its frontispiece a new wood-engraving by Timothy Cole, the Meniñas by Velasquez. The original hangs in the Salon de Velasquez of the Prado Museum in Madrid, and Timothy Cole's reproduction, said to be one of his finest blocks, will be the seventh in the Century's series of Old Spanish Masters.

One Million Gallons of Milk Daily For New York.

The story of how and where New York gets its daily supply of a million gallons of milk is told in a very clever illustrated article in the current issue of Leslie's Weekly. The illustrations of the subject constitute a double page. This is one of a number of interesting contributions, including one on the "Pathos and Pleasure of Life on a Battleship," by T. Dart Walker, with a full page of illustrations; "A Defense of Football," by Charles Dudley Daly, formerly of Harvard and afterward of the West Point eleven; "An American Girl's Story of 'How Paris Snubbed King Edward,'" by Eleanor Franklin; a charming college story, "The Hazing of a Freshman," by William Armstrong; and an article on the recent effort of wealthy women in New York to teach the masses good home-cooking. The illustrations of the president's Pacific trip, of the trial races of the cup-defender Reliance, of the annual intercollegiate college games and of the daily life of a freshman at a woman's college, are all exceedingly interesting. The amateur prize photographic page, literary page, and Jasper's Hints to Money-makers are all fully up to the high standard of this oldest illustrated weekly in the United States.

Wilshire's Magazine.

The unearthing of the general corruption in the postoffice department affords H. Gaylord Wilshire a promptly-seized opportunity to tell, in the June number of Wilshire's Magazine, the story of his practical banishment to Canada by the postoffice officials, showing clearly that the exclusion of his journal from the United States mails was merely a part of the general blackmailing scheme of which the public is now being made aware. This number has also a discussion of poetry and the sonnet, by Joel Benton, introducing some of the stately and intimately idealistic sonnets of Edmond Holmes and the more delicately tender and graceful sonnets of Petrarch. May Wood Simons gives the results of much careful research and thought in an able article on "The Evolution of Tools." J. G. Phelps Stokes, the young millionaire who is devoting his life to the cause of the downtrodden and oppressed of earth and whose efforts to secure the passage of a stringent child-labor law through the New York legislature a few weeks ago were signally successful, contributes an article on "Child Labor vs. Education." "A Guess on the Merger Decision," by Margaret Haile, gives an original explanation of the causes of that unexpected decision, drawn from a bird's-eye view of the financial situation and the labor world. Several choice poems and numerous illustrations add to the attractiveness of this unusually good number.

LITERARY NOTES

John D. Barry, the well-known dramatic critic, whose novel of American theatrical life, "A Daughter of Thespis," has made a success with actors, critics and the reading public, has sold the English rights to Chapman and Hall. The book will appear in London next month.

John Muir, author of "Our National Parks," was just the man to show off the Yosemite park to President Roosevelt. Directly after leaving the president Mr. Muir started for the east and he has just left Boston for Siberia to accompany Professor Charles S. Sargent, author of "The Silva of North America," on an extended expedition for the study of flora and fauna of northwestern Asia.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. report second editions of "Trent's Trust," by Bret Harte and of "Cap'n Simeon's Store," by George S. Wasson.

Longmans, Green & Co. have nearly ready a drama in three acts, entitled "Mors et Victoria," the scene of which is laid in France shortly after the massacre of St. Bartholomew. The heroine is maid of honor to Margaret of Navarre. Persecuted at the court by the attentions of the Duke of Guise, she flees to her father's castle to place herself under his protection and that of her lover. But her lover is a Hugenot, and when the Duke of Guise, insolently following the girl, fills the village with his Catholic soldiery, the young man declines to be guided by prudence, even when urged by his mistress, and places himself at the head of the little band of Huguenots who refuse the mass and sing their quaint old songs of worship. Though the book is to appear without the author's name, the author modestly remaining anonymous, it is clearly the work of a skilled and practiced writer, and the drama, both as a poem and a play, is well worth serious attention.

"Robert Morris, Patriot and Financier," is the title finally selected for the forthcoming biography by Ellis Paxson Oberholtzer. The Macmillan company announce the volume for publication during June or July. There will be two portraits of Morris and one of his wife, besides other illustrations.

Mr. Thomas Nelson Page's new novel, "Gordon Keith," is already the great success of the season. The first edition of 50,000 went so quickly that the second edition was on the press about the time the book was published. The way it is selling is shown by the fact that one big firm put in its second order of 5,000 copies three days after the novel was published.

Bits of Philosophy From "The Substitute."

"It's plumb foolishness to try to lay down rules for other folks to live by."

"A man cayn't never make a woman believe he's bad by tellin' her he is. Sly more a he can make her believe he's good by the same process."

"When I was young it was the fashion to bleed folks for different complaints, but they say now that it was a big mistake; the doctors still bleed, but they lance the pocket instead of the veins."

"All the king's hosses cayn't pull a woman from the man she respects an' is sorry for at the same time."

"If you set down on a board with a tack in it, the harder you set the more tack you git, an' that's the way with life. It's full o' tacks, an' don't you forget it."

"The whole thing's a riddle to me. God evidently never intended mortal men to understand a woman, an' when a woman understands a man she's through with 'im."

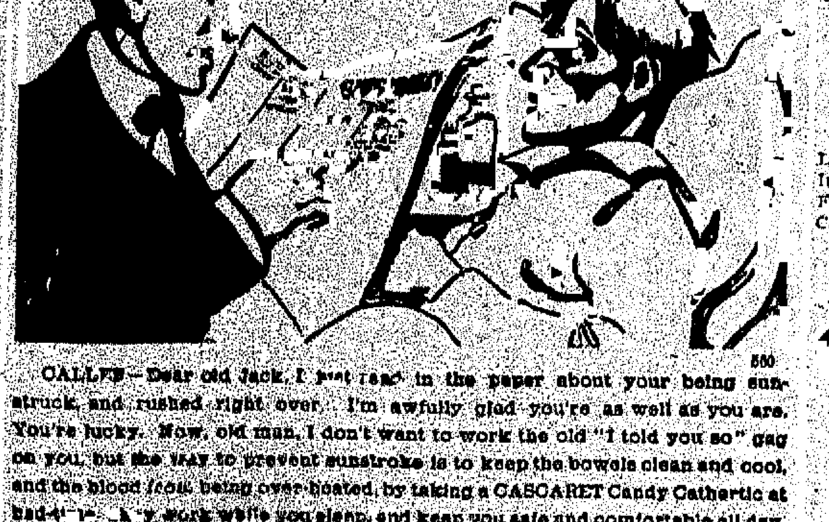

"A woman knows a woman no matter how different they've been raised."

"Nothin' ain't smooth in this world, an' why should human life be an exception?"

"Bein' afeard you hain't as good as other folks is the biggest drawback on earth."

ELLIOTT FLOWER,
Author of "The Spoilsman."

CALLER—Dear old Jack, I just read in the paper about your being sunstruck, and rushed right over. I'm awfully glad you're as well as you are. You're lucky. Now, old man, I don't want to work the old "I told you so" gag on you, but the way to prevent sunstroke is to keep the bowels clean and cool, and the blood from being over-heated, by taking a CASCARET Candy Cathartic at bed-time. It works while you sleep, and keep you safe and comfortable all day. 560

OPENING OF HIAWATHA GARDENS WILL OCCUR ON NEXT THURSDAY

Manager Newcomb of the Hiawatha Park Opera company, Manitou, Colo., announces that the inital performance of the regular summer season of that organization will occur next Thursday evening, June 25, the company presenting the ever-popular Gilbertian opera, "The Mikado."

The company will consist of the following well-known artists:

Miss Emma Abbott De Bold, prima donna, formerly of the Castle Square and Boston Ideal opera companies.

Mr. E. L. Graves, comedian, who has long been a favorite with eastern audiences, and who began his professional career with the original production of "Pinafore." Mr. Graves recently closed a successful season in Chicago at the Garrick theater, at the head of his own company, and is sure to become popular.

Mr. Faithful Pearce, leading tenor; two years R. C. M., London; three years R. A. M., London, with Randegger; two years in Milan, Italy, with Senor Minotti. Mr. Pearce is a singer of wide repute throughout Europe, and has often appeared before royalty. Speaking of his work at Intra, Lake Maggiore, Italy, La Vedetta says: "Signor Pearce, an English tenor, only arrived in Italy a few months since, was applauded very much for his pure intonation and expression in singing." Other papers throughout the continent are equally lavish in their praises.

Mr. O. L. Jeancon, leading barytone, late of the Boston Ideal Opera company, is not only well known as a singer and actor of reputation but also for his ability as stage director. Mr. Jeancon will direct all this season's productions.

Miss Bernyce Childs, formerly of the Alice Neilson and Anna Held companies, will alternate in the soubrette roles with Miss Grace Baird, late of the Beggar Prince Opera company.

Miss Marie Dickey, leading contralto, who was a great favorite with the Davidson Opera company of Milwaukee.

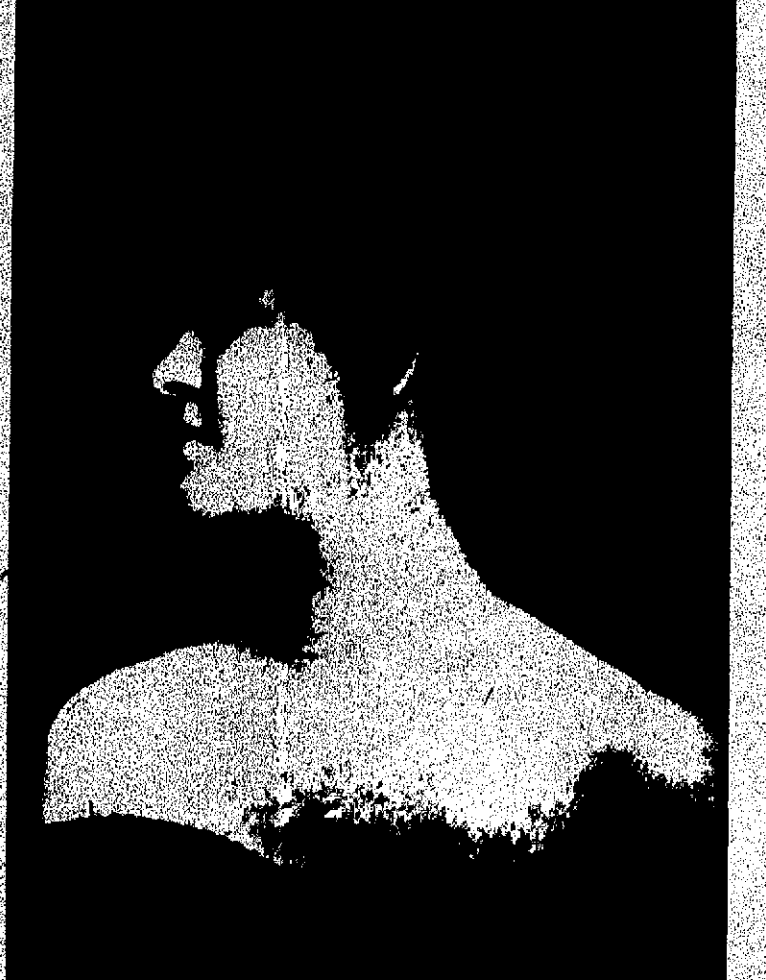

C. Eddie Morton, leading bass, of the Boston and Metropolitan Opera company, who comes from Chicago, where he closed recently, heading the Graves and Morton Comic Opera company.

Other members of the company, including the chorus, have been selected with especial reference to their capability and appearance.

On account of opening so late in the week, "The Mikado" will be held over the week following. After that there will be a change of bill weekly, presenting the standard light operas and one or two of the grand operas.

MISS EMMA DE BOLD, PRIMA DONNA.

MISS MARIE F. DICKEY, CONTRALTO.

FAITHFUL PEARCE, LEADING TENOR.

It is the intention of the management to make Hiawatha park a resort for people of refined tastes and to cater especially to ladies and children; and at all times the best of order will be maintained.

A large stage and dressing rooms have been erected which contain all the modern improvements and facilities for giving a finished performance. Scenery and costumes are new.

The auditorium is so arranged that it can be either open or closed, and in case of storm, patrons will find no inconvenience from the weather. In fact, the entire park and buildings have been arranged with the idea of making this resort a place of amusement that will appeal to all who like an afternoon or evening of good music amid charming surroundings.

Refreshments of all kinds will be served in the cafe, various summer houses or anywhere patrons may select except in the auditorium during performances.

For the present, matinees will be given Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays, but in a week or two they will be given daily.

Popular prices will prevail—matinees all seats 25c; evenings, 25c and 50c.

Seat reservations can be made one week in advance at Robinson Drug company, Colorado Springs, and Wm. J. Lennon Drug company, Manitou.

Amelia Bingham Will Close Theatrical Season on Tuesday

Miss Amelia Bingham's forthcoming appearances here are certain to arouse the keen interest of patrons of the drama, for, although much has been heard of the actress-manager, this city has not been visited by her since her attainment of that title. Miss Bingham's engagement is limited to one night next Tuesday evening at the opera house, when she will present Clyde Fitch's famous play, "The Climbers." The production is interesting, not alone because it is the most notable contribution to stage literature from our best known native playwright, but also because it serves to place Miss Bingham in the foremost rank of theatrical producers. As produced in New York at the Bijou theater, it ran for six months, gaining popularity with all people because of its universal appeal; although "The Climbers" is largely satyrical, presenting, as it does, effectively drawn pictures of New York social life, it has a dominant heart interest that centers about a married woman who learns at the death of her father that her husband is involved in dishonest money dealings. Assistance is lent him by his lifelong friend. The love of the wife, whose husband would have killed the regard of any woman by his contemptible rascality, for this admirable friend, is handled by Mr. Fitch with good taste and skill.

The members of a frivolous set in society furnish much ingeniously diverting comedy through their efforts to advance the social ambitions of a parvenue and her daughter.

Miss Bingham's revival of this play is characterized by the usual excellence in cast, scenic investiture and costumes. The dressing of the women throughout the play is notable, Miss Bingham wearing handsome frocks by Paquin and Worth. Her incomparable dramatic company includes Wilton Lackaye, W. L. Abingdon, James Carew, Ernest Lawford, George Spink, Karl St. Aubyn, Bijou Fernandez, Frances Ring, Adelyn Wesley, Maude Turner Gordon, Helene Lackaye, Georgia Cross and Lillian Wright, many of whom were concerned in the original production of "The Climbers."

The sale of seats and boxes is now on at the box office of the theater.

"It was just the morning for a scent—no wind to blow it away, no water to wash it out, and just damp enough to make it cling. There was a field of 40, all keen men and good riders.

"When they came to Black Hanger the field took their positions along the cover side wherever they thought that they were most likely to get a good start. Young Wat Danbury knew the country like the palm of his hand, so he made for a place where several drives intersected, and there he waited. He had a feeling that the faster and the further he galloped the better he would be. His mare, too, was in the height of fettle and one of the fastest goers in the country. Wat was a splendid lightweight rider, and the mare was a powerful creature, all quarters and shoulders, fit to carry a life guardsman. It was a well-trained pack, and there was not so much as a whine to tell you that 40 hounds were working all round you.

And suddenly there came one long-drawn yell from one of them, and it was taken up by another and another until within a few seconds the whole pack was giving tongue together and running on a hot scent. Danbury saw them stream across one of the drives and disappear upon the other side, and an instant later the three red coats of the hunt servants flashed after them upon the same line. Right through the wood they went in a bee-line, galloping with their faces brushed by their horses' manes as they stooped under the branches. It's ugly going, as you know, but you can take a risk when you catch an occasional glimpse of the pack running with a breast-high scent, so in and out they dodged, until the wood began to thin at the edges, and they found themselves in the long bottom where the river runs. It is clear going there upon grassland, and the hounds were running very strong about 200 yards ahead, keeping parallel with the stream. Danbury, with the hunt servants, had a clear lead, and they never lost it. Two of the field got on terms with them: Parson Geddes, on a big seventeen-hand bay, and Squire Foley, who rode as a featherweight, and made his hunters out of cast thoroughbreds from the Newmarket sales, but the others never had a look-in from start to finish, for there was no check and no pulling, and it was clear cross-country racing from start to finish. If you had drawn a line right across the map with a pencil you couldn't go straighter than that fox, a heading for the South Downs and the sea, and the hounds ran as surely as if they were to view, and yet from the beginning no one ever saw the fox.

"There were six of them in the front row. Parson Geddes, Squire Foley, the huntsman, two whips and Wat Danbury, who had forgotten all about his head and the doctor by this time. One of the whips dropped back as some of the hounds tailed off, and that brought them down to five. Then Foley's thoroughbred strained herself and he had to take a back seat. But the other four were still going strong, and they did four or five miles down the river flat at a rasping pace. By the time they came to the bridge the whole field was out of sight and these four had the hunt to themselves.

"The fox had crossed the bridge—for foxes do not care to swim a chilly river any more than humans do—and from that point he had streaked away southward. It is broken country, rolling heath, down one slope and up another. This sort of switch-back work is killing work for a big, long-striding hunter such as one wants in Midlands. Anyhow, it was too much for Parson Geddes' seventeen-hand bay, and, though he tried the Irish trick—for he was a rare keen sportsman—of running up the hills by his horse's head, it was all to no use, and he had to give it up.

"The country got worse and worse, and the hills were steeper and more thickly covered in heather and bracken. The horses were over their hocks all the time, and the place was pitted with rabbit holes. As they raced down one slope, the hounds were always flowing up the opposite one, and never a glimpse did they get of the fox, although they knew very well that he must be only a very short way ahead for the scent to lie so strong. And then Wat Danbury heard a crash and a thud at his elbow, and looking round he saw a pair of white cords and top-boots kicking out of a tussock of brambles. The whip's horse had stumbled, and the whip was out of the running. Danbury and the huntsman eased down, and then, seeing the man staggering to his feet all right, they turned and settled into their saddles once more.

"There was a pasture country beyond the heather slopes, and for several miles the two riders were either losing ground as they fumbled with their crop-handles at the hasps of gates or gaining it again as they galloped over the fields. Then they were down on a hard lane, where they had to slacken their pace, and through a farm where a man came shouting excitedly after them, but they had no time to stop and listen to him, for the hounds were on some plow land, only two fields ahead. It was sloping upward, that plowland, and the horses were over their fetlocks in the red, soft soil. When they reached the top they were blowing badly, but a grand valley sloped before them, leading up to the open country of the South Downs. Between, there lay a belt of pine woods, into which the hounds were streaming, running now in a long, straggling line and shedding one here and one there as they ran. But half the pack were still going well, though the pace and distance had both been tremendous—two clear hours now without a check.

"There was a drive through the pine wood—one of those green, slightly rutted drives where a horse can get the last yard out of itself, for the ground is hard enough to give him clean going and yet springy enough to help him. Wat Danbury got alongside of the huntsman and they galloped together with their stirrup-irons touching and the hounds within a hundred yards of them.

"'We have it all to ourselves,' said he. 'It's the fastest run I ever had in my life.'

"'And the fastest that ever I had, that means more,' said the old huntsman. 'But what licks me is that we've never 'ad a look at the beast. It must leave an amazin' scent be'ind 'im when these 'ounds can follow 'im like this, and yet none of us have seen 'im when we've 'ad a clear, all mile view in front of us.'

"They had followed the hounds on to one of the side tracks which led out of the main drive, and that divided into a smaller track still, where the branches switched across their faces as they went, and there was barely room for one horse at a time. Wat Danbury took the lead, and he heard the huntsman's horse thumping along heavily behind him, while his own mare was going with less spring than when she had started. And then he looked up and there was a heavy wooden stile at the end of the narrow track, with a lane of stiff young saplings leading down to it, which was far too thick to break through. The hounds were running clean upon the grassland on the other side, and you were bound either to get over that stile or lose a bit of them, for the pace was too hot to let you go round.

"Well, Wat Danbury was not the lad to flinch, and at it he went full split, like a man who means what he is doing. She rose gallantly to it, rapped it hard with her front hoof, shook him on to her withers, recovered herself, and was over. Wat had hardly got back into his saddle when there was a clatter behind him like the fall of a woodstack, and there was the top bar in splinters, the horse on its belly, and the huntsman on hands and knees half a dozen yards in front of him. Wat pulled up for an instant, for the fall was a smasher, but he saw old Joe spring to his feet and get to his horse's bridle. The horse staggered up, but the moment it put one foot in front of it Wat saw that it was hopelessly lame—a slipped shoulder and a six-weeks job. Joe was shouting to him not to lose the hounds, so off he went again, the one solitary survivor of the whole hunt.

"The pack, or what was left of them, had got a bit ahead during this time, but he had a clear view of them on the down-land. There were two miles over the green shoulder of a hill, a rattle down a stony, deep-rutted country lane, a jump over a five-foot brook, a cut through a hazel copse, a couple of gates to open, and then the green, unbroken Downs beyond.

"'Well,' said Wat Danbury to himself, 'I'll see this fox run into or I shall see it drowned, for it's all clear going now between this and the chalk cliffs which line the sea.'

"Danbury was galloping hard over the short, springy turf, when he came over the lip of a little hollow, and there was a dark clump of wood lying in front of and beneath him. There was only a dozen hounds still running, and they were just disappearing among the trees. The sunlight was shining straight upon the long, olive-green slopes which curved down toward the wood, and Danbury, who had the eyes of a hawk, swept them over this great expanse; but there was nothing moving upon it. Either the fox must have gone to ground in the wood or the hounds' noses must be at his very brush. A few minutes afterward Danbury was galloping into the firwood.

"The wood was very closely planted, and so dim that he could hardly see to right or to left out of the narrow path down which he was riding. A kind of chill suddenly struck Wat Danbury, and it rushed through his mind that there had been some very singular points about this run—its length and its straightness, and the fact that from the first find no one had ever caught a glimpse of the creature. Some silly talk which had been going round the country about the king of foxes—a sort of demon fox, so fast that it could outrun any pack and so fierce that they could do nothing with it if they overtook it—suddenly came back into his mind. The nervousness which had been on him in the morning and which he had hoped that he had shaken off swept over him again in an overpowering wave. He would have given ten pounds now to have had Joe Clarke's homely face beside him. And then, just at that moment, there broke out from the thickest part of the wood the most frantic hullabaloo that ever he had heard in his life. The hounds had run into their fox.

"Wat Danbury tried to force his mare through the trees to the place where all this hideous screaming and howling came from, but the wood was so thick that it was impossible to ride it. He sprang off, therefore, left the mare standing, and broke his way through as best he could, with his hunting lash ready over his shoulder. But as he ran forward he felt his flesh go cold and creepy all over. He had heard hounds run into foxes many times before, but he had never heard such sounds as these. They were not the cries of triumph, but of fear. Every now and then came a shrill cry of mortal agony. Holding his breath, he ran on until he broke through the interlacing branches and found himself in a little clearing.

"The hounds were standing in a half-circle round a bramble patch with their backs bristling and their jaws gaping. In front of the brambles lay one of them with his throat torn out. Wat came running out into the clearing, and at the sight of him the hounds took heart again and one of them sprang with a growl into the bushes. At the same instant a creature the size of a donkey jumped on to its feet, a huge gray head, with monstrous glistening fangs and tapering fox jaws, shot out from among the branches, and the hound was thrown several feet into the air and fell howling among the cover. Then there was a clashing snap like a rat trap closing and the howls sharpened into a scream and then were still.

"Danbury had been on the lookout for symptoms all day, and now he had found them. He looked once more at the thicket, saw a pair of savage, red eyes fixed upon him, and fairly took to his heels. It might only be a passing delusion, or it might be the permanent mania of which the doctor had spoken, but, anyhow, the thing to do was to get back to bed and to quiet, and to hope for the best. He sprang upon his mare, galloped her madly over the downs and only stopped when he found himself at a country station. There he left his mare at the inn, and made back for home as quickly as steam would take him. It was evening before he got there, shivering with apprehension and seeing those red eyes and savage teeth at every turn. He went straight to bed and sent for Dr. Middleton.

"'I've got 'em, doctor,' said he. 'It came about exactly as you said—strange creatures, optical delusions and everything. All I ask you now is to save my reason.'

"The doctor listened to his story, and was shocked as he heard it.

"'It appears to be a very clear case,' said he. 'This must be a lesson to you for life.'

"'Never a drop again if I only come safely through this,' cried Wat Danbury.

"'Well, my dear boy, if you stick to that it may prove a blessing in disguise. You see, it is not as if there was only one delusion. There have been several. The dead dogs, for example, must have been one as well as the creature in the bush.'

"'I saw it all as clearly as I see you.'

"'One of the characteristics of this form of delirium is that what you see is even clearer than reality. I was wondering whether the whole run was not a delusion also.'

"Wat Danbury pointed to his hunting boots still lying upon the floor, flecked with the splashings of two counties.

"'Hum! That looks very real, certainly. No doubt, in your weak state, you over-exerted yourself and so brought this attack upon yourself. Well, our treatment is clear. You will take the soothing mixture which I will send to you and we shall put two leeches upon your temples tonight.'

"So Wat Danbury spent the night in tossing about and reflecting what a sensitive thing this machinery of ours is and how very foolish it is to play tricks with what is so easily put out of gear and so difficult to mend. So he lay, tossing and still repentant, when the door flew open in the morning and in rushed the doctor with a newspaper crumpled up in his hand.

"'My dear boy,' he cried, 'I owe you a thousand apologies. You're the most libeled lad and I the greatest numbskull in the county. Listen to this!' And he sat down upon the side of the bed and began to read.

"The paragraph was headed, 'Disaster to the Ascombe Hounds,' and it went on to say that four of the hounds, shockingly torn and mangled, had been found in Winton Fir Wood, upon the South Downs, although the cause of their extraordinary injuries was still unknown. 'So you see,' said the doctor, 'that I was wrong when I put the dead hounds among the delusions.'

"'But the cause?' cried Wat.

"'Well, I think we may guess the cause from an item which has been inserted just as the paper went to press. "Late last night Mr. Brown of Smith's farm, to the east of Hastings, perceived what he imagined to be an enormous dog worrying one of his sheep. He shot the creature, which proves to be a gray Siberian wolf. It is supposed to have escaped from some traveling menagerie."'

"That's the story, gentlemen, and Wat Danbury stuck to his good resolutions, for he never touched anything stronger than lime juice—at least, he hadn't before he left this part of the country, five years ago next Lady day."

Free Medical Advice to Women.

Every sick and ailing woman,
Every young girl who suffers monthly,
Every woman who is approaching maternity,
Every woman who feels that life is a burden,
Every woman who has tried all other means to regain health without success,
Every woman who is going through that critical time — the change of life — is invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., in regard to her trouble, and the most expert advice telling exactly how to obtain a CURE will be sent absolutely free of cost.

The one thing that qualifies a person to give advice on any subject is experience — experience creates knowledge.

No other person has so wide an experience with female ills nor such a record of success as Mrs. Pinkham has had.

Over a hundred thousand cases come before her each year. Some personally, others by mail. And this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day.

Twenty years of constant success — think of the knowledge thus gained! Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman with such an experience, especially when it is free.

Mrs. Hayes, of Boston, wrote to Mrs. Pinkham when she was in great trouble. Her letter shows the result. There are actually thousands of such letters in Mrs. Pinkham's possession.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I have been under doctors' treatment for female troubles for some time, but without any relief. They now tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, I cannot wear my clothes with any comfort. Womb is dreadfully swollen, and I have had flowing spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor, given in your little book, accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice." — MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Boston), Roxbury, Mass.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: — I wrote to you describing my symptoms, and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully for several months, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, together with your advice, carefully followed, entirely expelled the tumor, and strengthened the whole system. I can walk miles now.

"Your Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors, or any female trouble, to write you for advice, and give it a faithful trial." — MRS. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Boston), Roxbury, Mass.

Mrs. Hayes will gladly answer any and all letters that may be addressed to her asking about her illness, and how Mrs. Pinkham helped her.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letter and signature of above testimonial, which will prove its absolute genuineness.

Boy Gave Mother Away.

When Mrs. Dean went out to see if the cherries were ripe enough for picking she found one of her neighbor's children perched aloft in the tree, not only helping himself, but also filling a pail with the fruit. She called him down, and was about to administer a stern reproof, when his mother came hurrying over to apologize. "I try every means to keep Louis out of that tree," she said, "but he's bound to get into it. I shall punish him severely."

Much appeased, Mrs. Dean was about to offer her neighbor some of the cherries, when the little boy tugged at her arm.

"Say, Missus Dean," he said, "do you know last year mother had to boost me into that tree, but now I'm so big I can climb into it myself."—(Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Society Folk Will Wait for Warm Weather

AT THIS time a year ago the people who had decided to stay in town for the summer were not quite sure they would have entire comfort in doing so, and were very busy with preparations that would make the impending warm weather as little noticeable as possible. Even then they were spending as much time as possible in the cool corners of their verandas and exchanging recipes for novel iced beverages. So far this summer everything is very different. The porches have not, with but few exceptions, been given their warm-weather trimmings of wicker chairs, couches, hammocks and awnings. The palms have been put out with gingerly hands and a porch party has not yet been suggested. All of which dilatoriness might be laid directly at the door of a certain something, which to mention would argue a dearth of conversational material. No reports have come from the daring folk who have already gone to their cottages in the mountains. Perhaps they are enjoying the necessity of putting to use the huge fireplaces that adorn all truly artistic summer cottages.

Except for a few weddings and a few dinners and a still fewer luncheons the week in Colorado Springs society has been quiet.

One of the most important marriages of the coming week is that of Miss Ehrich to Professor Wyckoff, which will take place in New York city on June 25.

Dinners—Luncheons

Miss Florence Bacon entertained at dinner last Wednesday in honor of Miss Blanche Leuchtenberger and Mr. Oliver Schlimmer, whose wedding will occur next Wednesday, June 24. The decorations were green and white.

Miss Matlock and Miss Durkee entertained at a progressive luncheon Friday evening, June 19, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bowers, 724 N. Nevada ave. During the progressive lunch Miss Ball gave two readings, Miss Strom an instrumental solo and Miss Helen Robertson, Miss Hawkenson of McPherson, Kas., and Miss Thornton sang several vocal selections. Those present were Miss Zimmeron, Miss May, Miss Hawkenson, Miss Ball, Miss Southerland, Miss Herman, Miss Carr, Miss Brown, Miss Bernard, Miss Strom, Misses Pearl and Helen Robertson, Messrs. Rogers, Doling, Clotworthy, Sims, Ross, Thornton, Junson, Perry, Tracy, Miller, Booth, Elijah and Lawrence Kent.

Mr. William Bachelder entertained at luncheon last Monday at 1 o'clock, Mr. W. W. Price, Mr. Leslie Carlton and Dr. John Talpy.

Dr. Nichols entertained at dinner Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. Van Briggle, Mr. and Mrs. Wray and Miss Lucy Hayes.

Miss Pearl Engle was the charming hostess at a dinner given Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Loescher of Muskegon, Mich., who are visiting Colorado Springs on their honeymoon. Miss Engle's other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Tiner of Chicago, Miss Helen Engle, Miss Pearl Engle, Mr. Will Powers and Mr. George Gardner, Jr. The decorations were pink and white. After a most delightful course dinner was served the party was entertained at the Casino.

Two exceedingly pretty luncheons were given this week, Wednesday and Thursday by Mrs. Henry T. Lowe, at her home on N. Cascade avenue in honor of Miss Sousley, who is her guest. On Wednesday Mrs. Lowe's guests were Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Curtin, Mrs. Heming, Miss Howbert, Miss Potter, Mrs. Horace Pastorius, Mrs. Francis Pastorius and Mrs. Henry Hoagland. For Thursday the guests were Mrs. Hunt, Mrs. Wandell, Mrs. Hamlin, Mrs. Kyle and Mrs. Rutt. The decorations both days were pink and white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Donaldson entertained Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Umstatter of Pittsburg at dinner Monday night. Mr. Umstatter is a very prominent retired banker and capitalist of Pittsburg. Mr. and Mrs. Umstatter left for the east Friday night.

Mrs. Henry W. Hoagland was the charming hostess of an informal luncheon last Thursday and also one on Friday, given in honor of Mrs. Horace Pastorius. Their beautiful home on North Nevada avenue was prettily decorated with flowers of the season.

Mrs. Hoagland's guests for Thursday were Mrs. Curtin, Mrs. Hand, Mrs. Howbert, Mrs. Potter, Miss Clark, Mrs. Francis Pastorius, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Howard Pastorius.

For Friday Mrs. Hoagland's guests were Mrs. Hodge, Mrs. Tainy, Mrs. Lowe, Miss Atkinson, Mrs. Rutt, Mrs. Hamlin, Miss Boas and Mrs. Henry W. Hoagland.

Mrs. F. C. Gardiner gave a delightful luncheon last Friday, at which Miss Potter, Mrs. Molten and Mrs. Morehouse were the honored guests. Others present were Mrs. Dodge, Miss Anderson, Miss Clarke, Miss Howbert and Mrs. Taylor. The decorations were in green and white.

Engaged—Married

Very quietly and in the presence of the immediate family and intimate friends, Adjutant General Sherman M. Bell was married Wednesday afternoon to Mrs. Effie Carter. General Sherman Bell stole a march on friends in Denver, it being the desire of both principals to the ceremony that it be very quiet, and arrived early in the afternoon, accompanied only by Colonel J. Q. MacDonald of Governor Peabody's staff. At 5 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. R. P. Russell, 1601 North Nevada avenue, Rev. B. E. Harl of the First Baptist church, Canon City, an old friend of General Bell, tied the knot that made the former Rough Rider, "the gamest man in a regiment of game men," a benedict and won him a charming and accomplished wife.

A congratulatory telegram was received from President and Mrs. Roosevelt and upon a warm invitation from General Bell's commander in Cuba during the Spanish-American war, the newly-wed couple will spend a portion of their honeymoon at the White house. The trip to Washington will be made as soon as the adjutant general completes arrangements for participation by the Colorado National guard in the army maneuvers some months hence.

Upon arriving in Colorado Springs, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, General Bell and Colonel MacDonald went immediately to the county clerk and recorder and procured the marriage license and then drove to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Russell. The house was prettily decorated with cut flowers. Great masses of roses and carnations were everywhere. Rev. Mr. Harl, who had come to the city to marry his friend, was in waiting. The ceremony took place in the parlors.

Colonel MacDonald was best man and Miss Elsie Vaughn, bridesmaid. The bride was gowned simply and carried bride's roses. After the dinner, which was served directly after the ceremony, General and Mrs. Bell left on the 6:40 o'clock Colorado & Southern train for Denver, where they will be at home to their friends at the corner of Colfax and Corona streets.

Present at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Russell, Secretary-Treasurer E. G. Thomas of the Independence Consolidated Gold Mining company and Mrs. Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sealey, Goldfield; Colonel J. Q. MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Harl, Maple Harl, Miss Edith Vaughn, Gilbert Tainer, Miss Elsie Vaughn, Howard Vaughn and Master Thomas Seeley.

MARJORIE VORHES AND ALLEN VORHES THOMPSON,
Daughter and Nephew of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Vorhes.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Finlay, 1425 North Wahsatch avenue, Thursday evening, June 18, 1903, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Villa Mable Finlay, to John James McGill, the ceremonies being performed at 8 p. m. by Rev. Dr. Wilcox of the First M. E. church, of which the contracting parties are members. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Farr. The bride was gowned in a white Persian lawn en traine and carried bride's roses. The bridesmaid carried white carnations and wore white mull.

Miss Cadie Winklen presided at the organ. The presents were many and beautiful. After the close of the ceremony refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. McGill went to their home on Second street, Ivywild.

Among the invited guests were: Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Chamberlain, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hollingsworth and daughter and Misses Lizzie McGill, Florence Atkinson, Mamie McGill, Kate Forrest, Villa Atkinson, Messrs. F. E. Atkinson, Walter Winkler, Henry Pultnhoff, Bert Manonder.

The wedding of Miss Ehrich to Mr. Wyckoff will take place in New York city on Thursday, June 25.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at 428 N. Nevada avenue last Thursday evening when Miss Elsie Lee Garland of Colorado Springs was united to Mr. Irving Harmon. Miss Garland was an attendant last year of Loretto college of Las Vegas, N. M. Mr. Harmon is a popular young railroad man of that place. The bride was gowned simply and carried pink and white bride's roses. There were no attendants. In one corner of the room was an artistic arch of chrysanthemums under which they stood during the ceremony. They left for a short honeymoon in the east.

The wedding of Miss Grace Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Clarke, to Mr. Percy Brooks of Denver will be solemnized at Grace Episcopal church next Wednesday at 8 o'clock. Rev. Benjamin Brewster will officiate and Clarence D. Sears will preside at the organ throughout the service. After the wedding a reception will be held at the home of the bride, 419 East Boulder street.

Charles C. O. Durkee and Miss Wilma Turk of Fort Collins were united in marriage Friday at the home of the bride's father in Fort Collins in the presence of the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Durkee left for New York, where they will take the Potsdam for Hamburg next Tuesday to spend several months abroad. The young people are well known in the city as Mr. Durkee is the eldest son of the late C. E. Durkee, who was a leading hardware merchant of this city to his death. Mr. Durkee was a graduate of the class of '00 of the State Agricultural college of Fort Collins, and it was while in attendance at the school there that he met Miss Turk, who is also well known here, having attended Colorado college.

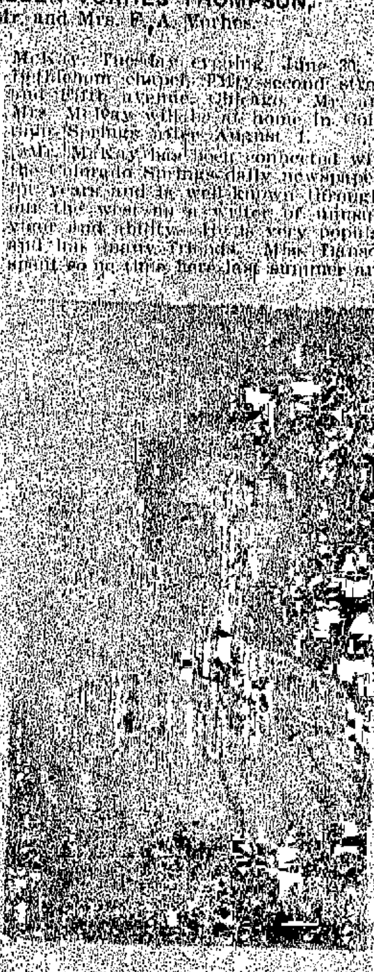

A very pretty wedding took place in the Catholic church at Manitou last Tuesday morning, when Miss Mary Catherine Whalen became the wife of John Edward Burns. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Casey.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers. The bridal procession entered the church to strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin." First came the maid of honor, Miss Margaret Burns, sister of the bridegroom, who was prettily gowned in pink silk mull and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The bride entered leaning on the arm of her father. She wore a beautiful gown of heavy white silk richly trimmed with rose applique. Her tulle veil was fastened to the coiffure with a spray of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white carnations.

At the altar the bridegroom with his best man, W. C. Whalen, met the bridal party. After the ceremony a small reception was held at the Whalen home to which only intimate friends and relatives were bidden.

Upon their return from a short wedding trip the young couple will be at home to their friends at 506 South Nevada avenue.

Invitations have been received in Colorado Springs to the marriage of Miss Florence Dunson, sister of Mrs. Jennie Thompson, to Edward Ferris McKay, Tuesday evening, June 30, at Bethlehem chapel, Fifty-second street and Fifth avenue, Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. McKay will be at home in Colorado Springs after August 1. Mr. McKay has been connected with the Colorado Springs daily newspapers for several years and is well known throughout the west as a writer of unusual vigor and ability. He is very popular and has many friends. Miss Dunson spent some time here last summer and made an admirer of all who met her. The young people have known each other since childhood. They were schoolmates and graduated together from the Englewood, Ill., High school.

Miss Alice Pebbles, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Pebbles of this city, was married Wednesday at Los Angeles, Calif., to Midland D. Bryant. Rev. H. H. Gage, former pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, was the officiating minister. Mr. and Mrs. Bryant will make Los Angeles their future home.

PARTIES

A surprise party was given last Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buffey of 707 East Cucharras street, the occasion being the paper anniversary of their wedding. Many novel and valuable paper presents were given the host and hostess, calling forth their deepest and most sincere appreciation. The evening was devoted to playing games with enough music interspersed to make the occasion most enjoyable. Light refreshments were served. It was a late hour before any one gave a thought to ending the festivities and it was with reluctance that the guests left for their homes. Those present were: Mrs. H. M. Andrews, Mr. Don Andrew, Mr. Harry Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Gwinn, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Ginther, Mr. and Mrs. Curl, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Hanna Swanson, Mrs. Mohler and Mr. F. Hill.

A very pleasant birthday party was given by Mrs. Nels Johnson of 508 S. Weber street on Thursday afternoon, in honor of her little daughter Helen's seventh birthday. The guests, numbering 18 played games on the lawn. Songs and recitations added much to the enjoyment of the company. Refreshments were served in the dining room, where the decorations were in pink and white. Seven pink candles flickering in the center of the table, told to all the age of the little hostess. At each plate was placed a tripod of colored candies, daintily tied with pink ribbon, which was carried home by the little guests as a souvenir of the happy occasion. The large number of presents told something of the love which little Helen's friends have for her. Assisting Mrs. Johnson were Mrs. Curry and Mrs. Berwick. The guests were: Misses Eleanor M. Tobias, Hyle Kelley, Lora Patton, Esther Webb, Opal Gillihan, Maude McKee, Marion Berwick, Ruth Morse, Maurine Murray, Bessie Curry, Nellie Jaw, Geraldine Hull, Miriam Shillady; Masters Wright, Webb, Milton Strong, Edgar Taylor, Arthur Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Price have issued invitations to a card party to be given at their home next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in honor of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Price.

One of the prettiest dancing parties of the season was the one given by the Warwick club at Broadmoor casino last Friday night. Barnes' orchestra furnished the music for 20 dances and four extras. At 12 o'clock an elaborate dinner was served in the dining room of the casino. Among those on the floor were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Whaite, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Lowell, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Roby, Mr. and Mrs. Andre, Mrs. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Loescher of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D. Sears, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Spargue, Dr. and Mrs. Neeper, Miss Madge Sill, Miss Florence Dow, Miss Pearl Engle, Miss Edith Engle, Miss Lyndia Fraschlaus, Miss Edna Kampe, Miss Edith Marsh, Miss Winnie Williams, Miss Margaret Perry, Miss Ethel Hutchins, Miss Carolyn May, Miss May Ratfield, Miss Marie Nye, the Misses Bell of Broadmoor, Miss Hazel Rhodes, Miss Lapner, Miss Morse, Miss Splain, Miss Elenor McLaughlin, Miss Agnes Dorsey, Miss Ethel Hawks, Miss Willa Saffell, Miss Martha Saffell, Miss Mabel Rankin and Miss Edith Dunkin. Messrs. Karl Chamberlain, Andrews, Frank Adamson, Allen Burnes, M. O. Barnes, Henry Duffy, Dr. Thompson, Dr. De Berry, Jim English, Al. Grimwood, Jack Hillhouse, Al. Hillhouse, Hales, Harry Hudson, Berne Hopkins, Dr. Morris, John Nichols, Robert Nolan, Ed. Perry, Chas. Ratfield, Will Wubben, Alfred King, Hope Davis, Nat Hill, Kaiser, F. C. McFarland, Clyde Pool, James Smith, Byre, and Geither.

General Notes.

Mrs. W. C. Jones entertained her sewing club with a picnic at Stratton park last Wednesday. Mrs. Jones' guests were Mrs. George Milone, Mrs. Louis B. Smith, Mrs. Avery, Mrs. Cott, Mrs. Clarence Titus, Mrs. E. B. Barlow and Miss Harriet Johnson of Cripple Creek.

Dr. Herbert Edmond Peckham of this city is a contributor by request to the current number of the Colorado State Medical Journal with an able article upon "The Colorado Law Controlling the Practice of Medicine."

On June 3 Mr. Gilbert McClurg lectured in Schiller hall, Chicago, before the Chicago Medical society of 1,400 doctors, an organization with the largest membership of any medical society in the world. Mr. McClurg was introduced by the president, Dr. Evans, and at the close of the lecture was presented by Dr. Lindley of Chicago, in the name of the Medical society, with a silver watch fob, bearing the emblems of the society, making him, according to the presentation speech, "an honorary member and a doctor."

An art exhibit will be held in the studio of Mrs. Philip B. Wilson (Sarah Tracy) in the Cheyenne building Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. The exhibit will be the work of the pupils who have been studying and working on their objects for about three months only. This will be a public exhibit and all are invited.

The arrivals at Nordrach ranch for the past week include Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Davis and daughter, Cleveland, O.; Mr. Frank Tracy and brother, Chas. Tracy, Euclid, Ohio; Mr. T. J. Murphy, Jersey City, N. J.

Mrs. Tait's music pupils gave a very interesting recital at the residence of Miss Hazel Cameron, 1020 North Wahsatch, Thursday afternoon, at 2:30. The decorations were carnations and smilax. About 50 were present to enjoy the well-rendered program. Part I of the program was given by the younger pupils from easy classics. Those taking part were: Ida and Anna Haugen, Myrtle Pipe, Anna Geissler, Mildred Davis, Frances and Caroline Lattas, Vivian Ohre, Pauline Gochenauer, Gold and Genevieve Merrill and Irene Jacobs. Part II was as follows:

Duet.... Stella Dillon and Tessa Saxon
"Ripples of the Alabama".... Andrews
May Doering.
"Angel's Serenade".... Smith
Miss Jewel Dannevik.
"Moonlight on the Hudson".... Wilson
Miss Stella Dillon.
"Songs Without Words" (7 op. 30)....

The Woman's auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. entertained the members of the Y. M. C. A. intermediates, the baseball team of the intermediate department, who won the championship of the Strang City Amateur league, the season of which has just closed, last Wednesday evening.

Covers were laid for 18. Those present were the following members of the team: Roy Baty, Percy Coombs, George St. John, J. G. Arnold, manager; Hallie Fuller, Harold Blood, Otis McIntyre, Herbert Sinton, Hervey Hutchinson and Charlie Lowell; W. A. Stillwell, physical director of the association; Secretary W. H. Day, H. A. Hallett, E. B. Simmons and C. S. Tremont.

The Arkansas Gazette of Sunday, June 14, in a notice of Mr. McClurg's lecture, "Peak, Pass and Plain," as given in Little Rock on June 13, contains the following compliment to Mrs. J. A. Hayes of this city:

"There was put upon the screen a magnificent colored portrait of Mrs. Margaret Howell Davis Hayes, a true daughter of the south, and of the immortal Jefferson Davis, the president of the confederacy, whom the south has given to Colorado Springs as one of the fairest dwellers within her gates. While showing this picture, Mr. McClurg recited the following beautiful sonnet to Mrs. Hayes, written by his wife, Mrs. Virginia McClurg, and sent her with a basket of cape jessamines:

A Sonnet.
(To the daughter of Jefferson Davis.)
A flower from the distant, southern land,
With curving petals of pure ivory white,
Each chalice breathing odorous delight,
With glossy leaves by tropic breezes fanned—
How fares it in this realm of sun and sand,
Where rock-piled summits awe the dizzy sight,
And all the sky seems bare and blue and bright—
The jessamine of that dim and languorous strand?

The southern blossom to the golden west
That fain would woo her from her jessamine bowers,
That lays its purple glories at her feet!
May none but radiant days reward her quest,
And round her bloom the Rocky mountain flowers,
While peak to bayou renders homage meet!

The Monday Progress club held a meeting last Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. W. Dickey, 319 North Weber street, to decide on a date for their picnic. After some discussion it was decided upon to go to North Cheyenne canon next Tuesday morning and spend a pleasant day in the mountains. The members will all meet at the corner of Tejon street and Pike's Peak avenue at 10 o'clock.

Next Tuesday evening the Golden Sunshine society will give a lawn fete at the home of Mrs. J. Kettleman, 1434 S. Nevada avenue. The fete was to have been held last week but was postponed on account of the bad weather.

The Lutheran Progress club gave a delightful program Friday night at the home of Miss Young, 320 East Boulder street, in which the following members took part: Miss Heyse, Miss Young, Miss May Wallace, Miss Margaret Young and Mr. Clark.

A musical and social hop will be given in Manitou next Wednesday evening for the benefit of the Kansas flood sufferers. The dining room of the hotel will be fixed up like a miniature theater and will be handsomely decorated for the occasion. The Cliff House orchestra is composed entirely of musicians from the Thomas orchestra of Chicago, and will be assisted in the musical program by a number of prominent local musicians.

Following the musical the Cliff house management will give a social hop.

SEASON OPENING UP IN FINE STYLE AT GLENWOOD

Special to the Gazette.

Glenwood Springs, June 20.—The season at Glenwood has already opened up in fine shape. Strawberry day brought a great influx of visitors from all over the state and they all enjoyed themselves hugely in the pool and at the caves and feasting upon the strawberries and cream provided by the citizens.

The Hotel Colorado is opened and is already doing a fine business. Many guests have already been registered from Colorado Springs, Denver and eastern cities. The new manager, Mr. Elmendorf, provides an excellent table, and the standard is fully up to or even better than that of former years. An orchestra is in constant attendance and a more delightful place to spend a few weeks can hardly be found. The billiard room and the cafe, the sun parlors and the palm-lined terraces all have their devotees, and the whole scene is most attractive, homelike and picturesque. Fishing parties and swimming parties are of daily occurrence, and many other ways of enjoyment can be had. The outlook for a good year at the resort is excellent, and the tide of pleasure seekers seems only the beginning of larger numbers to come later in the season.

LADIES SHOULD KNOW

That Mrs. Crooks, 30 E. Kiowa, is the only manufacturer of HAIR GOODS in the city.

THE EXHIBIT AND SALE of beautiful needlework that Mrs. Cook of New York has at the Alta Vista will continue only the 22nd and 23rd. Do not miss the chance of getting your summer work at reasonable eastern prices.

Trade in Old Clothes.

One might imagine that the old clothes trade would be about the last to be affected by a period of commercial prosperity, but it is, to a very remarkable degree. Touters looking for men with old clothes to sell are abundant in all parts of the city, but they are particularly persistent in Broadway, anywhere from Forty-second street to Trinity church. A man who made an appointment at his hotel with one of these touters produced a suit with a sack coat, a cutaway and a Prince Albert coat, as it still continues to be called. The man handed the latter two garments back.

"Don't want them," he said. "Why, they won't even take them at the pawnshops. Two years ago we gathered in all the cutaways and frock coats we could lay our hands on. Now we won't touch them."

New York leads in the shipment of old clothes to all parts of the country, just as she leads in the manufacture of new clothes. In Seventh and Eighth avenues, just below Thirty-eighth street, the center of the old clothes industry, truck loads of them were sent away every day. In crowded little rooms in side streets in that neighborhood hundreds of men are employed making these discarded garments "look like new." A suit of clothes has to be very good, indeed this year, to pass muster with the second-hand dealer. In hard times he will take almost anything that hangs together, for the old clothes demand never ceases, and must be filled with something or other. But when times are good and clothes are cheap the old clothes man is very much in the game. He is keen as a hunter in scenting his prey. It is a very sharp man who can get the better of him. He is polite, even obsequious, if there is a chance of a trade; if not he is likely to say unpleasant things. The more they bring in the more they make—and they are very much on the make.—(New York Times.

MISS IRENE THOMAS.

The Early Morning Air.

Chemists have long ago told us not only what is the exact composition of the air, but also that this composition is practically constant, whether the air be that near the mountain top or the sea, or from the country, or of the town. So far, then, chemistry would not appear to offer any explanation of the benefit gained from "a change of air." Similarly, every one knows the sweetness and freshness of the early morning air, attractive properties which disappear as the day advances; but so far as analysis goes the composition of the early morning air is not different from that of air at any other time.

It is well to remember, however, that during the passing of night to day and of day to night several physical changes take place. There is a fall in temperature at sunset, and a rise again at dawn, and consequently moisture is alternately being thrown out and taken up again, and it is well known that change of state is accompanied by electrical phenomena and certain chemical manifestations also. The formation of dew has probably, therefore, far more of dew effects than merely the moistening of objects with water. Dew is vitalizing, not entirely because it is water, but because it possesses an invigorating action due partly, at any rate, to the fact that it is saturated with oxygen, and it has been stated that during its formation peroxide of hydrogen and some ozone are developed.

It is not improbable that the peculiarly attractive and refreshing quality which marks the early morning air has its origin in this way. Certain it is that the bracing property of the early morning air wears off as the day advances and it is easy to conceive that this loss of freshness is due to the oxygen, ozone, or peroxide of hydrogen (whichever it may be) being used up. The difficulty of inducing grass to flourish under a tree in full leaf is well known, and is generally explained by saying that the tree absorbs the nourishing constituents of the soil or that it keeps the sunlight away from the grass and protects it from rain. It is doubtful whether any of these explanations are true, the real reason most probable being that the vitalizing dew cannot form upon the grass under a tree, whereas as a rule both rain and light can reach it. Dew is probably essential to the well-being of both plant and animal to a greater extent than is known, and the beautiful expression in the prayer book, "Pour upon them the continual dew of Thy blessing," may be remembered in this connection.—(The Lancet.

A Sure Remedy.

Do unto others as they do unto you might well be the heading of this true tale. Two men and a dog are the characters therein. Man No. 1, being unable to sleep for three entire nights owing to the constant barking of the dog aforesaid, got up and arrayed himself at 4 o'clock in the morning and hied him to his neighbor's front door. There he kept his thumb on the electric bell until the dismayed servant appeared.

"I wish to see Mr. W."

"Why, sure he's in bed at this hour, sir."

"I'm sorry, but I must see him now."

"He ain't goin' ter get up at this time ter see nobody."

"Well, I intend to stay here and ring this bell until he does see me, and you can go and tell him that."

After an ominous interval Mr. W. descended, almost speechless with wrath.

"What do you mean by disturbing me in this manner? It's the most outrageous——"

"Yes, that's what I think, and I simply called to warn you that as long as your dog keeps me awake every night I shall come and ring this bell, for if I can't sleep, you certainly shall not. Good morning."—(New York Times.

COLORADO CITY, JUNE 21.

Building Will Be Used as Hospital in Colorado City

The two-story brick building now in process of erection near Sixth street on Colorado avenue, and owned by Dr. Williard, will be fitted out for a hospital and will probably be used for that purpose as soon as it is completed. Dr. Williard stated yesterday that there would be 12 rooms on the second floor and that these will be arranged in every way for use as a modern hospital and that there will be several bath rooms and one operating room. This will be finished in enamel with the best of ventilation and bath and heat in connection so that any difficult operation may be performed. It is not yet known who will be the manager of this hospital but it is understood that Dr. Williard, with the assistance of several competent people, will be at the head of it.

[illegible] WHITE SIBERIAN CAMELS ARE AMONG THE GREAT CURIOSITIES EXHIBITED BY [illegible] FLOTO SHOWS

Among the many costly features offered by the Floto shows which exhibit here July 1 and 2, will be one of especial interest owing to their extreme rarity in the country, a herd of pure white double humped Siberian camels direct from the czar's land of snow and convicts. They arrived but a few days ago and attracted no little attention during the show's recent Denver engagement. They are, according to the press agent, known as the El Herlie band of camels. "I don't know," remarked the promoter of publicity, "what that means because my stock of Arabic is limited, but Hagenback, the German animal dealer from whom they were purchased, tells us they are sacred to the native Arab and that to kill one means death to the offender. If that is not air he can hand it to me for, as I remarked, my knowledge of their country is so limited I am not sure I could find it on the map. They are big, gentle, affectionate fellows and obey their native keeper, who accompanies them, like children. This is the shedding season with them and for the exception of a few tufts of hair over the body they look like Mexican hairless dogs. They are receiving their daily lesson in American tricks and by the time the show reaches here will be the best trained animals ever placed on exhibition with a tent show. Together with the herd of Arabian stallions they form quite an oriental section in the big daily parade."

The Floto shows, by the way, have just concluded the most successful engagement ever played by a trained animal show in Denver. Nearly 40,000 Denverites paid admission to see the ponies, dogs and monkeys do their stunts. Judging from the press notices the show deserved the big business.

Ellsmere.

A preliminary examination was made this week on the workings of the Ellsmere shaft No. 1 on the Cameron townsite by experts in the employ of eastern and Colorado capitalists. This ground which has been inactive for some time will be thoroughly developed if the report is satisfactory and terms can be agreed upon.

Practical.

The Practical company operating on the Trachyte property has been doing but very little the past week as the workings at the depth of 400 feet are now under way and only a small amount of ore can be broken in the upper levels as the property has no pumping plant but as the water comes to the surface it will only be a few days until work is resumed on the bottom level and the production will then be as large as ever.

Delmonico.

The Rocky Mountain Leasing company, operating under lease the south end of the Delmonico on Bull hill, received returns today from a carload shipment sent out the first part of the week which gave them values of $45 to the ton. Another carload of the same grade of ore was shipped to the Eagle sampler today. The ore is being broken from the new strike at the depth of 100 feet.

Empire State.

The Empire State company, owning a large acreage on Bull hill, which adjoins the Isabella estate, is maintaining a regular output of a carload of ore a day which gives returns of two ounces per ton.

Theresa.

Chapman and others operating under lease the Theresa property which adjoins the Golden Cycle grounds, received returns today from their initial shipment sent out the first part of the week which consisted of 25 tons of ore returning values of $40 to the ton.

Free Coinage.

Jemmison & Sullivan, who are operating the Bison claim of the Free Coinage company, started a new shaft yesterday on their property. The new shaft is being sunk in the town of Altman and very close to the Pinto shaft.

Acacia.

Green and others, who recently purchased the Udick lease on the Burns shaft of the Acacia company, are now saying a fine shipment of ore to send to one of the local samplers the first of next week.

On the date of transfer, May 1, 1899, T. A. Rickard's report showed that there were in sight on that date ore reserves amounting to $6,700,000 gross, from which net profits amounting to $4,500,000 might be expected. The annual report just published show that the great mine has produced in the four years and one month $10,250,000, and has paid in dividends, with the cash reserve in the treasury, the magnificent sum of $4,520,000.

Since October 1, 1900, the mine has produced 580,000 tons of ore from which there have been extracted gross values amounting to $6,300,000 and net profits of $2,500,000.

What this great property has done simply bespeaks the greatness of the Cripple Creek district, and those who are inclined to grow faint-hearted over the future of the famous gold camp would do well to study with care the report of Stratton's Independence just published. And that leads one to remark that Cripple Creek will still be producing long after the present generation has lost all interest in mining.

The shaft is at present 460 feet deep which will be put considerably deeper and the mine opened from new horizons. In the past, Rankin never did much real development work, confining himself to exploring the old workings in search for ore bodies that had been passed by by former lessees and in this quest he was able to uncover considerable good ore as his production during the time he operated amounted to over $6,000. He will utilize the company's surface plant which is in good condition and will, as stated, conduct mining upon a large scale. The company owns several copper properties in Wyoming, as well as others in New Mexico and Arizona.

The ore at the surface averages $2 to $5 a ton across the entire vein so that with the proper sorting it is believed the grade could be materially raised. The vein has never been prospected so that the development work which the new lessee will do will be followed with interest. He will run an open cut and will literally quarry the ore, which is a characteristic burnt up rock so familiar to Globe hill. The property joins the Mariposa of the Stratton's Mining & Development company.

In addition the company owns the Little Cut Diamond claim, adjoining the Theresa on Bull hill. The capitalization is $1,500,000, divided into 1,500,000 shares of which 500,000 shares remain in the treasury. Jacob Bishoff is president and W. G. Newman secretary.

NEWS ABOUT GOLD CAMP

William R. Merriam, director of the United States census, has sent two field workers to this city on a mission to ascertain and collate complete and comprehensive information on the production of the Cripple Creek district for the year ending December 31, 1902, for use in the government reports. The work is being carried on under the direction of Isaac A. Hourwich, Ph. D., of Washington, D. C., special agent of the census office for the mining industry. The local agents are going from office to office and are making a most thorough work of it. All reports are strictly confidential. The report blanks incidentally state that there is a fine of not more than $10,000, which may be augmented by a year's imprisonment in case one refuses to give the correct information.

COLORADO SPRINGS MINING STOCK EXCHANGE

The market yesterday was fairly good considering that it was Saturday which is usually an off day. The bulk of the trading was in the mines list with prices fairly well sustained. Anaconda led off, selling at 13 which was a cent advance over Friday's closing bid. C. K. and N. sold at 21 for 2,000 shares and closed strong at 21 bid and 21¼ asked. El Paso opened at Friday's closing asked price but lost ½ during the call, 1,000 shares selling at 60½ and 60. Golden Cycle strengthened to 70, gaining ½ over Friday's poor close and this, too, in the face of the announcement made on the floor of the exchange that registration of the stock had been stopped and at the end of 30 days the stock would be dropped from the list in accordance with exchange rules. Isabella developed no change and sold at 15 for a board lot. Portland was again unaccountably weak and sold at $1.25 to $1.23. A bullish report states that the net earnings of the mine for May were $90,000 and for the mill $10,000 which should have caused the stock to advance. Portland is a mystery under the circumstances.

The prospect department contained little of interest and what trading was done was at prices differing but slightly from Friday. Dante sold at 1½ and ... for 4,000 shares in anticipation of the forthcoming special stockholders meeting which is proposed to do something to better the financial condition of the company. Gold Hill sold at 21 for a lonely block of 1,000 and Little Bessie at ... Mary Nevins was fractionally stronger over Friday's close and sold at ... for 1,000 shares while Nellie V. closed this trading in the prospects at 1. The miscellaneous department recorded but one transaction, 1,000 shares of Spar selling at 4c per 1,000.

EASTERN MARKETS

STOCK LETTER.

From McIntyre & Marshall by Private Wire to Otis & Hough.

New York, June 20.—The business was the smallest for a Saturday session for some time. London was a moderate seller and there was some liquidation from the room traders and some of the bear element. The bull clique continued active in bulling coal stocks, and there was some good buying of Atchison, St. Paul, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania and Gould stocks. The least that can be said of today's bank statement, is that it does not represent the existing conditions of the banks. As regards the stock market situation, there are still so many uncertainties surrounding it, that we do not look for any change of importance from the present range of prices until after July 1.

From J. S. Bache & Co.—The opening was without interest. Lower London prices did not affect sentiment materially. There was a feeling that London has been used by the bear contingent as a club to beat down the New York market. Stocks sold off in the last hour on realizing. The bears have made desperate efforts to break the market, and took advantage of every weak spot to do so, but without avail. Market closed with a better feeling.

From Sharp & Bryan—Most experienced speculative opinion is still bullish and when the market shapes itself definitely, we think the movement will be toward a higher level.

GRAIN LETTER.

From Logan & Bryan by Private Wire to Otis & Hough.

Chicago, June 20.—Wheat—Market here was quiet, the closing was rather strong. The feature of the day was the estimate of the Commercial West on the crop. They figure a total of 740,000,000 bushels. From the character of the reports we get of the threshing returns so far as they have progressed in the winter wheat country, we think the estimate is a good many millions too high. We rather confidently expect that the government report on the 10th of July will reflect our views of the case. The northwest is still without rain, but any damage from that is modified by the cool weather. Rain is, however, much needed and if delayed it will become a bullish factor. With present conditions of stocks and supply and demand, and the prospective wants to be supplied from the growing crop, we think the long side of wheat is right.

Corn—Market fairly steady, without material change. There are no indications of increased supplies or diminished demand, and these are the influences that underly and control the corn market at the moment. Temperatures throughout the west are low, and the crop is under such conditions, making poor headway. The price of corn is so high that we feel very conservative about advising its purchase, but a material improvement in the corn prospect will have to take place and a material increase in the offerings of corn from the farms, before materially...

Oats—The weather is better for the oats crop than it is for corn, and that crop is probably making poor progress. Demand exceeds supply for cash oats, however, and this keeps the general market strong.

Provisions—Market is a little easier and dull as it can well be. Liberal receipts of hogs next week are, however, expected, and there is nothing about the cash demand to stimulate speculative confidence. Only fears of manipulation by the strong packing interests make the future of the provision market dull.

Portland shares closed remarkably strong yesterday morning. And this, too, in the face of the steady decline which has been in progress for several days past. And between these two facts lies a mystery which the brokers have not been able to fathom. As is customary in such cases, the brokers gave themselves over to gossiping, their surmises ranging from a reputed quarrel on the board of directors on one hand to the very cheerful information that the mine netted $90,000 clear profits last month which was augmented by $10,000 more earned by the mill. Official confirmation could not be obtained on either hand. It is quite probable that a selling order was the cause for the break during the week while the strength at the close of the week was occasioned by the mine's good showing. There is every probability that the next quarterly dividend will be declared on July 5 and all things taken together, Portland is considered to be in better shape than for some time past.

ALL BROKERS MUST SPECIFY REGARDING GOLDEN CYCLE SHARES

Caller Hufford announced yesterday that hereafter brokers doing business in Golden Cycle shares would be required to specify whether they were trading in registered or in unregistered stock. Yesterday the Colorado Springs Trust company was formally notified to discontinue the registration of this stock so that all new stock issued on and after yesterday will be unregistered and must be cleared outside the exchange clearing house. The rules of the exchange provide that the stock cannot be taken from the list under 30 days which gives any stockholder ample opportunity to deal on the open board. At the expiration of the 30 days the stock will be formally dropped from the local board and will in all probability be listed on the new St. Louis exchange by that time.

SPECIAL DINNERS A FEATURE

RAILROADS AND HOTELS WILL EXPERIENCE RUSH

Thousands of Visitors Will Come Here Next Month and Accommodations Will Be at a Premium —Making Big Preparations.

A week before the convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor in Denver next month Colorado Springs and the Pike's Peak region will entertain several thousand visitors, tourists who have taken advantage of the low rates offered from eastern points on account of the convention, and solid delegations of Endeavorers.

Contracts with delegations are being signed by the Manitou hotels already. Yesterday R. K. Torrey, manager of the Mansions, contracted to entertain for two weeks 250 members of a Pennsylvania delegation. Instead of rushing through Colorado Springs and Manitou, as it has been supposed the Endeavorers would do, solid delegations and thousands of detached members of the society will spend at least two weeks and many of them longer in Colorado.

H. H. Buckwalter, who has been lecturing in the eastern and middle states on Colorado before Christian Endeavor societies in the large cities, notified the chamber of commerce yesterday that the lowest estimate that could be placed on the Endeavorers that Colorado Springs will entertain is 8,000.

The traffic department of the Short Line has been busy contracting for special trains to Cripple Creek, and D. C. MacWatters states that advices received by the department go to show the majority of the visitors will remain here at least a month. July will be spent in Colorado and from applications beginning to arrive, this section will be the favored spot. Tickets are good for 90 days.

"On these low-rate excursions," said Mr. MacWatters, "a great many teachers come to spend their vacations, and I have never known it to fail that the following is always as large as the number in the convention delegations."

The first delegation that will arrive will be from Illinois. They will pull in July 4, and Monday, July 6, will go to Cripple Creek by special train over the Short Line. July 7 will be spent in Colorado Springs and on the morning of the eighth the delegation will leave for Denver and the convention, which opens on the evening of July 9. There are at least 300 persons in this delegation.

The Illinois special will be followed by the Tennessee and West Virginia delegations who will arrive on the morning of July 8. On the morning of the ninth the delegations take the trip over the Short Line to Cripple Creek and leave that evening for Denver. These two delegations will furnish an aggregate of 600 more Endeavorers, O; for smaller delegations are scheduled to arrive between July 5 and 9.

After the convention, the delegates will scatter and come back. From July 4 to 31 the city, Manitou and Colorado City will be filled with excursionists taking advantage of those rates.

Secretary Henry Russell Wray of the chamber of commerce received yesterday the first issue of a neatly got-up pamphlet, entitled: "Hotels, Boarding and Rooming Accommodations and Restaurants at Colorado Springs, Colo., the City of Sunshine." It contains a description of the city, its amusements, a list of the hotels, restaurants, boarding houses (arranged by streets) and furnished rooms, the rates charged in each instance being appended.

Six Games of Polo Will Be Played With Crack Teams

The members of the Cheyenne Mountain Country club polo team spent yesterday in getting in some good hard practice for the six big games that are to be played in this city during the coming eight days, in three of which they will be contestants.

The matches will be played on Thursday and Saturday afternoons of this week and on Monday afternoon of next week. Two matches will be played each afternoon, one beginning at 1:30 o'clock and the other at 3:30 o'clock.

Thursday afternoon the Country club team will meet the team from Glenwood Springs, while the Denver Country club team will meet here the team of Ft. Robinson, Nebraska, which is now visiting the state. On Saturday afternoon the Country club team will meet the Ft. Robinson and Denver will meet Glenwood Springs. Next Monday the Country club players will oppose the Denverites while Ft. Robinson and Glenwood will play. All the games will be played here and a large number of polo players will be present from over the state. The games in which the Ft. Robinsons played in Denver were witnessed by several thousand people.

The Cheyenne Mountain Country club team is composed of the following members: H. J. Bryant, captain; Dr. Webb, C. A. Baldwin and W. Ruston.

Malley-Williams Bout Will Be Pulled Off Tuesday Night

Billy Malley, the Pueblo boxer, who is well known to local people, having been a resident of this city for over two years, will meet Morgan Williams, the Victor middleweight in Pueblo Tuesday night before the Rovers Athletic club. The bout with Williams is one for which Malley has been working for a long time and when Malley was defeated several weeks ago by Jim Flynn in Pueblo, the former local man did not let up in his attempt to get a go with Williams.

Malley will go 20 rounds Tuesday evening with Williams for a side bet of $250 and a percentage of the gate receipts. Malley is in fine condition and with the experience that his go with Flynn taught him, should be able to give Williams the battle of his life. Williams is looked upon at the present time as about the best of the middleweights in the state. He has stood up with a number of good ones and a victory for Malley would mean much to the latter. Malley will weigh in at 158 pounds while Williams will probably make it in 160.

Malley is being heavily backed in Pueblo and a great deal of interest is being taken there in the go. A large number of local sports are intending to witness the bout. It is expected that about 150 will go down Tuesday evening. Tickets for the bout are now on sale at the Hamlitt cigar store in this city. Malley will have in his corner Tuesday night Patsy McCarty, Ed Seaman and probably Jim Flynn.

EX-MAYOR IRVINE IS VISITING IN THE CITY

M. B. Irvine, former mayor of Colorado Springs, arrived in the city yesterday and will spend a few days here on his way to Kansas City. Mrs. Irvine and the children will remain in Pasadena to the end of the month when they will join Mr. Irvine in Kansas City where they will make their future home.

He said: "It seems good to get back to Colorado Springs for somehow I always consider this my home, for, you know, I have lived 42 years in all in the county. Colorado Springs looks in good condition and is always growing. I like the people and would like to live here."

Mr. Irvine spent most of yesterday renewing acquaintances throughout the city. Later this week he will go on to the east to take up the agency of the Templeton cheesecutter for the states of Missouri and Kansas.

TRUSTEES TO WORK FOR NEXT CONVENTION

The delegates from this city to the third annual convention of the Ancient Order of Foresters, which meets at Buffalo, N. Y., in September, will endeavor to secure this city as the meeting place for the next annual gathering. The local lodge, Court Colorado, 141, will hold a meeting for the election of delegates Friday night. Three delegates will be selected. All the members of the lodge are urged to be present for the purpose of taking part in the elec-

COLORED LEADERS MAY GATHER HERE

Joseph D. D. Rivers, president of the Western Negro Press association, will be in the city today for the purpose of conferring with local members of the association relative to holding the annual meeting. It was intended originally to hold the session at Topeka, Kansas, but the flood washed away the hall that had been engaged and other conditions conspired to make it impossible to hold the session there.

The conference today may result in the session being held in this city. The decision now lies between this city and Kansas City, Kansas. Rivers is editor of the negro paper published in Denver called the Denver Statesman.

PETITIONING COUNTY FOR A NEW ROAD

The people living in the neighborhood of Husted and Edgerton presented a petition yesterday to the county commissioners asking for the construction of a road connecting these two towns. The road will be about three miles long and for the most of its length will run through heavy timber. Considerable cutting will be necessary in order to clear out a route for the road.

Amelia Bingham and her company in "The Climbers" will go to Cripple Creek this morning over the Short Line. The company is billed at Victor tomorrow evening and will play in Colo-

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains the linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it, or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following the use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, and a book that tells all about it, both sent absolutely free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in the Colorado Springs Sunday Gazette. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

NOTED SINGER AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

The services at the First Baptist church will be of special interest today. Mrs. Homer Collins of Duluth, Minn., will sing "Save Me, Oh God," at the evening services. Mrs. Collins has a beautiful soprano voice, and is the soprano of the First Congregational church of Duluth. While not a stranger here, it has been some years since she has been heard in this city. Messrs. Bishop and Libbin will also have solos, and the Quintuple Male quartet will maintain its standard of excellence. Following is the program of special music:

Morning—
Octet—"Peace on Earth" .... Keller
Solo—"Ninety and Nine" .... Abbott
Mr. Libbin.

Evening—
"Rejoice in the Lord, All Ye People" .... Novello
Quintuple Male Quartet.
Solo—"Not a Sparrow Falleth" .... Abt
Mr. Bishop.
"Lift Thine Eyes to the Hills" .. Holden
Quintuple Male Quartet.
Solo—"Save Me, Oh God" .... Rundegger
Mrs. Homer Collins.

SEYMOUR LECTURES TO BEGIN TOMORROW

On Monday at 4 o'clock the first of the much-talked of course of historical lectures will be given by Dr. Louis Seymour at the High school auditorium. The subject will be "Cleopatra." Dr. Seymour's work in Colorado Springs has been of such a character as to awaken the greatest enthusiasm among his listeners. His subjects are wont by ones of undying interest, and he treats them in an artistic manner, mingling as instructive with the dramatic in a masterly way that cannot fail to hold the listener in rapt attention. He knows how to pass from grave to gay, from lively to severe, as only those do who possess ready tact and a fine sense of humor. The Post-Intelligencer of Seattle makes this comment:

"The dry facts of history he dresses out with such glorious pictures of the period, such details of the inner life of his characters and so many stories that are side light illumination of history as it is written, that it becomes a panorama of the life lived in those dead centuries. He is so strong in many of his delineations and descriptive passages that one involuntarily compares him to Macaulay."

COMPLETING EXTENSION TO BROADMOOR LINE

The new line that is being built by the Colorado Springs and Interurban company between Broadmoor and Cheyenne canon will be completed Thursday, according to Superintendent Macaffree, and the first cars will be run over it on that date. The schedule for the new line has not yet been made out, but the patrons will be given good service. The building of the new line will complete the loop and passengers to and from the canons will be given the choice of two routes.

EXPERT SWIMMER AT PROSPECT LAKE TODAY

There will be a free exhibition of swimming at Prospect lake this afternoon at 4 o'clock by Percy Cavill. He is an expert swimmer and the feat which has been set for him to perform is a difficult one. While this exhibition will not mark the opening of the resort for the summer, it will be in the nature of a forerunner of the attractions that will be offered by the management. The management will be ready for opening some time early next month.

MOVING PICTURES AT CHEYENNE PARK TOMORROW

The first moving picture exhibition of the season at Cheyenne park will be given tomorrow evening. The new pictures may be tried this evening, but no public exhibition will be given until tomorrow. The announcement of the beginning of the exhibitions for the season will no doubt be received with general favor as the pictures were one of the star attractions of the park last summer and always attracted large crowds. Mr. Buckwalter has a large number of new views this year and has greatly added to his stock. The street car company will run extra cars for the occasion.

WILD FLOWERS — The first wild flower excursion of the Colorado Midland for the season will be run Thursday morning. The flowers are growing plentiful in the mountains and the excursions will be started for the summer this week. The trains will leave at 8:15 in the morning and return at 6 o'clock in the evening.

NOT AT HOME—Mrs. Edward W. Davis of 1802 North Nevada avenue, will not observe her Mondays at home during the summer months.

David Pooley, son of A. T. Pooley, has gone to the ranch of Daniel Fitch, near Castle Rock, Douglas county, to spend his vacation.

WILL INSPECT SHORT LINE GRANITE FIELDS

President Irving Howbert of the Short Line will take the members of the Good Roads association, city officials and others particularly interested in securing good roads for Colorado Springs, in a special train to the disintegrater granite fields along the Short Line. The granite has been suggested as a good and dustless material for streets. Great quantities lie along the track and because of its cheapness and accessibility it has many supporters.

Specimens of the oil rock that is being experimented with on North Cascade avenue have been sent to California experts on good roads and before anything further is done with oil rock the association will await the result of this examination as to the satisfactory quality of the stone.

APPROACHING NUPTIALS OF MISS EHRICH AND MR. WALTER WYCKOFF

The marriage of Miss Ehrich to Professor Walter Wyckoff of Princeton university will take place in New York city June 16. Mr. and Mrs. Louis R. Ehrich and their daughter, Miss Alma, will return to Colorado Springs the first week in July.

The engagement of Miss Ehrich and Professor Wyckoff was announced two weeks ago.

RECEPTION TO BE FOLLOWED BY SOCIAL

A large number of invitations have been sent out by the Women's auxiliary of the Business Men's association of Manitou to an informal reception to meet Miss Ida Clothier, who has just returned from a lecture trip through the eastern states.

The reception will be held with Miss Fellows in the parlors of Hotel Pittsburg at Manitou Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

After Miss Clothier's address there will be a social hour at which time the Women's auxiliary will serve refreshments.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Mary Holliman, mother of Mrs. Charles Heath, returned yesterday from an extended visit in southern California.

Henry McAllister has returned to his duties in the office of the county commissioner after an absence of several days on account of illness.

Isaac Cahn left last night for a short business trip to Lincoln, Nebraska.

Charles Heath, of the firm of Heath & Reinken, is expected home today from Chicago where has been buying goods.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turick of Chicago are spending a few days in this city en route to Trinidad. Mr. Turick is in the mailing division of the Chicago postoffice and yesterday paid a visit to the local office.

Miss Mary Carr Strachan who has been attending Wellesley college at Wellesley, Mass., returned home yesterday.

Mrs. J. M. Ellison and Mrs. Margaret Baldwin have returned from Cheyenne, Wyo., where they attended the nineteenth department convention of Women's Relief corps.

Mrs. Thompson and Miss Daisy Thompson of Menominee, Wisconsin, are visiting Mrs. S. E. Scholz of 1816 North Nevada.

Dr. D. F. Gilden left for Denver last evening to be gone a week.

J. Marcy of this city, is in Boston for a few days.

W. McK. Barbour of St. Joseph, is in the city for a few days, and is registered at the Antlers.

GATHERED AT THE Y. M. C. A.

The regular Sunday morning praise and prayer service will be held this morning at 9:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. room. The service will be in charge of W. R. Davison.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the regular Sunday afternoon men's meeting will be held, led by Rev. W. V. Davis, pastor of the United Brethren church. Rev. Mr. Davis will address the young men on "The Winning of Men." The Baptist octet will sing.

The regular fellowship service for strangers' tea will be held after the meeting at 5:30 o'clock.

Tuesday evening the annual election of officers of the Young Men's congress will be held in the congress hall. All members are urged to be present on Tuesday evening as the business to be transacted will be important.

One week from Tuesday will occur the annual banquet of the Young Men's congress in the banquet rooms of the association building. The banquet will be a public one.

The members of the Y. M. C. A. are preparing to welcome Mrs. Birdie Sprague Wagoner and her daughter when they appear in this city Friday evening for the benefit of the association. Mrs. Wagoner and her daughter are both elocutionists of considerable note and will no doubt give an excellent entertainment.

Reports from the boys of the boys' department who are taking their annual outing at "Camp Tecumseh," near Fern Glen, are to the effect that the boys are having the time of their lives. A number of boys went up yesterday to swell the crowd. Preparations are now being made for visitors' day next Friday, when the parents and friends will visit the boys in camp. The boys will not spend the Fourth of July in camp as was expected as the return home will be made on the evening of July 3.

Assistant Secretary Charles H. Smith who has been spending several weeks in San Francisco and other cities in California has arrived home and taken up his duties at the Y. M. C. A.

Through the kindness of a member of the physical department of the Y. M. C. A. the Y. M. C. A. baseball team has been equipped with new uniforms. The new suits have arrived. They consist of grey trousers and blouses, black stockings and belts and grey caps with black trimmings, making them very attractive.

HIGH SCHOOL CADETS AT PALMER LAKE

The majority of the members of the High school cadet battalion who have been on their annual outing at Fern Glen, near Palmer Lake, returned home yesterday. About 15 of the cadets remained, however, and will not come home until about the middle of the week. The cadets vote the present outing the most successful ever held. While a trifle cool at night, the weather at Fern Glen has been fine and everyone had a good time. Among the amusements that were planned and carried out for the cadets' entertainment were hunting, fishing, and boating and bathing in Palmer Lake. Visitors' day, last Thursday, was the big day at the camp. On that day the parents and friends of the campers paid them a visit and the big sham battle was carried off. Much of the credit for the success of the camp is due to Captains McBroom and Morrell, who worked hard to make the boys enjoy themselves.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS OPEN HEADQUARTERS AND ARE GETTING READY TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS

Two large floral monograms eight feet square will lift themselves from the Antlers and Acacia parks to greet the visiting thousands of Endeavor hosts who will visit the city during the Twenty-first International Christian Endeavor convention in July. Each floral piece will bear the monogram, "C. E.," in raised foliage plants set in a background of dark bedding plants, so that the effect will be both artistic and pleasing. Permission has been obtained from the city to put in these floral pieces, which will be merely one of the many ways in which Colorado Springs will bid the stranger within her gates a welcome to the city. In addition, the committee on decoration has arranged to string a number of banners bearing appropriate sentiments of welcome and good cheer across the principal thoroughfares leading to and from the two union depots; while the merchants of the city will be asked to decorate their buildings with the characteristic red and white, the international colors of this society.

President Livermore of the city Christian Endeavor union announces that permanent headquarters have been opened at 20 North Cascade avenue, where all delegates coming to the city will be conducted and required to register. Here they will be assigned to rooms during their stay and will be provided with guides to all parts of the city. The central committee has in preparation a booklet on the city and its environs which will be put into the hands of the visitors and which will enable them to get about to all points of interest with comparative ease. Colorado Springs is accustomed to handling large crowds, so the entertainment of the Endeavor hosts will be a pleasure. The committee on registration will require all Endeavorers to sign their names in full and give their home address, which will afterwards be arranged in alphabetical order, so that any of the thousands of visitors can be located within a few minutes by means of the excellent system which will be followed.

Tomorrow evening will be given over to arousing the Christian Endeavor societies of the city. Special speakers have been appointed to address the societies on the benefits of the convention and incidentally to urge the young people to rally to the chorus which Prof. Skinner is planning to work up for the Denver convention. So far there are but 30 members, which is about one-third the quota which it is expected to send to Denver, as the convention music committee has set aside certain portions of the musical program to be filled out by the local chorus. It will, therefore, be necessary for the singers to report regularly from now on, every Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock, at the First Congregational church, as there are now but two or three more rehearsals.

The canvass of the city inaugurated a week ago is succeeding splendidly and the results being achieved are surprising. However, there is still need for good, vigorous work as the accommodations are not yet adequate to the demands which will surely be made upon the committee of entertainment during the top of the tourist rush.

LETTERS IN DIFFERENT LANGUAGES Sent to Luther League Delegates.

State Convention Will Be in Session Here Next Wednesday and Thursday.

The first annual convention of the Luther league of Colorado will be held in this city Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The meetings will be held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms and the visiting delegates will be entertained by the members of the Luther league of the Swedish Lutheran church.

The state Luther league was only formed last year when the societies of three cities of the state, Denver, Colorado Springs and Boulder, met in Denver and effected an organization. The league owes much to Rev. George N. Youngdahl, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church of this city, who was instrumental with other prominent members of the denomination in the organization. Mr. Youngdahl was one of the organizers of the national league and also of the state league of Illinois. The prime object of the league is to secure the adoption of the English language as the universal tongue of the different Lutheran congregations in the state.

Letters Sent Out.

In sending out invitations to the convention, letters in five different languages were written, in Swedish, in Norwegian, in Danish, in German, and English. It is thought that by adopting the English language, the different churches of the state will be brought closer together and the denomination strengthened.

About 200 delegates are expected to attend the convention and all of the present officers. The entertainment of the delegates will be an important feature. A visit to Cheyenne park Thursday afternoon and a big dinner there and a luncheon at the Swedish Lutheran church Thursday evening are among the events planned.

An interesting program has been prepared for the convention which follows:

FIVE HOURS A PRISONER IN THE NEW COUNTY COURT HOUSE

W. H. Duncan, janitor of the new county court house, was the unconscious cause of five hours of misery to one of the visitors at the new building yesterday. The name of the visitor is not known, but Mr. Duncan has resolved that hereafter he will make a survey of the court house clock tower before he locks the door leading to it and goes down stairs.

The clock was out of gear yesterday morning when the janitor arrived; it had gained half an hour in the night and Duncan went into the tower for the purpose of adjusting things. It was 6:30 when he arrived, and he was engaged for nearly half an hour getting the clock in proper order again. After he had finished the task he came down, but before locking the tower door, opened some of the windows in the jury room on the third floor. In the interim, the stranger, whoever he was, went up into the tower. He said nothing to Duncan and Duncan did not see him. When Duncan had opened the windows, he came back to the tower door and turning the key in the lock, fastened it. Without making any further investigation or dreaming what he had done, he went down to the first floor and took up some other work.

Eight o'clock came, then 9 o'clock, and finally the courts were called to order, and the floors below began to resume a busy aspect. Each one was intent on his own mission, however, and but little thought was given to what might be going on around them.

During all this time the stranger in the tower was in a state bordering on frenzy. He had finished his look around the city, and, realizing what time it was, and that he had not had any breakfast, he started to come down, well pleased with his early morning excursion. When he reached the door, it refused to open at the turn of the knob, although he tried several times. After two or three attempts, he realized what had happened. The exact details of the next five hours no one can give, but it is safe to say that many attempts were made to break open the door and gain freedom and a breakfast in that manner. The architect, however, in drawing the plans for the building, provided for a strong door at this place, and all the attempts of the stranger were futile. He was locked securely in, and remained a prisoner until released by the janitor.

"He must have been there since 7 o'clock this morning," muttered Duncan as he was telling about the incident.

Acute Rheumatism.

Deep tearing or wrenching pains, occasioned by getting wet through; worse when at rest, or on first moving the limbs and in cold or damp weather is cured quickly by Ballard's Snow Liniment. Oscar Oleson, Gibson City, Illinois, writes, Feb. 16, 1902: "A year ago I was troubled with a pain in my back. It soon got so bad I could not bend over. One bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment cured me." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by Hefley-Arcularius Drug Co.

[illegible] $12,000 IN REAL ESTATE

O. L. Baker, formerly in the wholesale grocery business in St. Paul, Minn., and a wealthy capitalist, yesterday made the second investment in Colorado Springs since deciding to take up his residence here permanently.

It was announced in the Gazette recently that he had purchased a half interest in the Hiawatha Opera company which will give a season of light opera this summer in Manitou. Yesterday Mr. Baker purchased the two-story brick block and barn and the stock and fixtures of the Magnet Grocery company at 332 West Bijou street. The consideration was $12,000. The location is one of the best on the west side and the grocery company has been enjoying a large business. It is said Mr. Baker is negotiating on a similar investment.

He expresses such confidence in Colorado Springs and the possibilities here that he is removing all his interests from St. Paul and will make this his home. He has brought three clerks from St. Paul to Colorado Springs to aid in conducting what he plans to be one of the largest retail grocery businesses in the city.

COPY OF WILL.—A certified copy of the last will and testament of Mary Ann Livingston was filed in the office of the county clerk and recorder yesterday. The will was filed for probate in the county court of Arapahoe county.

MINSTREL SHOW OF DRUGGISTS Will Be Feature of State Convention.

Two Days' Session Will Be Held at the Ramona Hotel at Cascade —The Program.

The indications are that the 14th annual meeting of the Colorado Pharmacal association which is to be held at Cascade Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week will be well attended from Colorado Springs. Nearly all the local druggists who are members of the association, and practically all of them are members, will attend with their families. Inquiry among the druggists yesterday developed that Colorado Springs will be represented with the other cities of the state. The members of the association have planned to have a big time and the most successful meeting ever held is anticipated.

Ramona Opening.

The Ramona hotel at Cascade will be opened especially for the occasion. Dances and a big minstrel show will be among the amusements for those attending the meeting. Special rates will be made by the railroad for the occasion. Following is the program for the two days' business meeting:

Tuesday, June 23, First Session.

3 p. m.—Address of welcome by Deputy Mayor of Cascade Canon.

Response by the president Colorado Pharmacal association.

4 p. m.—Meeting of "The Silent Partners" in parlor 3.

8 p. m.—Reception to the president, followed by progressive card and other games (for which prizes will be given.)

Wednesday, June 24, Second General Session.

9:30 a. m.—Reading of prize papers, etc. (Remaining sessions as the association may elect.)

During this business session the special entertainment committee will present several interesting games to be participated in by ladies only. The successful competitors in all these will be given a most costly and beautiful prize. (These ladies' games will occupy the time devoted to all business sessions.)

On different occasions during the meeting of the association, as time, etc., will permit, a program of men's sports will be arranged, for which many expensive prizes will be given.

A number of prizes have been offered for the best papers on subjects of interest to the profession, delivered during the meeting.

"LAKE SHORE TOURS" is the title of a very convenient summer tour book issued by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway, showing routes and rates to the eastern resorts. It will be sent on application. Erwin Tears, Colorado Passenger Agent, 1017 Seventeenth street, Denver, Colo. C. F. Daly, Chief A. G. P. A., Chicago, Ill.

EDITORS HERE FOR TWO DAYS

The Kansas Editorial association, 100 strong, editors and members of their families, arrived in a special train over the Santa Fe at 4:30 o'clock this morning. The editors intended to visit Colorado Springs and vicinity two weeks ago but the floods made necessary a postponement of the trip. J. E. Junkin, secretary of the association, is in charge.

Today the Kansas visitors will drive through the city, to Cheyenne canon, and will take the trip up the peak. They will be taken by special train to Cripple Creek tomorrow, leaving Colorado Springs at 8 a. m. over the Short Line. An entire day will be spent in the district and the visiting newspaper men will be the guests of the city officers of Cripple Creek and officers of the district, and will be given a royal time. Opportunity is given on the program to become acquainted with the workings of the mines and the method of operation in the mills and reduction plants.

Returning to Colorado Springs Monday evening, the start will be made for Denver Tuesday morning. At Denver the editors will spend two days.

SHORT LINE ANNOUNCES EXCURSION FOR TOMORROW

The Short Line will run another excursion to Cripple Creek tomorrow and announces a round trip rate of $2.75. Tickets are good on the train leaving at 8 a. m., which will give passengers a full day in the camp; also on the trains departing at 10:55 a. m. and 5:20 p. m. The tickets carry a limit of two days.

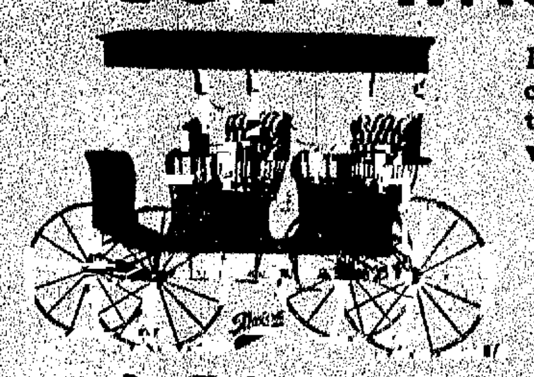

Mrs. William Curry and daughter, Miss Hazel, of Fargo, N. D., are here visiting with her sister, Mrs. George Stuth, 714 East Platte avenue.

APPRAISERS OF HEMENWAY ESTATE [illegible]

The report of the appraisers of the estate of Alvaro Hemenway was filed in the county court yesterday, setting aside $1,030 as the amount of the widow's dower. The personal property of the deceased, excluding promissory notes and mining stocks, was appraised at $286. This is but a few dollars less than the approximate value given by the administrator in the inventory, filed several days ago. All of the household furniture will be turned over to the widow, and the balance of the $1,030 will be made up by the sale of real property, or its direct transfer to the widow. The appraisers who signed the report are J. W. Coffey, J. L. Hoover and Frank Cotton. The amount of property, subject to creditors' claims, is thus reduced by this amount. Before this amount was set aside for the benefit of the widow, there was but $5,000 available for the payment of creditors, this amount being made up to the extent of $1,000, of promissory notes, most of which were marked doubtful and desperate in the inventory filed by the administrator. Against this there have already been filed claims to the amount of $7,250.

WERE FINED.—Lexington Nelson and Thomas Hill were fined in the police court yesterday morning. Nelson was fined $2 for shooting within the city limits, and Hill $10 and costs for drunkenness. He was committed.

GREATER ACTIVITY IN REAL ESTATE MARKET

Opening of Season Starts Buying and Dealers Anticipate Prosperous Market This Summer--Deals Made During Week.

Activity in local real estate circles during the week has been quite marked. The coming of warm weather has started the buying and a number of sales have been reported by different firms during the last seven days. Real estate men all over the city are confident that this summer will witness a general increase in values and volume of trading. Among the sales reported are the following:

Hoover & Martin report the sale of lot 18, White & Page's subdivision of the east half of block 218, addition No. 1, to the City of Colorado Springs, containing a modern five-room cottage, from James H. Noyes to Charles F. Knowlton, for a consideration of $2,500.

R. A. Barton reports the sale of two houses and lots at No. 118 and 118½ West Rio Grande street to Centenary Craig, for a consideration of $2,000; the property at 603 and 605 East Las Animas street to J. F. Thomas for a consideration of $1,800, and a lot on North El Paso street to J. F. Thomas for a consideration of $500.

W. W. Williamson reports the sale of the five-room modern house located on lot 11, block 8, Fort Worth addition to Colorado Springs, to John M. Riley from John McRiley.

The Hastings Realty and Building company report the following sales for the past week:

To Inez Johnson, lots 1, 21 and 22, block 6, Hastings Bros.' Fourth addition, for a consideration of $1,000.

They also negotiated the sale from Mrs. Laura Hills to W. O. Anthony of the four-room modern cottage on lot 1, block 11, Hastings Bros. Fifth addition, for a consideration of $2,100.

S. T. Johnson reports the following sales for the week:

H. S. Lockwood to Paul Hutchinson, seven-room house and lot, located at 418 South El Paso, consideration, $1,600.

D. W. Reed to J. F. Thomas, six-room modern house and lot, located at 1341 North Weber street, consideration $3,500.

Paul Hutchinson to Z. D. Brant, west 40 feet of lots 9 and 10, block 4, Columbia addition, consideration $450.

Paul Hutchinson to Thomas J. Hangen, west 40 feet of the east 80 feet of lots 7 and 8, block 4, Columbia addition, consideration $450.

t ons and high prices of a year ago, and the housewife may have to economize in other directions to pay the meat bill, say those who are qualified to talk. They also add that as soon as the big packers get ready the packing house merger so bitterly opposed by the National Live Stock association will be put through.

A party of Chicago and St. Louis bankers were in the city yesterday, the guests of C. L. Hemming and other bankers of Colorado Springs. Among them were George F. Emery, assistant cashier of the National Livestock bank of Chicago, the big banking institution of the Chicago stockyards; J. A. Lewis and W. B. Cowen, officials of the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis. The gentlemen are returning from Denver where they were guests of the State Bankers association. Mr. Emery is in close touch with the cattle interests and knows whereof he speaks.

"The price of beef is going up," he said. "The demand for heavy cattle in the east has all dropped off, the demand changing from heavy to light cattle. The advantage lies in the light cut of ... packers are taking advantage of the comparatively low prices now prevailing and just before I left Chicago 20,000 head were taken one day by the packing interests.

"To what extent the prices will rise is problematical at this time; they are gradually climbing and the large dealers anticipate much higher quotations."

Mr. Emery states that the Beef trust which agitated the country so completely last year is not progressing, apparently, since the death of Swift, one of the prime movers.

"The packing house merger, the consolidation scheme that plans to embrace the big packing houses all over the country is not yet ready to put through. Despite the opposition of individual cattlemen and shippers throughout the west it will be accomplished, I have no doubt, when those behind the project deem the time is ripe. The interests are too powerful not to carry it to success."

The party will spend some time in Colorado Springs. Yesterday they drove around the city and to Manitou and were entertained in Colorado Springs by local bankers.

Members of the Luther League Plan Entertainment for Delegates

The semi-annual meeting of the local Luther league was held at the Swedish church at the corner of North Spruce and West Bijou streets Friday evening. In addition to the election of officers for the coming six months a report of the entertainment committee was heard on the preparations that had been made for the coming State Luther League convention which is to be held in this city Wednesday and Thursday. The committee has arranged a number of little trips for the entertainment of the delegates to the convention and on Thursday a big dinner will be served at Cheyenne park. The election of officers resulted as follows: Vice president, Nels Jacobson; recording secretary, Anna Johnson; financial secretary, Hilda Johnson; treasurer, Clara Johnson; program committee, Lizzie Huglin, Tillie Huglin and Marie Thorstenberg; Rev. C. E. Youngdahl, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church, is president ex-officio of the league.

A 15-year-old lad, the son of Henry W. Taggart of 223 North Walnut street, was bitten by a vicious and supposedly mad dog yesterday noon. Physicians were summoned and Dr. Harlan Trask dressed and thoroughly cauterized the wound which was in the calf of the right leg.

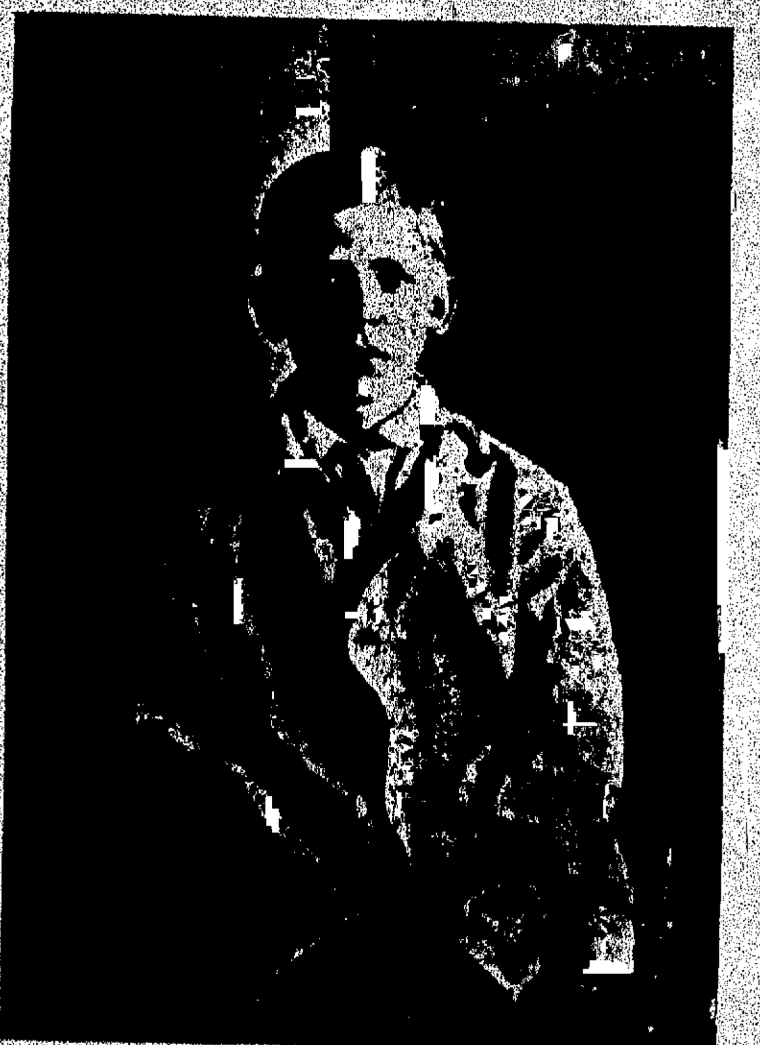

The lad was driving a grocery wagon in the vicinity of his home and when attacked by the dog was making a delivery of goods. The bite was deep and the dog had to be beaten off. The animal acted as if mad and suffering from frenzy.

After regaining his wagon, young Taggart drove home and the case was immediately put in the hands of physicians. Dr. Trask said:

"Everything possible has been done and I look for him to get along, but should the dog be mad and any unfavorable symptoms develop in the patient, the boy will be sent to Chicago at once for treatment."

This is the first case of biting by dog that has come to the knowledge of local physicians for some time.

TURNED FROM PATH OF CRIME AND IS LIVING DOWN MISTAKES HE MADE

EDWARD C. NEUMAN.

Young Neuman Shows Results of the Right Sort and Is Making an Effort to Rise in the World.

Edward C. Neuman, the 13-year-old boy who was arrested about two months ago for passing a forged check on W. F. Wise, the trunk manufacturer of this city, is now in the employ of the Short Line. After being arrested young Neuman was brought before Judge James A. Orr and given a hearing under the provisions of the new juvenile law. He was the first boy to be arrested in this county after the new law went into effect, and his conduct since that time has proven the wisdom of its provisions. From the first he has set out to live a better life and the testimony of Judge Orr and of L. S. Rouse, the probationary officer, is proof of his success. Young Neuman had led a rather wild life before coming under the care of Judge Orr. He lived with his parents in Denver, but was dissatisfied and there are many charges against him in that city, which show the course adopted by him in an effort to get away from restraint.

Neuman's only transgression known to the people of this city was the rather sensational story that followed his week's stay at the Antler's hotel, his passing of a forged check on W. H. Wise, and his trip to the Imperial hotel at Pueblo. All of these things followed within a week, and he was taken prisoner at Pueblo and brought back to this city for trial. Judge Orr pronounced him guilty of the charges against him and sentenced him to the state reform school until he should be 21 years of age. The sentence was stayed on good behavior, however, and since the first day of his probation he has been a different boy.

An Expert Bowler.

In Denver he had frequented bowling alleys and had acquired a good knowledge of the game, and as soon as he was thrown on his own resources he went to those in charge of the bowling alleys at the Y. M. C. A. building and made arrangements with them for employment. He was given the work of setting up the 10 pins after they had been knocked down by the players, and in return was given a room in the building. For a few weeks his father paid for his meals but at the end of that time he secured a position as waiter in a cafe on Bijou street. For the work performed there he was given his meals, and from that date he has been his own bread winner.

During this time he went regularly to school, and reported to Judge Orr and Mr. Rouse. He is a good student and with the close of the school year ranked among the highest in his class. His teacher gave him a letter of introduction, testifying to his faithful attendance and to his attention to study. This letter he regards as one of the trophies of his probation and keeps it with the rest of his treasures.

While employed at the restaurant young Neuman made the acquaintance of James Moore, a stenographer employed in the offices of the Short Line. Moore usually sat at his table and a close acquaintance sprang up between them. For a month this continued and Moore began to think more and more of his young friend. Neuman is very polite in his general demeanor, he has a good grammar school education and is naturally a bright boy. Moore would sit and finish a conversation that started during the meal, for quite a while after the meal had closed and everyone else had left the restaurant.

Employed by Short Line.

It was quite natural when the first vacancy occurred in the office of the Short Line, that Moore should remember his new acquaintance. He told him that the boy who held it before had been promoted and that he had recommended him to fill the position. This was a decided step in advance and young Neuman grasped at the opportunity eagerly. That afternoon he went to the office, saw Mr. Oberton, the chief clerk, and his term of employment commenced.

Honesty and frankness has also come to Neuman since the beginning of his new life, and before finally agreeing to accept the position offered him, he related fully all the details of his arrest and the causes leading up to it. He told Mr. Oberton that he was then under sentence to the reform school and was attempting to live down his past life by making the most of the probation that had been given him. Instead of rescinding his offer of employment Mr. Oberton extended his hand to the embryo railroad man, thanked him for his frankness, and assured him that he had risen measurably in his estimation.

That was two weeks ago, and since that time young Neuman has done as much to merit the approbation of his employers as he has to receive the praise of Judge Orr. "I feel like I had really started, now," he said yesterday, "and I am going to do all I can to make it a good start."

Not only has young Neuman determined to live down his past life but to wipe it out as well. He has already settled with two Denver firms on which he passed forged checks, and he has taken up the task of saving sufficient money to pay off the debt he incurred while stopping at the Antlers hotel. When he has accomplished this, and squared a few more obligations, no one will be able to point to him and say that he defrauded any one. His future could not be blameless if the past were uncorrected, and he has determined that there shall be no past to hinder the life now before him.

Dr. Solly Says the Eastern [illegible] Talking About Colorado Climate

Eastern physicians are awaking to the advantages possessed by Colorado as a health resort. The two recent medical conventions, attended by medical men from all sections of the country, listened with interest to facts about the climate, health and topography of the state. Dr. S. E. Solly, who returned last evening from a trip to the south and east, during which he attended the New Orleans and Washington conventions, said that Colorado had received the best and most valuable advertising at the sessions.

At the New Orleans convention Dr. Solly read a paper on "The Influence of the Climate on the Throat and Nose," in which he discussed the Colorado climate, the dry, antiseptic and curative air, and gave facts that were listened to with awakened interest.

"At this convention," he said, "a great honor was conferred on a Colorado man. Dr. Charles Powers of Denver was elected chairman of the central section of the American Medical association, a very important position.

"At the Washington convention I also read a paper on a technical matter and of no public interest. Gilbert McClurg of Colorado Springs appeared before the convention and gave his interesting lecture on Colorado. This was unusual, as such a talk may be construed in approach advertising, but the doctors were interested in hearing of Colorado and threw down the bars, taking much pleasure in hearing Mr. McClurg's description.

"He also gave his lecture while in Washington before the Cosmos club, which has a large literary and scientific membership. This is the most valuable advertising the state could receive, and while no legislation came up in the conventions in regard to Colorado, the better knowledge gained by representative physicians of its climatic advantages cannot fail of redounding to the benefit of the state."

Short Line Pleasure Resorts Will Attract Big Crowd Today

Many Eagles of this city and Colorado City will go to Rosemont today with their families and friends to attend the annual outing of the Eagles of the Cripple Creek and Victor lodges. A splendid program which includes a baseball game, dancing in the pavilion, music and field sports has been prepared and the Short Line has arranged for a number of extra coaches to carry the crowds.

The Short Line will open its new resort at Clyde today and a large crowd is expected to go up from Colorado Springs. A dance in the new pavilion and boating on the new lake are among the features that have been planned for the opening.

Arrangements for Brightest Season Manitou Is Ready for Opening

This week will see the formal opening of the season at Manitou. The town and the mountains are in the brightest colors early summer, a delayed, reluctant summer, can paint on bush or tree or lawn. The hotels have emulated the freshness visible on all sides, and, renovated and put in shape for the season, will all swing open hospitable doors about the same time.

There are a large number of early cottagers and several hundred guests at the hotels that keep open throughout the year and the boarding houses, but these are merely the advance guard of the thousands expected in what is predicted will be Manitou's greatest season.

The Manitou house and the Mansions both open for the season tomorrow morning. The Cliff has been open during the year. S. B. Signor, accompanied by Mrs. Signor, has arrived from Denver, where Mr. Signor was connected with the Windsor hotel, and has taken charge of the Barker house. Thursday the Iron Springs hotel opens under Manager McTyron.

Despite the cloudy, cool weather, the Cog road has been doing a steady business and President and General Manager C. W. Sells expects to utilize every piece of rolling stock and all the motive power the company owns beginning within the next two weeks. Twenty trains a day to the summit of the Peak is by no means an improbability at the time the Christian Endeavorers arrive at Manitou.

Assessed Valuation of Property About the Same as Last Year

Most of the tax schedules for the coming year's tax levy have been made out and are now in the hands of the county assessor. Work has already commenced on the work of footing up the various [illegible] was stated by Assessor Strachan yesterday that this work would be completed within the next two weeks. These schedules cover all taxable property in the county outside of the railroads and other quasi-public corporations.

It is estimated by the assessor that the taxable valuation of the property in the county will be about the same as it was last year. The returns on the railroad valuations have already been made by the state board of equalization and with the footing up of the schedules of the other property, the preliminary work of the assessor will be completed for this year's tax levy.

Upon the total valuation returned the county commissioners will determine the rate for county taxes and general school taxes; the city council will determine the rate for city taxes. The boards of the various school districts in the county have already determined the rate of taxation for special school purposes. The levy for the other taxes will not be made until September.

Two Conventions Will Meet in This City Next Week

Two conventions will be held in this city on July 7, 8 and 9. One will be the convention of the Colorado Retail Hardware Dealers association and the other a meeting of the Colorado Retail Lumber Dealers association. The lumber and hardware men of the city held a meeting Saturday morning and selected a committee to make all arrangements for the entertainment of the delegates while they are in the city. J. P. Barnes was selected to represent the hardware men, and W. E. McClurg the lumber dealers. Arrangements will be made for a sight-seeing tour of the city and it is possible that the delegates will be entertained on one night at the Broadmoor Casino.

W. P. Bogardus of Mount Vernon, Ohio, president of the National Association of Retail Hardware Dealers, will be present at the convention. The two conventions will meet at the same time for the reason that many of the delegates at one are interested in the work of the other, for the reason that many of the hardware dealers are also engaged in lumber dealing. The larger attendance has also enabled the delegates to get better transportation rates.

Pueblo Wants This City to Join in Labor Day Celebration

The members of the various labor unions of the city are making preparations to send a large delegation to Pueblo on Labor day to attend the big celebration to be held by the Pueblo unions. A formal invitation from the Federated Trades council of that city has been sent to the local body, soliciting the co-operation of the Colorado Springs unions in making the celebration a success. While no formal action has as yet been taken the local council will probably pass a resolution at its next meeting that the invitation be accepted and as many as possible go from this city. During the past two years when Labor day celebrations have been held here the Pueblo unions have always responded with large delegations.

Finance Committee to Report to Council Tomorrow Night

The city council will consider a number of important matters at its special meeting tomorrow night, the most important being the question of the disposal of the issue of $400,000 worth of water extension bonds. As stated several days ago the banks and trust companies of the city are figuring on taking the issue and thus enabling the city to proceed with its work of construction. All the banks and trust companies of the city have been figuring on the proposition, and if the whole issue is not taken by one of the institutions it is probable that it will be divided among a number of them.

The water committee now has $25,000 to its credit, but Chairman St. John said yesterday that this amount would not be used unless his committee had assurance that the entire issue would be sold. This amount will enable the council to at once call for bids for the carrying on of the work, and if the issue is sold tomorrow night it is possible that a date will be set for the opening of bids at the same time.

Another important matter will be the report of the finance committee on the result of the investigation of the office of ex-Building Inspector E. G. Corey. This report will cover all the work done by Mr. Bach under the direction of the finance committee, since the first report that was submitted. The first report showed a shortage of $1,200, all of which was apparent on the records of the office. The report that will be made tomorrow night will cover the items that were not entered on the records and which have therefore been [illegible] system will also possibly be decided upon. From the declarations of Chairman Patten of the police committee, the Gamewell system will be adopted. It is urged by him that it would form the basis of a complete system, to which lateral lines could be attached if it were found necessary in the future.

SUFFERING FROM A COMPOUND FRACTURE

George DeLong, an employe of the water department, was brought to the city Friday afternoon suffering from a compound fracture of the left ankle. He is employed as watchman at the Strickler tunnel, and Thursday he was hauling some timber to be used for fire wood, when the log rolled over and pinned his ankle between it and a huge boulder. He managed to unhitch one of the horses he was driving, and rode on it the three miles between him and his cabin. Friday morning he was brought to the city, where his wound was dressed.

Another Brother-in-Law Will Try to Save Trusty

Many Witnesses Summoned for the Trial

Jackson Found Not Guilty—Shackelford Wants New Trial—The Troutfetter Case.

Preparations are being made for the murder trial of John B. Trusty in the district court next Thursday. Nearly 30 witnesses have been summoned in all by the prosecution, and it is expected that the defense will summon as many more. The trial of the case will take at least a week, a day or two of which will be spent in the securing of a trial jury. A special panel of 40 jurymen is now being summoned by the sheriff's office, for return Tuesday and from this number the Trusty trial jury will be made up.

The district attorney is confident that he has sufficient evidence against the accused man to convict him of the murder of his wife, Anna Trusty, while E. L. McKesson, Trusty's attorney, is as confident that he will be able to establish his innocence. Martha Yoeum, a sister of the murdered Mrs. Trusty, is one of the witnesses for the state. She will testify concerning her knowledge of the marital relations of Trusty and his wife. It is alleged by the police and by the district attorney that their relations were very unhappy and that these relations finally culminated in the wife's murder. The chief witness for Trusty will be his brother-in-law, William Steele. He has already testified that Trusty found his wife dead when he came home from work.

Under instructions from Judge Seeds, B. F. Jackson was found not guilty by the jury in that case Friday night. Jackson was charged with having obtained money under false pretenses. The complaining witness testified that he had sold her a piece of property, representing it to be free of all incumbrances except those mentioned in the abstract of title. The abstract did not show a mechanic's lien to the amount of $388. The judge's instruction was based on the contention that the people had failed to prove that Jackson knew of the existence of the lien when he sold the property and said that no such lien existed.

William Shackelford, convicted of gambling in the criminal court several days ago, moved for a new trial yesterday morning. The matter was taken under advisement by Judge Seeds, who will render an opinion Tuesday.

Charles Troutfetter and George Marshall will be placed on trial in the criminal court Tuesday. Troutfetter is charged with embezzlement by Mrs. D. Baker, his mother-in-law. She claims that she gave him $1,500 to invest in Gold Coin mining stock but that instead of investing it he appropriated it to his own use. Marshall is charged with assault with intent to kill. He is accused of having shot at Max Fleischman with a revolver several months ago.

A motion to strike out part of the complaint was filed yesterday in the case of Mary D. Nichols vs the Colorado Springs & Interurban Railway company. In this case the plaintiff asks for $35,000 damages alleged to have been sustained in a street car wreck.

DANSEUSE IS NOT A MOUNTAIN CLIMBER

A danseuse is out of the running when it comes to climbing mountains. Never mind how airy and fairy her step may be on the stage she is liable to have it twisted when she tries to pirouette on a granite boulder.

Mrs. "Bobby" Newcomb, the prima donna of the Hiawatha Opera company, tried to do this and is temporarily crippled as a result. Yesterday an operation was performed by Dr. Trask upon the right ankle and the surgeon assured her she will be able to appear at the opening of the gardens Thursday evening when the company makes its bow to Colorado Springs and Manitou in "The Mikado."

Mrs. Newcomb, who is the wife of the manager of the company, has been given to mountain excursions between rehearsals. Recently she sprained her right ankle. It did not bother her particularly until the other day when during rehearsal little throbs of pain made her fearful the hurt was more serious than she had imagined.

The surgeon found the sprain had caused a quantity of matter to form and [illegible]

Important Changes in Train Service

A New Schedule on the D. & R. G.

By Request the Next Fifty (50) Curable Cases Treated Free.

(Medicines excepted). This offer opens Monday, June 22, at 9 a. m., and is purely to prove to the public the New York Doctors' successful and advanced methods.

New York Doctors have been established in the state for a long time and are well and favorably known. Can give you best of references of cured patients and can refer you to banks regarding their standing and responsibility. Read carefully the following testimonials from Pueblo, Colorado, people. The most prejudiced must admit New York Doctors' skill from the following:

J. D. Westhoffer, 418 W. First street, says: "My life has certainly been saved by New York Doctors' treatment. My catarrh, lungs, liver and kidneys are now in fine condition and I am able to work every day. I greatly appreciate all that has been done for me and am glad to recommend the New York Doctors to chronic sufferers."

N. C. Smith, U. S. mail carrier, was cured of a severe case of Granulated Eye Lids by New York Doctors.

J. D. Collins was cured of chorea (St. Vitus Dance) by New York Doctors.

Mrs. Lydia Homer, 410 West 6th street, says: "New York Doctors have done me so much good, when I first consulted them I could hardly breathe, now I can walk a good distance with ease."

C. M. Lane, 136 Spruce street, Pueblo, says: "I feel like a new man. My catarrh, liver and kidneys are perfectly well and I am happy to recommend the New York Doctors to all afflicted people."

Ulf. Johnson says: "New York Doctors have cured me of an obstinate case of catarrh and lung trouble."

Mrs. L. D. Fuller, wife of the county jailer, says: "I have been treated successfully by New York Doctors."

Mrs. C. R. Raymond, 226 Cedar street, wife of one of the leading real estate dealers in Pueblo, says: "I praise New York Doctors daily and recommend all my friends for they have certainly done wonders for me."

Mrs. L. A. Bailey, 409 Block street, says: "I have been cured of a serious liver and stomach trouble that had baffled the skill of many prominent physicians and feel most grateful to New York Doctors."

Thomas Dellinger, 1114 Bragdon avenue, says: "I am happy again for I am able to work steadily and have no more sick spells. New York Doctors have done for me what many have failed, and I heartily recommend them."

W. S. Rhodes, 2313 S. Spruce St., says: "When I first consulted New York Doctors I was not able to retain any food and vomited immediately after eating. Many doctors had failed to even give me relief and I had given up hopes. New York Doctors helped me from the very first till now I am a well man and attend to my work every day." Mr. Rhodes is a prominent contractor in Pueblo and his cure is considered a severe test as to the New York Doctors' ability.

Rev. J. L. Whittle, pastor of the Baptist church, says: "New York Doctors have done me a great deal of good and I recommend them to all afflicted people as honest men."

Mrs. Alfred Garland, 114 South Greenwood street, was cured of cancer of throat by New York Doctors and is very grateful for her cure after she had despaired of ever being cured.

Mrs. Isabella I. Hammer, 1020 Routt street, says: "I am feeling fine and own my condition to New York Doctors' treatment. I am past 60 years and consider they have done what few others could do. I recommend all old people to take their treatment."

J. W. Barnes, 2409 Evans street, says: "My Eczema is well, thanks to New York Doctors' superior skill and treatment. Many doctors had failed to cure me."

THE PICKET EASILY WON THE AMERICAN DERBY

Broke the Record for the Race and Was Never Challenged---Claude Was Second and Bernays Third---An Immense Crowd Present.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Chicago, June 20.—The Picket, a horse that never before flashed first past the post, won the American Derby today. He set the pace every step of the distance, was never challenged, and won in a gallop by six lengths. He ran the Derby distance, one and a half miles, faster than it was ever run before in the race. His time was 2:33.

Claude, the winner of three derbies, was second. Bernays, the Cincinnati candidate, was third.

It was a race without the thrill of an exciting finish. The crowd of 70,000 people which witnessed the sixteenth running of the Derby saw a contest that had been decided when the field turned into the stretch. In front of a struggling field, The Picket ran so easily and truly as to leave no doubt where he would finish. The roar of cheers which greeted the successful horse began when The Picket was more than an eighth of a mile from the wire.

The Derby was a record-breaker of the turf. Nineteen horses went to the post, the last previous field being 3. The race was worth $32,275, gross value, the richest in the history of the race, with one exception. Betting on the race began in March and continued until the horses went to the post. More money it is asserted was wagered on the Derby than on any other race ever run in America.

The crowd that saw the American Derby was the largest in the history of the race. It numbered between 60,000 and 65,000 people. It was Chicago's greatest gathering of any year and carried with it an unusual display of fashion. The grandstand was packed before 1 o'clock. The crowds started as early as 11 o'clock and there was a continual rush of people up to the time the bugle sounded the call for the Derby.

The infield from the club house to the head of the stretch was covered by hundreds of equipages, the smartest turn-outs that the city could procure. In the infield gathering were 600 vehicles of all sorts except automobiles. The autos were barred from the grounds as a matter of safety but were allotted space opposite the main entrance to the track. It took the acres of ground to accommodate the horseless machines. Society gathered at the club house and in the boxes and formed the most fashionable out-door gathering that ever assembled in Chicago.

The victory of The Picket was no surprise because a surprise was expected. There were some big disappointments. Savable, the favorite and son of Salvator, thought by John A. Drake to be invincible failed to live up to his reputation. He received a ride from Jockey Lester Reiff that seemingly a novice could have duplicated. Savable was never dangerous, and the fortune bet on him by his owner went to enrich the bookmakers.

Starter Dwyer delayed the start nine minutes before he dropped the flag. Sinner Simon, a "dark horse," was the first to get in motion, but The Picket did not delay an instant. In the first rush for position he was successful and had the lead in comparatively a few strides. Past the stand Au Revoir, the hope of Memphis, was running second, with Gilfain, Maxey Blumenthal and other conspicuous candidates in the next position. There was no hustling until the field struck the back stretch.

Savable was in seventh place and in front of him was The Picket, Au Revoir, Linguist, Bonnie Burr, Gold Bell and Bad News. Immediately behind Savable was Claude. There was not an important move by a jockey until the field had passed the half-mile pole and struck the big bend. The Picket, then running at his own clip, never faltered. Au Revoir began to weaken, Linguist was all through and began to drop back. Claude made his move and quickly advanced to fourth place. Savable, at this critical place, only held his own. The gradually lengthening field of horses was at the head of the stretch. The remainder of the journey was through a lane of people, who were clinging to the rails 100 deep on each side of the course. There was no electrifying struggle. The Picket had his field beaten and beaten badly. He was simply running as he pleased. Jockey Helgeson eased him up a bit as he neared the wire. The race was over and a Kentucky horse had won.

Claude was easily the best of the other starters. He came fast in the stretch but little Johnny Daly saw he had no chance to catch The Picket and also eased up but almost too soon. Bernays, backed by Cincinnati enthusiasts, came on grandly from the center of the field and hitched up in a drive with Savable for the shortest end of the purse. Bernays got it by a neck.

Judge Himes, the horse that had jumped into popularity and had been heavily backed within a week, failed to make a showing. The fast track was against him. He rapidly went to last position after the start and stayed there. He was 40 lengths behind when The Picket reached the wire.

The Picket is a bay colt by Falsetto-Voltario. He was bred by his owners, Middleton and Junghnuth, at Louisville. He ran last year but never won and consequently carried the light burden of 115 pounds.

The Picket was regarded as a dangerous candidate. Last Tuesday he was worked over the Harlem track in preparation for the Derby in almost record time. He covered the mile and a half in 2:33. The time was so fast that many people doubted the truth of the reported workout. The race today proved The Picket to be a wonderful horse. He practically repeated his workout in the race this afternoon. The Picket opened at 8 to 1 and advanced to 10 to 1 before post time.

The Picket opened at 8 to 1 and advanced to 30 to 1 before post time. Claude advanced from 6 to 7 to 1. Bernays remained stationary at 6 to 1, while Savable went from 5 to 2 to 3 to 1. Fore and Aft, the Tennessee horse was perhaps the best played of any on the field. The largest bet won was by Joe Yeager who had a ticket calling for $18,000 to $300. He made the bet three months ago. Summary:

First race, one mile—Gregor K. won; Beau Ormonde second; Bondage third. Time 1:39 3-5.

Second race, six furlongs—Alan A Dale won; A. D. Gibson second; Evening Star third. Time 1:13 3-5.

Third race, The American Derby, for three-year-olds, gross value $32,275, value to winner $27,425, one and a half miles—The Picket, 115, Helgeson, 10 to 1 and 3 to 1, won; Claude, 127, J. Daly, 5 to 1 and 6 to 5 second; Bernays, 122, Tommy Knight, 8 to 1 and 3 to 1, third. Time 2:33.

Sinner Simon, Bad News, Bonnie Burr, Au Revoir, Flocarline, Rate, McGowan, Maxey, Blumenthal, Monsieur Beaucaire, Linguist, Savable, High Chancellor, Fore and Aft, Gilfain, Judge Himes and Gold Bell also ran.

Fourth race, 1¼ furlongs—Warrenicht won; Future second; C. B. Campbell third. Time 1:46.

Fifth race, 5½ furlongs—Coppercheck won; Advantage second; Mas. third. Time 1:42 2-5.

Sixth race, 1¼ furlongs—Evas Darling won; Lord Touchwood second; Fading Light third. Time 1:53 2-5.

EAGLES TO PLAY THE COTTRELLS

The Colorado City Eagles will meet the Cottrells of Denver this afternoon at Bott's park on South Sixth street in Colorado City. Today's game will be the last of the present series being played at Bott's park during the absence of the local Western league team. On this account the game should be well patronized as an interesting contest will no doubt be put up. The Cottrells are one of the strongest amateur aggregations in the state. They have been beaten but a few times and are close rivals of the Pride of the Rockies of Denver. The Eagles will therefore have their hands full, but intend to take the game if possible. The game will be called at 3 o'clock. George Milek will umpire. Following is the line-up:

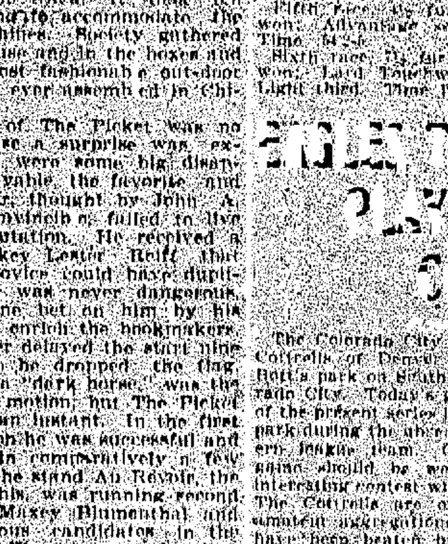

Cottrells.		Eagles.
Gordon or Jackson	Pitcher	Lewis
Brines	Catcher	Reilly
A. Williams	First base	Rewan
W. Williams	Second base	Hock
Davis	Third base	Falk
Neahoss	Left field	Ross
Harper	Center field	Zeltz
Jenson	Right field	Murray
Burgess		Ansley

The Eagles will play the Victor Eagles next Sunday in Victor.

MILLIONAIRES WIN FROM MILWAUKEE

News Had Good Effect on Local Fans.

At-Home Series Will Begin Wednesday, and Rooters Are Getting Ready for Work.

Special to the Gazette.

Milwaukee, June 20.—"Bumpus" Jones, who has twirled in Milwaukee with Connie Mack, was too much for Milwaukee today and Colorado Springs won easily by a score of 4 to 1. It was simply a case of "couldn't hit" with the Brewers. Three badly scattered efforts were made to connect with the sphere but to no avail.

While Swormsted struck out nine men, among them being Everitt who fanned the breeze twice, the visitors landed on him when hits meant runs and four earned tallies resulted. Colorado Springs put up by far the snappiest and best game that has been seen at the Western League park this year and deserved to win from the start.

The work of Granville at third was especially noticed. "Bumpus" handled his nine chances in wonderful form, but Jones was the real cause of the Creams' defeat despite excellent fielding by his teammates. He struck out only two men but Lucia and Miller seemed to be the only Milwaukeeans who could hit the ball. He gave three passes to first, but he always pitched himself out of any hole in which he fell. Two games will be played tomorrow. Score:

DENVER ELKS UP AGAINST REAL THING

In Game With Lodge 309 Yesterday.

Visitors Met Defeat at Hands of Local Elks--More Games in View.

For the first time in three years, the baseball team of Denver Elks lodge No. 17 was defeated yesterday by a local organization made up of Elks. The organization to break this remarkable record for victories was none other than the newly organized team of Colorado Springs lodge No. 309. Yesterday afternoon the two teams lined up at Boulevard park and when the dust of battle had cleared away sufficiently at the end of the game to count the score, the locals were winners by a score of 8 to 6.

Two years ago the two teams met but Denver won by a score of 8 to 6. Ben [illegible] pitched for the locals.

The attendance yesterday afternoon was much smaller than had been anticipated. The prospect went to Charity but a great many who intended going were prevented from doing so by the threatening weather. [illegible]

The Denver team put up a good game but it was badly outclassed at every stage by the locals. [illegible]

FIGHT AT ST. LOUIS.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

St. Louis, June 20.—The game this afternoon in which St. Louis defeated Washington furnished a sensation. Jess Burkett, outfielder, Tom Loftus, the Washington manager, in the first inning. Burkett and Loftus had a wordy tilt at Washington on the Browns' trip east. When Burkett stepped to the bat today Loftus called on Orth to strike him out, using a vile epithet in so doing. Burkett, when the offense was repeated, ran over to the bench and struck Loftus repeatedly. Both were ordered off the grounds by Umpire Connolly who has forwarded a report of the affair to Ban Johnson. Attendance 5,000. Score:

TWELVE THOUSAND PEOPLE SAW THE COLORADO DERBY

The Major Was the Favorite and Won Easily---Donami Second and John C. King Third. Betting High and Interest Great.

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

Denver, June 20.—Twelve thousand people, the largest crowd ever upon the Overland Racing association, attended the opening day of the June meeting. The weather was ideal and the track in good condition. The winners were generally well backed. The Major was the favorite in the Colorado Derby and won easily. Summary:

First race, pacing—Raven Dixon won third, fourth and fifth heats and race. Time 2:21, 2:20½, 2:20¼. Annie W. took first and second heats. Time 2:16¾, 2:15¼. Billy Carew, Miss Fairfax, Lady M., Pay Day, Lady Jane, Blast and Mabel D. also started.

Second race, trotting—Vinieta won second, third and fourth heats and race. Time 2:14¾, 2:16½, 2:17½; Mac Bey took first heat. Time 2:15½. Kirkwood, DeWitt H. H., Endatella and C. K. W. also started.

Third race, 5½ furlongs—La Belle won; Kahunwreath second; Pal Aran third. Time 1:07½.

Fourth race, Colorado Derby, for three-year-olds, 1¼ miles—The Major won; Donami second; John C. King third. Time 2:08¾.

Fifth race, four furlongs—Myrtle White won; Moureen second; Ethel D. third. Time :51.

Sixth race, six furlongs—Sluggard won; DeWitt second; Maren Polo third. Time 1:16.

Seventh race, six furlongs—Remark won; Chubb second; Chappo third. Time 1:15¾.

Town and Gown Golfers Has Walkaway in Game With Denver

The golfers representing the Denver Country club of Denver were given a taste of high life yesterday when they met the team of the Town and Gown club in the golf match, the second of a series of matches that are being played this spring and summer between the two clubs for the C. P. Dodge trophy.

The local players won by a score of 51 up to 1. The Denver players while playing a consistent game, were completely outclassed and were clearly out of the running. The Town and Gown club has one of the best golf teams west of Chicago and when the playing of the team yesterday is taken into consideration it shows how narrow an escape the Denverites had when they landed the state championship through Mr. Fairbanks. In the play yesterday which was 36 holes every member of the Town and Gown team with one exception was successful in winning from his opponent. H. Pearce, of the Denver Country team defeated A. R. Gardner of the Town and Gown by the small score of 1 up.

The next contest, a baseball game, will be played in Denver Saturday, July 11. If this is won by the Town and Gown the trophy will be awarded to them.

Following are the results in yesterday's play: P. Hagerman defeated R. B. Ellis by 1 up; J. E. McIntyre won from E. H. Arnold by 2 up; L. F. Bryant won from A. E. Foster by 5 up; W. K. Jewett won from W. Fairbanks by 10 up; F. M. P. Taylor won from R. McCracken by 3 up; H. H. Davis won from R. Sykes by 10 up; C. P. Dodge won from R. H. Reasons by 11 up; G. W. Davis won from J. W. Graham by 6 up; A. R. Gardner lost to H. Pearce by 1 down, and J. S. Tucker won from M. W. Gano by 7 up.

COLORADO CITY MET DEFEAT IN FIRST PLACE

By defeating Hugh Duffy's Brewers yesterday afternoon the Millionaires' chances of returning home in the lead are bettered to a great extent. Two games are to be played today and the locals ought to be able to take one of them. The fans are pinning all their faith in Bill Everitt and his wise old head will bring the boys back at the top of the bunch if it is a baseball possibility. It may be that Everitt has been saving the boys to a certain extent for these games with the Creams, but in letting Peoria, Des Moines and other teams that are apt to be looked upon as second-raters take the majority of games from his men Bill has given the knockers the chance of their lives. The sentiment of the fans though is loyal and the boys will get the glad hand when they return home, for they have at least broken even on the series and if they can take one of today's games they can retain their hold on the lead.

The team will return Tuesday and open up with Omaha next Wednesday. Three games will be played with the Tail-Enders, three with the Prohibitionists, and three with the Grizzlies after which the team will go to Denver for three games and then to the river for seven games. After the series at Des Moines and Omaha they will come back for a good stay at home.

RELIANCE BEAT THE OTHERS WHEN STARTING

(By Associated Press Exclusively to the Gazette in Colorado Springs.)

New York, June 20.—The Reliance won today a race of the 90-foot sloops in Long Island sound in the first 20 minutes of sailing and before turning the first mark while the Columbia and Constitution were trying to out-luff each other.

By their sharp rivalry both the other boats lost hundreds of yards and any prospect they might have had of winning.

After that it was a procession all the way out to the finish line, where the Reliance beat the Constitution by four minutes and 17 seconds and the Columbia by seven minutes and 31 seconds.

The course was twice around a triangle, a reach of three miles across the sound and a four-mile beat to windward and a broad reach of five miles, 23½ miles in all.

When the first rounded the last mark and had a tack-right course on a broad reach in a freshening breeze to the finish line the Reliance headed the pretty procession by more than half a mile and held her lead to the finish.

The official summary follows:

Boat—	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.
Reliance	12:30:22	3:16:34	2:46:12
Constitution	12:30:55	3:21:27	2:50:32
Columbia	12:30:21	3:21:04	2:51:43

Col. D. F. McNeill, Sir Thomas Lipton's representative, witnessing the race today said:

"The Reliance is a fine boat. I have heard that her sails were not good and that she was going to have a Ratsey suit but they are excellent. She does not need to change them in my opinion. I think we have a fairly good chance of winning."

FLOWER MISSION HOLDS AN INTERESTING MEETING

The flower mission department of the North End W. C. T. U. held a meeting at the home of Mrs. A. S. Blake yesterday afternoon. Mrs. E. S. Davis is superintendent of this department. Papers relating to the origin and work of the department were read by Mrs. E. L. Harbaugh and Mrs. A. B. ...ell. Musical numbers were furnished by Mrs. Daniel L. Blake and the Misses Perry and Hardy. A reading was given by Alma Barber.

Refreshments were served and an enjoyable time was spent socially. Bouquets, jellies and fruit were sent to many sick ones and to the hospitals and institutions in the city.

VACCINATION AND DANDRUFF

There Is as Sure Prevention of Baldness as There Is of Smallpox.

It is now accepted that vaccination renders the vaccinated person exempt from smallpox, or at worst, he never has anything but the lightest kind of a case. Now as sure a preventive and cure for dandruff, which causes falling hair and baldness, has been discovered —Newbro's Herpicide. It kills the dandruff germ. J. H. Reed, Victor, Idaho, says: "Myself and wife have been troubled with dandruff and falling hair for several years. We tried remedies without effect until we used Newbro's Herpicide, two bottles of which cured us." Hundreds of similar testimonials. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Hefley-Arcularius Drug Co. and Robinson Drug Co., special agents.

BLUE FLOWER CLUB ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

At the final meeting of the Blue Flower club held at the home of Mrs. J. Elmer Cox, 204 North Nevada avenue, the following officers were elected: Mrs. A. T. Carter, president; Mrs. Chas. Kramer, vice president; Miss Black, secretary; Mrs. L. M. Davis is chairman of the literary department and Mrs. Bertha Parker of the social.

The opening meeting for the ensuing year will be with Mrs. Black, 725 East Kiowa. Subject for general discussion, "What Have I Read This Summer; What Book Did I Enjoy Most?"
